OLD JAPANESE ERA ENDS WITH PRINCE'S DEATH

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

TOKIO, July 2.—Prince Masayoshi Matsukata died tonight, marking by his passing the close of a distinct period in Japanese history. For he was the last of the senior Genro, that small and picturesque group of ancients who led in the restoration of the Emperor to power and the building of the modern empire of Japan.

Of the Genro or elder statesmen, only one remains—Prince Kinkochi Saionji. The latter, however, was admitted to the select Genro council only half a dozen years, while Matsukata was a survivor from feudal times in Japan.

Whether the Genro will continue to exist is an unanswered question. The Genro council has no place in the constitution of Japan; it is but a natural growth, the product of the peculiar circumstances of the last half century of Japanese politics.

SEIZED POWER

A small group of leaders through the eminence of their gifts and the value of their services to the State, seized power and held it without constitutional warrant long after they had share in actual government relinquished. They became the advisers closest to the throne; the Emperor assembled them for consultation when crises faced the nation.

The old Genro and Matsukata saw Japan move from a feudal state to the front rank of modern powers. Matsukata in his youth fought as a Japanese samurai, armed with a long spear, in the battles which preceded the overthrow of the shogun and the establishment of the Mikado as the only ruler of Japan. He lived to master the mysteries of modern financial finance, to see the rise of new great new empires and the decline of one, to see the coming to power of the semi-feudal Japan of today, of electricity, great guns, airplanes and radio.

Matsukata incidentally was a millionaire and attributed his longevity to his abstinence from wine.

Prince Matsukata, next to the head of the Japanese Genro, was the founder of Japanese finance. He was a member of the ancient clan of Satsuma from whose ranks spring the greater number of officers of the Japanese army. He was born in February, 1835.

He served under Prince Shimazu, feudal lord of Satsuma and fought in the Japanese Civil War of restoration. When the imperial government returned to power, taking the place of the Shoguns, he joined the government service as prefectural governor and later was attached to the Department of Finance under the then Count Shigenobu Okuma. Count Okuma he laid the foundations for a stable State system which was in chaotic condition on account of the feudal form of administration. A No-table achievement of Matsukata was the organization of a land bank.

In 1878 he was dispatched to Europe as vice-president of the French section of the Paris Exposition. On his return he was appointed Home Minister and consolidated national progress by reforming the post and telegraph systems of the empire. In the Cabinet reorganization of 1881 he was appointed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HADLEHURST FIELD, NEW YORK, July 2.—The first eastbound transcontinental mail service plane, piloted by Burr H. Winslow arrived here at 6:11 p.m., daylight-saving time, six minutes behind schedule with twelve pouches of mail weighing 231 pounds.

The plane left Cleveland four minutes behind schedule, due to the delay of a mail truck.

Although Pilot Smith encountered unfavorable east wind of 25 miles an hour and a heavy shower over the coal regions of Pennsylvania, he "picked up" minutes.

Among the pouches contained an assortment of fresh-cut California flowers for Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. James E. Power, wife of the postmaster of San Francisco.

FLIER TEN SECONDS LATE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The westbound night-flight air mail, which had left Mineola, N. Y., twenty-four hours and fifty minutes earlier, arrived at the air mail field here at 5:45 o'clock today. The two planes, which arrived ten seconds apart, were piloted from Reno, Nev., by Curr Macdonald and Harry W. Huking.

SECOND FLIGHT ON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, July 2.—The maiden transcontinental air mail flight successfully completed, planes on the second day's flights were winging their way along the 855-mile lightway between Chicago and Cheyenne tonight.

Flying ahead of schedule, the westbound plane was nearing Omaha at midnight after leaving Chicago at 6:33 p.m., Central Standard time, and the eastbound plane, which took off from San Francisco at 6 a.m., Pacific time, was flying over Nebraska near North Platte.

STAGE SET FOR LA FOLLETTE'S ENTRY IN RACE

BY DON EWING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Robert La Follette, Wisconsin's insurgent Republican Senator, tomorrow officially will speak the word that has been whispered for months—that he will run as an independent candidate for President.

Formal public notice that this word has been spoken will not be given for at least another day, however.

Tomorrow a committee representing the Cleveland conference for progressive political action, which goes into session the 4th inst., will call at the Senator's residence here and inform him that "a great mass of people dissatisfied with both major parties" wish to "draft" him as their candidate.

TO GIVE SEALED REPLY

La Follette then will deliver to them a signed and sealed message to be taken to Cleveland. It will be his acceptance and his denunciation of both major parties. It was learned tonight. But it will not be opened to the public until Friday, the 4th inst., or possibly Saturday—whichever day is decided on for his nomination.

Returning to Cleveland with this committee—and the La Follette "keynote"—will be the Senator's son and official representative in all things political, Robert La Follette, Jr.

The message was completed tonight with the aid of Bob, Jr., who came here from New York. He and his father spent the day going over the platforms of both major parties and drawing up "suggestions" for the Cleveland leaders—suggestions which the La Follettes consider as going the old-timers one better on every detail, appeals to the discontented in all political walks of life.

CAMPAIGN PLANS

Final plans for the La Follette campaign have not been completed. It is thought that he will stick to the long-known idea of being purely an "independent"—not the head of a formal third party, which would force him to forsake his much proclaimed party regularity. On the other hand, there has been an undercurrent of late that "Insurgent Bob" now is willing to actually head a third party and that the Cleveland conference will form this party, appropriating the name "Progressive" for it.

If that is the case, and a formal ticket is placed in the field, there is talk of Senator Burton Wheeler (Democrat) Montana, as La Follette's running mate, while Houston Thompson, Victor Murdock and Warren Stone also are mentioned.

Besides the notification committee tomorrow, a committee headed by W. P Raleigh of Freeport, Ill., will call on the Senator as representative of "La Follette-for-President" clubs with the announcement that 250,000 signatures to petitions for him to run already have been obtained.

REPUBLICANS CHANGE DATE

About the only political news of the day not dealing with La Follette was completion of plans for nomination notification of Coolidge and Dawes, and the decision to notify the latter on the 29th inst., instead of the 31st inst., as originally arranged.

While no formal announcement was made as to today's White

HISSES DROWN BRYAN'S PLEA

BY KYLE D. PALMER

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, July 2.—The most hated man in New York City tonight is a kindly old gentleman who believes that Eve was created from Adama's rib, who thinks the money power of the United States is trying to take bread out of the mouths of the widow and the orphan, and who is proud of the fact that he is a great-grandfather.

This man, who stood today on the speaker's platform in Madison Square Garden dramatically pleading with the Democratic National Convention to compose its differences and agree without further delay upon a nominee for President, heard a great mob of 15,000 thoroughly angry men and women express their hate for him with a vigorous hiss that sounded like a mighty wind blowing through a forest of pines.

He was the target of boos, insults, cat calls. He had the advantage of microphone that magnified his words many times, but his utterances were drowned—lost—in the tempest he had himself created.

The man was Bryan. He stood alone. He presented a smiling face to his attackers.

Mr. Bryan did not attempt to reason with those whose ire was too deep for logic or persuasion. He simply waited for the thunders of protest to cease, but at each new beginning the mass thundered its anathemas in greater volume.

Such was the reception accorded the great Commoner, the thrice-named leader of Democracy, the maker and unmaker of Presidents, when he attempted, in the name of party harmony and party welfare, to break the McAdoo-Smith deadlock and stampede the delegates to the McAdoo bandwagon.

The somewhat sensational showing of McAdoo when the convention resumed balloting tonight was due almost wholly to the carefully prepared program of the McAdoo managers to run his vote up to a maximum and attempt to hold it there until they can put him over or obtain the best sort of a bargain that may offer itself.

Mr. Bryan's intentions this afternoon were undoubtedly good, but the consequences thereof may bring final disaster to the McAdoo hopes. Bryan's speech has solidified the McAdoo opposition and offended the supporters of various other candidates and their following.

Bryan stampeded the Democratic National Convention of 1896 to himself; he stampeded the convention of 1912 to Woodrow Wilson, but he did not stampede the convention of 1924.

In another atmosphere, in another community, even with a hos-

PARTY CHIEFS SEEK PLAN TO END DEADLOCK

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 3.—Conferences between the various leaders are scheduled for the wee small hours this morning and an effort will be made once more to end the deadlock with the nomination of a Democratic who can get the necessary two-thirds of the vote. The original program for the night meeting was to remain in session until 2 o'clock and then adjourn till 12 o'clock noon.

When the clock reached 11:30 after the forty-second ballot had been in the previous tests of the evening word came to adjourn the convention and permit the leaders conferences for the remainder of the night without interruption.

Accordingly after the announcement of the result of the forty-second ballot, the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock today, leaving the three leaders in the following ratio: McAdoo, 503.4; Smith, 318.6, and John W. Davis of West Virginia, 67.

A tremendous Smith drive with an expected corresponding loss of McAdoo votes is the announced program for this morning unless the last-hour conferences make a change in the plans.

A CRITICAL MOMENT

Despite the damage done to his candidacy by the speech of William Jennings Bryan, Mr. McAdoo made a remarkable showing on the thirty-ninth ballot last night, lacking but one vote of 506. Gov. Smith dropped to 320½ and John W. Davis tumbled to 71, the lowest he has shown for some time. McAdoo's showing was due to superhuman efforts to increase his strength at this, the critical moment, in his entire political career.

Margaret Wilson, his sister-in-law, made a personal appeal to the Missouri delegation to return to the McAdoo standard. Her effort was successful. Oklahoma also returned to McAdoo on the thirty-ninth ballot, which was the first to be taken following the afternoon recess.

RESULT OF SENTIMENT

McAdoo's increase last night is more sentimental than practical or permanent, and is largely a concentration of effort to make his strength supreme over all contenders in order to give him trading advantage for the conference that must come before a nominee can be chosen.

Bryan's speech was in McAdoo's behalf as a progressive candidate and one who would make the Democratic Presidential campaign a success. Bryan received the unanimous consent of the convention to make an address to it when his State of Florida was reached on the thirty-seventh ballot.

His speech caused much excitement among the delegates and the alternates and made the galleries packed with Smith supporters sound like a bedlam. Finally, he was permitted to start and he proceeded to recommend various and sundry candidates for the place. He started out with his Florida candidate, a professor whose name never can be remembered, either by the press or the public. He then eulogized in turn, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy under Woodrow Wilson, and from him hurried to Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas, minority leader of the Senate.

GIVES RALSTON MOMENT

Then he came farther north and spoke of the availability of Senator Ralston of Indiana. He tarried but a moment and then went to Iowa, where he stopped long enough to praise former Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, merely as a possibly good candidate. In Nebraska, he found his own brother, Gov. Bryan, had some vreat qualifications as a Presidential candidate, but even his brother could not hold the veteran orator and party leader. He hurried on to Montana and praised that State's favorite son and champion investigator, Senator Walsh. He described Walsh as a progressive and a fearless man, but he could not remain long in the Northwest for the Coast was his destination and here he gave all his efforts to McAdoo.

He had scarcely started to extoll the merits of McAdoo when the crowd began to hoot and jeer and call for the regular order. Chairman Walsh, after many attempts finally obtained a semblance of order and Bryan demanded that the delegates support William Gibbs McAdoo. His detailed arguments in favor of this, his favorite of all the candidates before the convention, were literally shot to pieces by the cries of the gallery for Smith and the protests of delegates, alternates and visitors against prolonging the eulogy of the California candidate.

REACTION SETS IN

Finally, the orgy of oratory was over and the reaction of the convention could plainly be felt in

SMITH HOLDS HIS OWN AS CALIFORNIAN GAINS AND DAVIS FALLS BACK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, July 2.—William Gibbs McAdoo ran to a new high mark in tonight's balloting in the Democratic National Convention. He passed the much-sought goal of 500 votes by dint of much frantic work and persuasions and maneuvering on the part of his floor managers, who declared they had not finished their work yet. McAdoo hit his high mark so far in the fortieth ballot when he polled 505½ votes. Smith at that time had dropped a little below his high level, 323½, made on previous ballots.

At the close of the thirtieth ballot Tuesday night McAdoo had stood at 418 1-2 votes. Thus he gained nearly 100 in today's balloting and the votes he got were taken principally from John W. Davis, who fell to 67 on the last ballot tonight.

The McAdoo people went into tonight's session attempting to estimate what damage had been done to their cause by the riotous performance of the late afternoon session when William Jennings Bryan precipitated a tumult with his approval of McAdoo from the platform and caused cries of "oil."

At first there were various predictions of what the effect might be at the night session but when the leaders got outside and thought it over it became apparent that the principal effect of the Bryan incident had been to solidify the Smith forces and to spur the McAdoo people on to a new record. To pass the 500 mark tonight and adjourn while it was held there were their first goal. They made it. To obtain a majority was their next goal. Whether they can do that will be decided tomorrow.

STRATEGY IN DARK

There in the offing lies a new threat of an attack on the two-thirds rule after the majority has been attained. That issue remains to be clarified. There is no authentic information concerning the McAdoo plans available tonight.

The day's proceedings were full of incident and color. Twelve ballots were the accomplishment of the two sessions of the day. The desertions of two votes in the New York delegation from Smith to McAdoo gave the McAdoo people all they wanted for a demonstration at the day session and the sliding of Missouri and Oklahoma to the McAdoo standards at the night session furnished the occasion for the demonstrations tonight. But the real feature of the day was Bryan, as of old, getting on the platform to make a speech on pretense of explaining his vote; launching an attack on big business and organized wealth, and presenting a list of candidates whom he considered available—headed by McAdoo.

The rumpus Bryan kicked up has seldom been equalled at any National Convention and it probably never has been surpassed in anything short of blows and bloodshed. For half the time allotted to him, Bryan was shouting into a howling mob which was hurling catcalls, threats and epithets at him and heckling him with demands to explain McAdoo's connection with "oil" and his activities as an attorney securing tax refunds for corporations from the Treasury Department.

SMITH HOLDS BACK

The strategy by which the McAdoo managers picked up enough votes to pass the 500-mark was said to be an arrangement by which Oklahoma and Missouri promised to come over and give the McAdoo candidacy a chance to develop its strength for the satisfaction of wavering delegates. Mississippi was in the throes of deciding whether it would go back from McAdoo to John W. Davis tomorrow.

The Smith people decided, contrary to report, that they would not trot out their full strength tonight and from all evidences they did not do so. The McAdoo people declared they knew there were more Smith votes on the floor to be brought out when

DESTROYER GAINS PORT FROM REEF

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The United States destroyer La Valletta, which struck head-on a reef at Fort Ross, eighty miles north of San Francisco in a dense fog this morning, arrived at Mare Island navy yard for repairs tonight under her own power.

None of the destroyer's crew of 112 officers and men was hurt in the crash.

The crash came at 7:30 a.m. as the destroyer, proceeding to San Francisco to pick up the mother ship Aroostook and the seaplanes that have been off Sausalito this week, was nosing along close to the shore. Off Fort Ross the vessel struck the rocks and drove fast on the reef.

Unofficial advices from the navy yard tonight said the La Vallette's forward hull had been pierced and that one compartment was flooded. She was one of a convoy of destroyers that was accompanying the Aroostook and her seaplanes to Puget Sound for maneuvers.

Rutter, it was announced today. Walker will succeed Harold Dolley, who resigned several months ago following a grand jury investigation in Los Angeles which exonerated Dolley of charges of malfeasance in office.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 2.—Aside from the switch into the McAdoo column of three States—Missouri, Mississippi and Oklahoma—the twelve roll calls on the Presidential nomination taken at today's two sessions of the Democratic National Convention were chiefly repetitions of those of the two previous days in their monotonous regularity. M'ADOO CLIMBS PAST 500-MARK called for and they were playing a game which would force all the Smith votes out before they brought out their own full strength.

On the surface, the situation when the convention adjourned tonight had not reached the stage for final dealing between the leaders. It was obvious that the McAdoo strength and the Smith strength had reached such proportions that the contest was not going to be decided in open football play, and it was more certain than ever that each side had a veto on the other. The deadlock, therefore, was becoming tight.

AS SEEN BY ROOSEVELT

The race for the nomination was described by Franklin D. Roosevelt, manager of the Smith candidacy, when the convention adjourned tonight, in the following statement:

"From our standpoint, only the obvious developments have taken place. We have conserved our strength. The McAdoo forces have extended theirs. They have now had forty-two chances to win and have not come nearer than forty some votes to a majority. It is obvious they cannot obtain the necessary two-thirds and it is doubtful if ever they can obtain a majority."

The Smith men declared they had declined to permit any increase in their total tonight beyond the 920-point.

"When Mr. McAdoo has finished," Mr. Roosevelt told his assistant floor leaders, "then we will have our run, but the time is not opportune yet for any demonstration of full balloting power."

The backers of Senator Ralston also held a tight rein. After adjournment Thomas Taggart declared he did not know when he would try to speed up their race.

TAGGART LIKES IT

"My horse is going along so nicely and the race is so pretty that it really doesn't seem fitting to try to make a slashing affair of it," Taggart said. "I'm rather enjoying our place in the race, my colt is holding up well, and the pace that is being set by the leaders still is much to my liking. Whether a drive starts tomorrow or not will depend entirely on the situation which develops in the morning."

Reports about the floor were that Mississippi and Oklahoma might jump to Ralston when Taggart gave the word. When a rumor got abroad that Arkansas was wavering and might jump to McAdoo, various managers hovered about the Arkansas delegation.

Former Gov. Brough authorized the statement that the Arkansas delegation would stay with Senator Robinson to the end.

Virginia delegates said there was nothing to reports that they would desert Senator Glass. They knew the McAdoo managers were using their influence in certain directions to break up the Glass vote, they said, but did not fear the efforts would be successful.

FOES SOLIDIFIED

The effect of Bryan's move and the storm which accompanied it was the sole topic of discussion among the leaders when the convention assembled for the night session. Who had been benefited and who had been hurt were the great questions. There was an agreement on all sides that if anything had been necessary to solidify the Smith people it was Bryan's reference to the necessity for a candidate whose position was right "on the liquor question." It was obvious that Bryan had brought out on the floor of the convention a subject which the McAdoo people had no relish for throwing into open debate—the oil question and the tax refund cases.

The Ralston people were anxiously looking about to estimate how their candidate had fared under Bryan's open indorsement.

Senator Walsh of Montana, a declared supporter of McAdoo, had given way in the chair at the night session to Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a declared supporter of Smith, so that he may be cleared of any embarrassment for clearing the galleries of Smith rooters if they became so unruly as to stop the convention proceedings as they had done at the afternoon session when they howled Bryan down under a cloudburst of shouts, catcalls and uncomplimentary epithets.

RECORD MAY FALL

Slowly the total of ballots was climbing toward the records made at Baltimore and San Francisco where it took forty-six and forty-four, respectively, to find a nominee. With no nomination tonight the record is in a fair way to be broken.

At 8:15 o'clock, Chairman Walsh began gaveling for order, silenced the band, waved delegates and alternates to their seats, shook a leonine head at the galleries to keep order and announced that Mr. Frederick H. Knubell of the United Lutheran churches would lead in prayer.

The New York Police Glee Club then sang some songs. Evidently the conventiou managers felt that some music was needed to soothe the savage breast of contention. No chances were being taken, however, on the effectiveness of the music; enough policemen to comprise several glee clubs marched around the hall looking for trouble.

"Now to serious business," declared Senator Walsh. "The clerk will call the roll for the thirty-ninth ballot."

The old familiar "twenty-four votes for Oscar Underwood" opened the proceedings.

McAdoo lost a half vote in Arizona, which was given to Smith. The dinner recess had not shaken Arkansas loose from Senator Robinson, nor California from McAdoo.

The vote remained as usual until Michigan was called.

McADOO GAINS

Missouri with her 36 for Davis passed, to be reported later. In New Hampshire McAdoo picked up a half vote which has been going to Senator Walsh of Montana. In North Carolina Davis picked up a half vote from McAdoo.

In Pennsylvania Robinson's one vote went to Glass. The poll of the Missouri delegation going on meanwhile indicated that the State was going back to McAdoo under the unit rule.

The list ran on without change until Vermont was reached when the one McAdoo vote there was taken away and cast for Mayor Jackson of Burlington, Vt. The remainder of the list showed no material change.

Missouri on the recall went back to McAdoo and the McAdoo contingent all over the hall began welcoming the prodigal while the anti-McAdoos in the delegation gave notice through the din that they were going to challenge the announcement.

While Missouri's return was being celebrated, Oklahoma's poll showed a return to McAdoo, and the announcement of that furnished the fire for another demonstration.

WOMEN IN CHARGE

The women were in full charge of the McAdoo demonstration.

During the parade Senator Walsh of Montana, relieved Senator Walsh of Massachusetts of the celebrated gavel with the flying head.

Somebody started the "We want Smith" chant and immediately it was ringing from all corners of the Garden. It swamped the McAdoo demonstration so far as noise was concerned.

Arizona changed her vote before the roll call was concluded and that added a half-vote to McAdoo, bringing him to 499—within one vote of that coveted 500 which his adherents had been working so hard to get.

On the fortieth in Colorado, McAdoo gained a half-vote from Davis.

Connecticut announced a change involving a loss for Smith and a gain for McAdoo. There was a protest and the State was passed for a poll at the end of the roll call. Underwood got one in Florida, taking it from Ralston.

ALL FOR McADOO

In South Dakota Senator Walsh lost the stray vote he had been getting there and the solid ten went to McAdoo. Mrs. McAdoo, sitting in a box busy with pencil and paper, laughed and applauded.

Mayor Jackson's vote in Vermont went to McAdoo on this ballot, the other seven going to Smith.

A California matron, who had been waving a collection of little flags at every mention of McAdoo, suddenly discovered that some one had slipped a Smith banner on top of the staff and that she had been waving an emblem for the New York Governor. She indignantly tore off the Smith streamer and tore it into tiny bits.

At the conclusion of the roll the clerk went back to Connecticut where the poll had been demanded. While it was on the McAdoo floor scouts were frantically working all over the hall trying to round up enough to get a majority—having passed the 500 mark.

William J. Bryan was active in the same cause. The understanding was that Missouri and Oklahoma would stay on the McAdoo side a bit and give the McAdoo managers a chance to get the majority while they were with them. The poll of the Connecticut delegation resulted: Smith, 10; McAdoo, 4.

ATTAIN GOAL

The passing of the 500 mark was attained in a great drive toward getting a majority with rumblings of a fight on the two-thirds rule in the offing.

The McAdoo partisans interrupted the announcement of the official vote of the fortieth ballot with a demonstration which was only quelled after repeated effort. The McAdoo people had some demonstration tricks on hand; among them was a curly-haired girl, who was carried about the hall on the shoulders of a man. There was quite a howling contest between the Smith people in the galleries and the McAdoo people on the floor. Chairman Walsh of Montana leaned leisurely over the speaker's desk waiting for the racket to subside.

The people set up a chant "McAdoo will never do; we want Smith."

Chairman Walsh had little luck in getting order but the woman delegate, taking her turn at doing the announcing, quieted the Smith people by giving them their champion's score.

Bryan went over and sat down with the Mississippi delegation and as he passed down the aisles, the galleries set up a loud and hostile booing. An inspector of the police department was close at Bryan's heels and waited while he did his conferring.

START FORTY-FIRST

W. W. Brandon of Montgomery, Ala., the possessor of the three-story and basement voice that had been responding "twenty-four for Oscar Underwood," was called to the spieaker's platform to call the votes on the forty-first ballot.

In Colorado McAdoo lost a half vote that went to Davis of West Virginia. In Michigan, Smith took the two votes which had been going to Ralston and Cox.

New Hampshire gave one to Homer Cummings, chairman of the convention platform committee, taking it from Smith.

While this ballot was in progress Mr. McAdoo once more took up his headquarters in the hotel across the street from the convention hall and began a series of conferences with his floor leaders. There was talk of pressure to bring Virginia and Arkansas over to the McAdoo rising tide. South Dakota gave McAdoo nine, and one to Thomas J. Spellacy of Connecticut. Anti-McAdoo folks were at work and conferring also. Thomas Taggart of Indiana, visited the Missouri delegation, to find out how long it was going to stay with the McAdoo standard.

With the announcement of the figures for the forty-first ballot, the clerk went back to calling the roll again—this time made forty-two. There was talk of the situation in the Oklahoma delegation not being entirely settled about staying with McAdoo.

Smith lost one to Davis in Michigan.

Mississippi once more voted her twenty for McAdoo. But it was on a slender thread. The delegation at the moment was being held by a woman alternate who was for McAdoo but acting for a delegate who was for Davis. Efforts were being made to get the delegate back into the hall and swing Mississippi back to the Davis column on a later ballot. McAdoo lost one which Smith picked up in Nebraska. New Hampshire took the vote she had given to Homer Cummings in the last ballot and gave it to Smith.

North Carolina gave 4½ to Glass, taking four of them from Davis of West Virginia and a half vote from McAdoo. Oklahoma, despite a report that she was about to switch to Robinson, stayed with her twenty for McAdoo.

The totals for the forty-second ballot were announced as follows: McAdoo, 503 4-10; Smith, 318 6-10; Davis, West Virginia, 67; Underwood, 39½; Cox, 55; Glass, 28½; Ralston, 30; Robinson, 24; Ritchie, 17½; Davis, Kansas, 3; Saulsbury, 6; Owen, 4; Spellacy, 1; not voting, ½.

LEADERS SEEK DEADLOCK END

many of delegations that Brwan's attempt to help McAdoo had failed and that the threatened disintegration of his forces would soon set in. One more ballot was taken and the delegates recessed for a few hours preliminary to the night session in the hope they could get nearer to a solution of the puzzle than they have at any time thus far in this great pandemonium of uncertainty. This completed thirty-eight ballots with the leaders registering as follows: McAdoo, 444; Smith, 321, and John W. Davis, 105 on the last ballot of record before the recess.

Delegates and alternates were frank and candid in their comment on the speech of Bryan. Most of them said he covered too much territory. All agreed that he did not make McAdoo any votes or help him in the least. He proved that he had lost all his old fire and domination of leadership and had but a remnant of authority left and that was in the nature of a veto power. But even here the delegates friendly to the candidates Bryan ignored declared that he had again made a vital error, for he passed over in silence candidates who, in the ballot immediately preceding his address, had massed an aggregate of more than 600 votes—a majority of all the delegates present and enough supporters to block the men who were recommended by the peerless one from Nebraska.

OVERLOOKS SEVERAL

Bryan failed to mention Underwood, who had just polled thirty-nine votes; Senator Glass, who had twenty-four; Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, who had sixteen; John W. Davis of West Virginia, who had polled all day the third highest vote of the convention with 127, and Gov Al Smith of the State of New York, who had just gathered together 323; Senator Owen of Oklahoma, who came in with twenty votes; Gov. Cox of Ohio, who had sixty votes; former Senator Saulsbury of Delaware with six; former Secretary of the Interior Houston, who has a boom but has never received a vote; Gov. Brown of New Hampshire, who rallied eight votes, and Newton Baker, former Secretary of War, who had one vote.

The total of all the candidates not named by Bryan is 624 votes. All friends of these candidates are offended by the attitude of Mr. Bryan during his vocal tour of the United States in which he picked candidates that appealed to him.

Mr. Bryan said that this Democratic convention was a progressive one and could only win with such a candidate. The States represented by the candidates ignored by Mr. Bryan have enough votes to block the naming of any man preferred by Bryan in his speech. The general opinion among the delegates is that the Bryan speech, if it was delivered to help McAdoo to the nomination, was a complete failure and that McAdoo has gone to the top in his voting and will begin to lose delegates here and there from now on.

This convention has no dominant figure—no overpowering motor center. Every candidate of power in this convention has no weapons but a set of airbrakes for the other man's boom. Smith can stop McAdoo and McAdoo can stop Smith. There is no basis for a conference of the leaders of the various candidates, for apparently there is nothing in common upon which to start a conference looking to a nomination. No agreement can come until some of the big ones have demonstrated that they cannot get two-thirds of the delegates to vote for them. Then the convention may end and the delegates and others get home before they are old men and women.

LA FOLLETTE TO ACCEPT TODAY

House luncheon conference between Coolidge, Dawes and Butler, it is understood that La Follette came in for discussion there.

Indications are that the plan of playing on Dawes's personality and drawing power with the average citizen as a counter-irritant to the La Follette candidacy will be stressed by Republican chiefs.

CONFERENCE TODAY

Another conference between the Republican trio will be held tomorrow after which Dawes and Butler both will leave the city—Dawes to return to Chicago.

Applause at the teachers' meeting was caused by a speech by Dr. William G. Bagley of Columbia University, who said that both major parties had deserted the teachers in their platforms and that the teachers must go elsewhere for a candidate.

Individual groups were understood tonight to be drafting an appeal to La Follette to include a suitable plank in his platform—particularly one calling for a secretary of education.

PLANS DRAWN FOR PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CLEVELAND, July 2.—Declaring that neither the Republican, nor the Democratic platform was acceptable to them, the national committee in charge of the conference for Progressive political action, today drew up plans for the convention of the organization in this city July 4 and 5.

William H. Johnston, chairman of the committee, who will also deliver the keynote speech Friday, said that there was no doubt but that a national ticket would be placed in the field to run independently.

"Virtually all of the delegates who are here are favorable to the Presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette and are insistent upon his running," he said.

PLATFORM PLANS

This sentiment was echoed by J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the Committee of Forty-eight. Other leaders predicted that the conference would not only nominate La Follette, but would adopt the platform which his followers offered in vain to the recent Republican National Convention.

"The old parties have done exactly what we expected them to do, and have really advanced our cause, rather than their own," said Mr. Hopkins.

Reports to the committee indicated, it was said, that at least 700 delegates would attend the conference. Arthur Holder, executive secretary, was authority for a statement that thirty-two States had been organized under the banner of the conference.

Only "true progressives, representing reputable organizations" will be welcome to the convention, it was announced. To that end, a credentials committee was selected, charged with the duty of excluding Communists. This committee consists of Chester Thorpe of Columbus, O., representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; Robert Fechner, Boston, representing the machinists' union; Miss Isabelle Kendrig, Washington, representing the women's committee on political action; George Gobel, Newark, N. J., representing the Socialist party; D. C. Dorman, of the Non-Partisan League of Montana, and R. T. Wood, president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor.

FARMER LABORITES OUT

Under this decision the national Farmer-Labor party, formed at St. Paul last month, will not be recognized here, although the chairman of its executive committee, William Mahoney, is a member of the national committee as a representative of the Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota, but did not, however, attend the meeting, but it was learned that his status was discussed by the members of the national committee.

The program for the convention calls for the usual orations and appointments of committees on the Friday session. Reports of the committees will be heard as far as possible that afternoon and on Saturday a platform will be adopted, and Senator La Follette and a running-mate nominated.

Second place possibilities discussed today include Huston Thompson, Democratic chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who is said to be favorable to La Follette; Senator Wheeler, Montana, Democrat; Representative Huddleston, Alabama, Democrat; Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen's Union.

By the Waters of Minnetonka (Lieurance) Violin Solo — Renée Chemet Under the Leaves (Thiessé) Violin Solo — Renée Chemet		1015	$1.50

An emotional violin setting of Lieurance's song of the two Indian lovers who met death together. The companion number is a gracious pastourelle in the French manner. Both vividly portrayed by this violinist's art and faultlessly recorded by Victor processes.

Napulitanata (Fifth Million of Naples) (Di Giacomo-Costa) Neapolitan — Tito Schipa Chi se nne scorda ecchiù! (Oh, How Can I Forget) (Marcel-Buzzi-Peccia) Neapolitan — Tito Schipa		952	1.50

Two impassioned tenor songs from Neapolitan sources, beautifully sung and accompanied by a "little orchestra" of violin, mandolin, guitar, flute and piano. These songs are of the true vintage of life, and being Victor Records they are true reproductions of the artist's interpretations.

Vocal Selections

Face to Face — Henry Burr Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour — Charles Harrison–Clifford Cairns		19324	.75

A very fine sacred number, simple and reverent, the voice floating over a rich and impressive undercurrent of orchestral harmony. With it is combined a duet for tenor and bass, in similar style. No matter how many sacred songs there are in your record library, you will want to add these.

(1) Lady Moon (2) The Village Dance — Anna Howard–Laura Littlefield I Know a Bank — Anna Howard–Laura Littlefield		19295	.75

A Christine Rossetti lyric, a Hungarian dance, a Shakespeare poem, for two sopranos in canonic harmony. Educational records of such beauty that they will delight every one.

Tom Boy Blues — The Duncan Sisters Bull Frog Patrol — The Duncan Sisters		19352	.75

As a pair of "Tomboy Taylors," these dainty comediennes are having a hard time of it in the first record, if you may believe them. In the second number they carol to the King's taste. Droll numbers that are most entertaining—typical of the vaudeville presented on Victor Records.

Dance Records

Paradise Alley—Fox Trot (from "Paradise Alley") with vocal refrain Where the Rainbow Ends—Fox Trot — Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra		19353	.75

Brilliant, varied fox trots by this master-organization. The first has a vocal refrain, celebrating the delights of "Paradise Alley." The second is a fitting companion number. Here is new joy for dance lovers who know and appreciate the unequalled quality of Victor recording.

A Thousand Kisses—Waltz Apache Dance — International Novelty Orchestra		19351	.75

A famous Archibald Joyce waltz in a beautiful rescoring, and a remarkable number for exhibition dancers. A record to try out your dancing, but delightful even if you just want to listen.

I'm On My Way Back Home—Fox Trot (vocal refrain and whistling by Carson Robison) Just to Be Held in Your Arms—Fox Trot — Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra		19354	.75

Dashing, stimulating fox trots. The first has a vocal refrain with two-tone whistling effects and other sounds of travel. The second is also an excellent number. Dance them or just listen and experience that keen sense of pleasure which only Victor Records afford.

BRYAN'S SPEECH PLEA FOR UNITY

Analyzes Candidates Likely to Command Votes

Picks McAdoo as Best After Ignoring Several

Former 'Boy Orator' Greeted by Heckler Chorus

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, July 2.—Seeking to pull the Democratic National Convention out of its deadlock, William Jennings Bryan, war-horse of many campaigns, took the platform today and declared himself for William Gibbs McAdoo.

He was heckled and booed by some. The old-time party leader repeated the incident in which, at the Baltimore convention of 1912, he took the platform and declared for Woodrow Wilson. This time, however, Bryan did not attack any candidate by name, he said he would content himself with naming some one he considered fitted for the Presidency. At the top of the list stood McAdoo.

While the galleries, packed with Smith supporters, ran into a riot and Chairman Walsh ordered some sections of them cleared, the floor went into pandemonium, the McAdoo people had fits of cheering and the Smith people booed.

OIL SCANDAL BOBS UP

From the floor a New Jersey delegate shouted to Bryan:

"You have stated that Senator Walsh was the greatest of all investigators. Bear in mind that he disclosed that McAdoo accepted retainers from oil."

At that point more pandemonium broke loose and there was some question about the propriety of Bryan proceeding under the rules.

"The gentleman asked about Mr. McAdoo's retainers from Mr. Doheny," replied Bryan when some order was restored.

"Mr. Doheny's retainers related to Old Mexico," replied Bryan. "I will go further and say that if any oil ever touched McAdoo the intense and persistent opposition of Wall street has washed it all away."

The man who asked Bryan the question was Joseph F. Fitzpatrick of New Jersey.

By that time the crowd was howling Bryan down and Bryan was shouting into the noisy mass before him and nobody could be heard.

An Ohio delegated mounted a chair and shouted:

"Can you tell how McAdoo collected a fee of $200,000 for cutting $2,000,000 off the taxes of—" the remainder of the question was drowned out in the roar.

Bryan shouted something in reply, but men sitting five feet from him could not hear what he said.

Dennis F. Dunlap of Ashtabula, O., was the man who asked Bryan to explain McAdoo's part in the tax cases.

From the floor E. H. Moore of the Ohio delegation demanded the regular order.

Bryan waved to Moore in an entreating gesture to sit down.

The chairman refused to entertain any motions while Bryan had the floor.

Charles F. X. O'Brien of New Jersey was next recognized. He recalled that the chairman had previously stated that he would entertain a motion for the regular order after Bryan has answered the questions asked from the floor.

Chairman Walsh refused to return to the regular order and told Bryan to go ahead.

"You didn't answer that man's question," shouted one delegate, pointing out the Ohio man who asked about the tax cases.

RIOT DIES DOWN

The riot died away for a second and Bryan getting control of the situation again proceeded, reciting the movement toward governments of Socialism and Communism abroad.

"It has been brought about," he said, "by the concentration of wealth that has enriched the few and made homeless the many."

He followed with an attack on the Republican party for the Teapot Dome scandal and the Mellon tax plan.

"If the Republicans go on piling up riches in the hands of the few," Bryan continued, "it only will be a question of time when the same question Lloyd George asked in England will be asked in the United States.

"The men of wealth ought, to know and the Democratic party ought to tell them that it is better to have good government than have large fortunes."

Bryan's time, taken up about half with the roaring and booing of the crowd, expired; Chairman Walsh tapped him on the shoulder and told him it was up and with a gracious "I thank you," the Commoner concluded and left the platform.

It was at the beginning of the thirty-eighth ballot that Mr. Bryan asked unanimous consent to explain his vote for McAdoo.

"When am through I hope you will feel that I have improved my time for the benefit of the Democratic party," he began. "I have only one desire and that is that we shall win this next election. I only desire that because I see no other hope for the nation except in the victory of the Democratic party.

"As I have listened to the pleading of the friends of the various candidates I have thought that if we coud have a campaign long enough to let every voter get as well acquainted with the candidates as those who advocate them it would be easier to make a selection.

"I am only one of twelve delegates from Florida and one of 1098 in the convention. I only ask that you consider the reasons that have led me to the conclusions I have reached and give to my conclusions such weight as you think they deserve.

"I shall not mention any candidate whom I should have to criticise; I only want to speak of some of whom I would be glad to commend. When I have done that, I want to speak of something more important.

PLENTY OF CANDIDATES

"In the first place, the party has candidates in abundance. In every State we could find a Democrat worthy of being President. In some States there are more than one who could fill the White House with credit.

"In Florida," Mr. Bryan continued, "we have Dan Murphree."

"We want Smith," shouted a delegate from New York.

"We never heard of him," shouted another.

"Those who have not informed themselves on the nation's great men ought to be silent until they have a chance," retorted Bryan.

"He would fill the office with credit to himself and with honor and credit to the nation. I travel north from Florida to North Carolina and mention one of the best Democrats in the United States—Josephus Daniels.

"He made a magnificent Secretary of the Navy. He is sound on every question and he would grow every day in the campaign as people knew him better. My third is another southern man, Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

"He measures up to every requirement of the Presidency. Here are three men from the South. This is probably the last convention of my party at which I may be a delegate—" At that there was applause.

"Don't applaud," interrupted Bryan. "I may change my mind."

"I want to pay back today the debt of gratitude I owe to the South," Bryan continued when the laughter died down.

"The South has helped this nation secure every economic reform that has been secured in the last sixty years. Some people have said you can't nominate a man from the South. We have had two wars since the Civil War and the sons of those who wore the Gray and those who wore the Blue were ready to die together on the battlefield. The South furnished as many soldiers to the late World War as it furnished to the Confederacy. The South furnished more money to do our part in the World War than it furnished to the Confederacy. It is time we should hush forever the voice that says we should not recognize the South in full participation of our party triumphs. The man who says the North would not vote for a southern man libels the North.

"What this nation wants is a man whose heart beats in sympathy with the common people and they don't care where he was born.

MENTIONS RALSTON

"The first northern man I mention is Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana. He is a progressive Democrat with a noble record of work done for his State and his nation through the Democratic party. My next man from the North is E. T. Meredith of Iowa. He was in the President's Cabinet—an honor to the Cabinet—he has long been identified with agriculture and knows the farmers' needs. They comprise the largest group of our population and they are the ones most distressed today. Their condition presents its piteous appeal to the nation and the Democratic party has tried to answer that appeal.

"My next northern man has the misfortune to be my brother. You needn't take my word for his value—take his record and the 50,000 he got in Nebraska. He protected the people against the gasoline monopoly and those who control the coal in Nebraska.

"Then I go to the Northwest and mention the name of a man from Montana—Thomas J. Walsh.

"As a lawyer he has no superior; as a statesman he has few equals, and as an investigator, he is above them all."

There was a roar of applause for that.

"Under his leadership more gigantic corruption has been disclosed than in any other investigation. He raised the lid and let the people see how the Republican machine was lubricated with oil. Out of that investigation will come one priceless benefit to the nation. We for years have been trying to show the Republicans that these men who contribute large campaign funds purchase favors at public auction."

"Name the real one you have in mind," shouted a man in the gallery.

PLEADS FOR TIME

"Don't rush me," replied Bryan. "I shall not disappoint you when I am through.

"I now want to present a brief argument for one who I think fits into this occasion. It's necessary that we shall make a progressive fight. We have been challenged and cannot decline. That is the issue that must be settled. It is necessary that our candidate on the liquor question is such that every mother will know that every home will be protected.

"I have given you the names of men whose position will not be doubted on the question of law enforcement. There must be no doubt about your candidate's position on the great progressive issue. To fit our party's sentiment and record and platform and to appeal to the only votes we have any chance of securing, our candidate must be a progressive. If we attempt to nominate a reactionary—which I consider impossible in this convention—he would not draw reactionaries from their party nor hold reactionary Democrats away from the Republican ticket. We have tried it before. After having disgraced us they have deserted us at election day. And this year they shall not take us on to a mountain and promised land that they don't own.

"Now, I mention on that made it possible for us to have a progressive platform. If he had not made the fight we could not have a progressive convention today.

"The man who has made possible the election of a progressive is William Gibbs McAdoo."

TOO MANY SEND WIRES COLLECT

Managers Have to Pay for Costly Game Worked on Delegates

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN (New York) July 2.—Many of the candidate managers were working the "telegram-from-home" game on the delegates today. Its disappointing features was that a lot of telegrams came collect.

Of some 300 telegrams from all sections of the State reaching the North Carolina chairman this morning, many came collect.

SIDE LINES ON THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

[FROM THE NEW YORK WORLD]

Something ought to be done about Mr. Bryan. With the thermometer that many degrees in the shade, he had the nerve to waltz into the Garden with a hot crimson Florida pennant across his bay window. At first this department thought he was wearing it for his rheumatiz.

When all those pretty little flags fluttered down from the rafters, this department, with its usual luck, failed to catch a single one, yet we saw no less than seven fall on a bald-headed newspaper man in the next section and stick there. Some people are born lucky. We wanted one of the flags for our room.

This convention has achieved the impossible. It furnished a newspaper lady and a newspaper gentleman with coupons for two seats that did not exist. The two newspaper persons then matched the convention by sitting in seats they thought might be like the ones they did not have.

As a concession to the sopranos who, it is rumored, will play a very important role in the campaign this fall, Miss Anna Case was invited to sing—and did sing with a great deal of eclat and skill—the National Anthem and the Battle Hymn of the Republicans.

The Georgia delegation arrived in a frisky mood and started spilling McAdoo songs all over the place. After each verse they emitted the "Georgia cry," that peculiar, low sound of joy and triumph given by the farmers of Georgia whenever the peach crop is good or when there is an epidemic of smallpox among the boll weevils.

"I'm for Senator Joe Robinson," said a visitor to the Astor. "Why are you for Joe Robinson?" "Because he plays a rotten game of golf and he'll draw the duffer vote, sure."

Representative William P. Connery, Jr., who used to do a comedy turn on the stage before he went to Congress from Massachusetts, was reproached by a friend in the Waldorf-Astoria lobby for not putting some fun into the Congressional Record. "H'm," said he, "think I'd work without an all-Equity cast?"

Miss Mazie McGuiness says none of the women will vote for Senator Walsh of Montana because he affects a walrus mustache. Miss McGuiness advises the Montana Senator to have it bobbed.

The radio announcer said yesterday: "The applause you have just heard is the compliment of the convention to William Jennings Bryan as he stepped to the platform. The band will now play," and the band played "I L-o-o-o-ove You, I L-o-o-ve You."

Miss Inez Knights Allen is a delegate-at-large from Utah. Her husband, R. E. Allen, was a delegate to the Republican convention at Cleveland. Neither can persuade the other.

This department will swing its support to the dark horse buying it the most ice cream sodas between now and the time it starts raining again.

Young women distributed buttons marked "Charlie Chaplin for President," "Tom Mix for President" and "Ben Turpin for President." Ben is this department's second choice. He could keep an eye on things. This D's first choice is Gloria Swanson, providing she agrees to appoint Imogene Wilson Secretary of War.

Well, probably keynote speeches are all right, but last night, as we threw back the sheet, this department came to the conclusion that its favorite keynoter is Cal Coolidge, in one of his quieter moods.

Cardinal Hayes arrived at the Garden and was surrounded by photographers. "What's the matter?" he said, "I'm not a candidate."

HALO OF BRYAN FLUNG IN DUST

tile crowd kept under a semblance of control, the once peerless leader might have won his case, but today he was not permitted even to state it. He was howled down by a hard-boiled gang that knew none of the rules of fair play and that showed no mercy.

The flight of his oratory fell under the weight of frenzied protest when, after reciting the merits of a number of individuals deemed by him available for the nomination, he began to extol the virtues of McAdoo. He struggled to continue, to gain an opportunity to be heard, but the galleries would have no more from him.

On the oor of the convention the delegates and alternates for the most part sat in silence. One man in the New York delegation demanded that he explain his espousal of McAdoo's candidacy in view of the Doheny retainer. His reply, uttered vigorously and earnestly, was lost in cries of "throw him out"—"get the hook"—"oil, oil, oil"—"indict McAdoo"—go on back to Florida" and other such utterances.

Fifteen thousand healthy human beings in an arena even of the size of Madison Square Garden can make something of an impression when aroused to a pitch of fury.

LOW REPARTEE

"Give the speaker time," implored Chairman Walsh.

"Give him plenty of time," rejoined a hostile voice in the uppermost gallery, "give him twenty years." Whereat the great throng roared its approval.

The New Yorkers could see but one thing—the profane hand of an outsider laid upon their idol, and no benighted and painted savage ever rushed to the defense of his gods with greater vengeance in his heart. Madison Square Garden became a Brobdingnagian hive of bees, and Mr. Bryan's the hand that stirred them up.

He retired, beaten, disappointed. It is improbable that he aided any of the men whose interest he sought to further, and as for McAdoo, Mr. Bryan merely succeeded in redoubling the fires of hostility that have been blazed around the person and the candidacy of the former Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Bryan, with respect to McAdoo, appears to be in a class with the would-be rescuer, who, in throwing a drowning man a life buoy, struck the victim on the head and thus hastened his end.

BITTERLY SORRY

McAdoo leaders are appalled by the unexpected outcome of an undertaking upon which they had placed great reliance. A few days ago they were fearful that Bryan would refuse to make a speech such as the one he attempted to deliver today. And now, a few hours after his fatal remarks, they are bitterly sorry that he spoke at all.

Bryan and his advisers failed to take into account the interference of the gallery. Apparently no understanding existed with Chairman Walsh to force order. The threat he made two days ago under similar conditions to clear the galleries unless order could be restored, was not repeated and the crowd, seemingly confident of following its whims, went wild.

When a convention, following a recess of four hours, reassembled to resume balloting tonight every seat in this huge hall was filled, and the Smith forces were in the proportion of 10 to 1, and appeared eager for the fray. It seems probable that the New York Governor will reach his maximum showing tomorrow. After that the slow process of reaching a compromise with the McAdoo contingent will begin.

It is significant of the animosities aroused in this convention that none of the usual conferences and overtures ordinarily prevalent when a deadlock exists have yet developed even to the point of tentative maneuvering "feelers."

Boss Brennan of Illinois, Boss Taggart of Indiana, Boss Moore of Ohio and the half-dozen or more lesser bosses have not reached a point where they are willing to talk things over. Perhaps their reluctance is dictated by a fear that such a meeting might break up in a row greater than any that thus far has transpired.

In any event, this so-called independent, untrammeled and unterrified aggregation of irritated, gesticulating and, for the most part, ill-tempered, Democrats, appears to be the most boss-ruled assemblage that has ever congregated in the name of any great political party in the history of the country.

The whole thing is uninspiring and dispiriting. The demonstrations, with the exception of the anti-Klan outburst, have been artificial and openly stimulated. Of the endless speeches that have been forced upon the restless delegates, two only stand forth as really worth while. Not a single hat has been hurled away since the convention opened. What better could tell the story?

SAYS MISSOURI IS ANTI-M'ADOO

Senator Reed, Sick in Bed, Assails Californian

Faces Defeat in State Even Though Nominated

Doheny's Part in Oil Again Brought Into Play

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) July 3.—If William Gibbs McAdoo receives the Democratic nomination for President "his defeat in this State (Missouri) is as certain, as inevitable, as the sun shall arise and set upon election day," said Senator Reed of Missouri, in a statement issued from the sickroom here today.

The statement, replying to one made in New York last night by David Ladd Rockwell, campaign manager for Mr. McAdoo, said the people of Missouri "will not sanction the trial of Mr. Doheny for a high crime against the United States government and at the same time elect Doheny's attorney to the high office of President of the United States."

WARNS CONVENTION

"I solemnly state to the members of the convention," said Senator Reed, "that Mr. McAdoo is not the choice of the Democrats of Missouri for President; that if he is nominated his defeat in this State is certain, as inevitable as that the sun shall arise and set upon election day."

Replying to Mr. Rockwell's statement that charges preferred by Senator Reed against Mr. McAdoo had been found upon investigation "to be absolutely without foundation," the Missouri Senator said:

"The fact is I never made a charge against McAdoo which was disproved or which can be disproved. Indeed nearly everything I had to say about him was based on his own admission which he was forced to make in reply to charges advanced by others."

The Senator's statement reviewed charges which he previously has made against Mr. McAdoo, said he asked no sympathy because of his illness and asserted he would be "out in plenty of time to take a hand in the campaign."

TALKS OF ENEMIES

"I frankly admit that in the contest in Missouri my enemies centered against me all of their fire and that with the machinery completely in the hands of the McAdoo forces except in the two large cities they were able to elect a majority of the delegates inimical to me.

"But I also say that the original plan of the McAdoo forces was to have been an instructed delegation for McAdoo and were forced to abandon this plan."

FOUR RECORDS UNSHATTERED

Conventions of 1852, 1860, 1912 and 1920 Took More Ballots

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 3.—Previous high records in Democratic national conventions include four which the present convention has not yet shattered. They were:

1920—Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, selected on forty-fourth ballot at San Francisco.

The highest ballot record of the Republicans was in 1852, when the party was called Whig, and Gen. Winfield Scott was named on the fifty-third ballot.

made Minister of Finance with the additional post of Councillor of State. During the following ten years he remained in the post despite frequent Cabinet changes. One of his great steps in strengthening national finances was the organization of the Bank of Japan and of a stable currency system. He brought about the redemption of bonds issued by the state to feudal lords in payment of immense tracts of lands which they held in or near the big cities. He also established a series of national banks.

Historical, also, was his work in readjusting the paper currency. Paper money had fallen below par in consequence of excessive issue during the Civil War and Matsukata brought about a restoration of its value. A steady money market facilitated commercial and industrial development. It was during this period that many enterprises, notably railways, spinning and other manufacturing industries sprang up and prospered. Meanwhile the country's foreign commerce made a marked progress.

It was Matsukata who opened Japanese legations at New York, London and Lyons, the largest markets for Japanese exports at the time. He inaugurated the system of foreign export exchange as a means to encourage Japan's exports and to absorb specie from abroad in view of the scarce production of gold and silver in Japan. The policy proved a success. The government was able to accumulate about 43,000,000 yen species in the treasury at the end of 1885.

Matsukata's second ministry in 1896-97 again emphasized his right to be called the founder of Japanese finance, for it was then that he established a system of gold standard for the empire. He was Finance Minister in the succeeding Yamagata Cabinet and in 1902 traveled extensively through the United States and Europe. During the Russo-Japanese War he was made a Marquis for meritorious service, and some years later was appointed Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal. In 1922 he retired from the latter office and was elevated to the peerage, taking the title of Prince Matsukata.

Prince Matsukata was the head of a numerous family. It is generally believed that his children and grandchildren numbered between sixty and eighty. Several of his sons are leading figures in the Japanese business world.

HORTON RECEIVES HEARTY WELCOME

With Edward Everett Horton back on the stage of the Majestic it seems like old times around that playhouse. Perhaps no more popular move could have been made by Producer Thomas Wilkes than that of bringing back this popular young comedian who forsook the stage for the moving pictures with such excellent success.

Horton's reappearance last Sunday night was the occasion of one of the greatest demonstrations ever accorded a player in that house. In staging the comeback to the footlights, Owen Davis's New York success, "The Nervous Wreck," proves an ideal vehicle, for it gives Horton a splendid outlet for his inimitable comedy.

The actor, it will be remembered, was the leading man in the original production, although since the play was first produced here it has been revised and made better in many ways.

TRIXIE COMING TO PANTAGES THEATER

Trixie Friganza is playing an engagement in vaudeville at the Pantages Theater in San Diego, where reports indicate that she is scoring her usual and accustomed success. Next week she comes to the Pantages Theater here. Harry Breen has written a new act for the comedienne, to which she has given the title "My 1924 Bag o' Pep."

Six acts of vaudeville and pictures are announced for the supporting program at Pantages next week, including the Technicolor production, "The Uninvited Guest."

"Business Good" in Gasoline, but Buyers Don't Pay

"Business is good," said S. Lomax, attendant at a Shell Oil station at Valley Boulevard and Garfield avenue, as he finished pumping 100 gallons of gasoline in cans carried in a truck that had driven to the station. Two men in the truck said the gasoline was to be used on their ranch.

Lomax whistled a different tune when he returned from the rear of the station with some lubricating oil. The truck was gone.

"That'll take 'em a long way," Lomax opined, as he reported it to the police.

HOLD-UP CASE HEARING

The two suspects were identified by Mr. Crawford and Mr. Birnbaum as the pair who held them up in front of Justice Crawford's home recently and robbed them. A third suspect, Donald Kartangan, will have his preliminary hearing next Wednesday.

PLAY SEMIFINALS IN PACIFIC COAST DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP TODAY

KINSEY BROTHERS TRIM M'LOUGHLIN AND BUNDY

Snodgrass and Wesbrook Vanquish Sindorf and Warren in Fast Match on L.A.T.C. Court

BY BILL HENRY

Fur and feathers will fly at the Los Angeles Tennis Club this afternoon when the semifinal round of the Pacific Coast men's doubles championship will be played. In the upper half Snodgrass and Wesbrook will play Godshall and Ferrandini while in the lower segment Bob and Howard Kinsey, title holders in 1921, 1922 and 1923, will tangle with the winner between Neer and Davies and Bates and Allen. There is little affection wasted among any of the surviving teams and if yesterday's play is any criterion the cash customers should be rewarded with the finest exhibition of swatting seen in these parts since the last plague of mosquitoes.

From the standpoint of exciting tennis, the home talent fracas between Snodgrass and Wesbrook, L. A. Tennis Club champs, and Warren and Sindorf, runners-up for that title, won the hand-embroidered spittoon. Snodgrass and Wesbrook won, but not until they had failed their opponents into submission by means of devastating overhead wallops and tremendous volleys that brought vociferous applause from the galleries. The score was 6-4, 9-7, 6-4.

RARE FORM

Sindorf in particular was in rare form and continually forced the play. Warren and Snodgrass were almost up to par, while Wesbrook was brilliant overhead and not so good off the ground. In each set the slightest bit of luck turned the tide for the victors and the result was in doubt from the start. Warren and Sindorf played very fine tennis, and Snodgrass and Wesbrook showed greatly improved form, although they have yet to perfect their teamwork since reversing their positions on the court.

Tom Bundy and Maury McLoughlin made a noble stand against the champion Kinsey brothers in one of the best matches of the day. The Kinseys were badly in danger, but both Bundy and his red-headed partner showed an occasional flash of the power and finesse which made them one of the greatest doubles teams in tennis history. The Kinseys were playing tennis of a championship variety and much improved over their showing of the first days, the scores being 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Godshall and Ferrandini plugged their way into the semifinal round at the expense of Claude Wayne and Miles Reinke in a match which went four hard sets. Wayne, who is making his first appearance in tournament play in a good many years, held up his end in

TILDEN IS VICTOR IN TOURNEY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) July 2.—The western tennis tourney sifted down to the eight players seeded in the draw as the result of today's third-round matches, which although hotly contested, were devoid of upsets.

Winning from Ray Kunkel of Cincinnati in love sets, William T. Tilden, continued his spectacular march and stood tonight more of a favorite than ever to capture the title. Without exception the favorites all turned in straight sets victories today.

The best match of the day was between A. C. Chapin of Hyannis, Mass., and Alex Graves of Chicago. Graves took the first set, 6-4, but succumbed to Chapin's driving attack in the last two, 6-1, 6-1.

As the eight nationally and internationally known stars oppose each other Thursday in the last barrier before the semifinals, a day of tennis thrills seldom seen in a western tourney is promised. In one bracket, Tilden will meet George Lott of Chicago, national junior champion, and R. E. Schlesinger, the Australian, will oppose Chapin. In the other, John Hennessey, In-

WILL DEDICATE GOLF COURSE

Ceremonies at Warren Harding Links Tomorrow

Tablet to be Unveiled; City Title Tourney Opens

Gossip Gathered from the Country Clubs

BY CHARLES WEST

Chief among the many events scheduled for tomorrow in celebration of the glorious Fourth will be the dedication of the Warren G. Harding municipal links at Griffith Park. A tablet erected in memory of the late President will be unveiled, and appropriate addresses given by Mayor Cryer, Boyle Workman, C. W. Guerin, and Thomas P. White. J. H. Alvord will be in charge of the affair.

The dedication of the Los Angeles Municipal links to Warren G. Harding is most appropriate, in that golf had no more enthusiastic supporter than the late President. The change of the name of the course from the Riverside links was suggested primarily by Ike Wentworth, one of the most active officials of the municipal links.

Coincident with this ceremony will be the opening of the city golf championship tournament, tomorrow having been set aside for qualifying. Players will also be permitted to play their medal round Saturday or Sunday, match play beginning the 12th inst. and continuing a round a week until the finals. The public is invited to attend the dedication today, and to participate in the tournament.

HACIENDA

Indicating the wide popularity of golf with stars in other lines of sport, a foursome of old-time baseball players played the Hacienda Country Club links yesterday. Rube Ellis, who played with the St. Louis Cards and the Angels for years, and Jack Bliss, a former team-mate on the Cardinal nine played against San Crawford, former Detroit star, and Poll Perritt, one-time Angel sensation. Crawford twined in the best card of the day, according to Professional Harry Pressler, although none of the four would talk for publication.

MIDWICK

Professional Chick Fraser of the Midwick Country Club equalled his his own course record of 66 for the Midwick links yesterday. He started like a whirlwind, going out in 30, but came down to earth on the way in with a par 36.

F. F. Carpenter won Midwick's sweepstakes yesterday, finishing 4 up on par. J. M. Spalding was second, 2 up. Ball sweepstakes will occupy the attention of the holiday golfers tomorrow.

BRENTWOOD

Tom McCall, chairman of the green at the Brentwood Country Club, returned from an extended trip East yesterday, and is ready to get back into the harness again. His first duty will be to confer with the members of the tournament committee to set a date for Brentwood's invitation tournament, postponed from May.

A putting contest and sweepstakes over 18 and 36 holes will be in order tomorrow.

NEW GOLF SHOP

Fred Barber has opened a golf shop on West Eighth street. Barber is well known to Southern California golfers, having first attracted attention as a player when he was a high school boy, and has been a consistent contender in Southern California tournaments for several years.

Barber has a line of good domestic clubs and balls, in addition to a stock of golf accessories, and is enthusiastic over his early success as a merchant.

SAN GABRIEL

E. E. Bean led yesterday's low scores at the San Gabriel Country Club with a card of 81, C. D. Hagerman following with an 82. The hot weather has served to keep San Gabriel's usually well populated links quite empty during the past few days. A ball sweepstakes has been arranged to celebrate the Glorious Fourth.

PASADENA

Mel Smith, youthful professional at the Pasadena Golf Club, has been playing in form lately, as rounds of 68 and 69 would indicate. Smith startled the world in the State open last winter, although he slipped on the last day of play. He undoubtedly will keep the topnotchers worried next season.

Miss Margaret Cameron of Annandale played a round with C.

SOLONS WRECK VERNON TIGERS

Visitors Even Series With 13-to-5 Victory

Cadore and Vines Easy for Sacramento Crew

Bryan, New Bengal Twirler, Makes His Debut

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Ordinarily when a team gets seventeen hits and thirteen runs it wins the ball game and yesterday was no exception when the visiting Senators smeared base hits all over the landscape and slaughtered the Vernon Tigers, 13 to 5. The victory for the Sacramento outfit evened up the series.

Leon Cadore started on the mound for the locals and lasted just long enough for the Senators to rap him for three runs. Bob Vines relieved the former Brooklyn hurler in the first and pitched the second, third and fourth frames, during which time Col. Pick's cohorts from the heart of California scored nine runs.

BRYAN IN DEBUT

Ed Bryan, the young right-hander recently picked up by "Deacon" Van Buren from the Texarkana club of the East Texas League, hurled the final five innings for the home guards and looked by far the better of the trio of Bengal hurlers. Bryan made quite a hit with the fans, not only because of his good pitching but because of his hitting. The latest Bengal was up two times and gathered a single and a double, which is considered good batting by the best of men.

The veteran Charley Hall was the Sacramento hurler and Charley just coasted along after his mates had scored him enough runs to win several ball games. Hall was rapped for eleven safeties, but managed to tighten up in the pinches when he so desired.

Sacramento hopped out in front in the opening inning by slugging Cadore for a trio of markers in a manner yet to be described. After McNeely had grounded out, Merlin Kopp singled infield and rambled to third on Hemingway's single to right. Bobby Schang walked, filling the bases. Then Smith hit a sacrifice fly to Chadbourne, Kopp scoring after the catch. Paddy Siglin scored Hemingway with a single to center and Mollwitz drove Schang over and sent Siglin to third with a single to right. Right here Vines relieved Cadore. Siglin and Mollwitz pulled off a double steal, the former scoring, but Umpire Joe Becker, much to Col. Pick's outspoken anger, sent the runners back to third and first

BERKELEY STAR DOWNS BRITON

American Champion Wins — Tilt by 6-2, 6-1 Score

Mrs. Satherthwaite Victim of California Girl

Yankee Meets Miss McKane for British Crown

BY JOHN STEELE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

WIMBLEDON, July 2.—Miss Helen Wills, American tennis star, will meet Miss Kathleen McKane of Great Britain in the final round of the women's singles competition in the Wimbledon tournament.

The tragedy of Suzanne Lenglen's health conceded Miss McKane the place in the finals. Miss Wills reached that stage in a fine victory over Mrs. Phyllis Satherthwaite of Great Britain, 6-2, 6-1.

On the way to the finals Miss Wills won five matches with a total loss of eleven games, an average just over two matches and so far no one has won three games from the American woman in a set.

With Mrs. Satherthwaite today Miss Wills curbed aggression and was content to rely mainly on placing both ground strokes and volleys. She gave what may be termed a slow-motion picture on how to play tennis, for she made strokes with calm deliberation contrasting the strenuous efforts of Mrs. Satherthwaite to reach the well-controlled drives. Mrs. Satherthwaite, whose only chance for success was supreme steadiness, was steady at good length when she could reach the ball, but Miss Wills, who excelled in the backhand, found frequent opportunities of going to the net for decisive low volleys and excellent smashes the direction of which she concealed after a manner of Norman Brookes.

INTERESTING DOUBLES

The remainder of the program today comprised interesting doubles matches. The first match on the center court saw the South African Davis Cup players, L. H. Raymond and P. D. B. Spence do practically as they pleased against R. F. Kingscote and G. B. Gilbert of England, who usually play a special singles game, but do not make a good doubles pair. After winning the first set, 6-2, the South Africans eased up and allowed the Englishmen to gain a 5-2 lead in the second set, but recovered brilliantly, Raymond volleying well with Spence's powerful overhead. They won eight successive games and secured the second set, 7-5. They took the lead in the third set, 3-0. Kingscote and Gilbert were at their best while winning the next two games,

ROYALTY WILL SEE OLYMPICS

Members of Seven Ruling Families to be on Hand for Meeting Opening

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, July 2. — A fair idea of the interest throughout the world in the Olympic Games may be gained from the announcement that seven royalties belonging to ruling families in Europe, Asia and Africa, the President of the French Republic and all the important officials of the French government will attend the opening ceremony at the stadium in Colombes next Saturday.

The phrase "opening ceremony" is a little misleading, even though it is used in the official announcements. The occasion on Saturday is the rite of inauguration for the so-called big week of the track-and-field events, which alone count in the final classification, rather than the ushering in of the Eighth Olympiad. The latter ceremony was held months ago. The winter sports, the Rugby and soccer matches and the rifle shooting, all of which belong to the Olympic sports, have already been contested and the fencing and the polo matches are now in progress.

Just at present polo is the biggest attraction. With great ease the United States has beaten France and Spain. To-

RAIN HALTS TRACKMEN

Bad Weather Prevents All of Yankee Olympic Team But Swimmers From Working Out

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, July 2.—Rain and official functions combined today to put the training of the American Olympic athletes into the background temporarily. The first bad weather encountered since the team left the United States kept all but the swimmers idle most of the day while a formal luncheon tendered by the American Olympic committee to a notable assemblage of international Olympic authorities and other prominent personages including Marshal Foch, at Rocquencourt, gave the social activities precedence over the athletic preparations.

So completely did the formal gathering occupy the scene at Rocquencourt that the team's dining-quarters were taken over to provide for 250 guests, the athletes being sent to Versailles for luncheon. After luncheon the guests were entertained with a brief workout of the boxers and wrestlers and inspected the American camp.

IN GOOD SHAPE

The track-and-field squad appeared in excellent condition after yesterday's hard workout and Coach Robertson was satisfied to give the men only light exercise to avoid stiffness. He plans to resume hard training tomorrow. The Finns, who evidently believe in the theory of uninterrupted hard work, again went through their paces today.

The Americans are not the only team to be handicapped by injuries, according to information reaching the American head coach, the crack British distance runner Cottrell, who was counted to score in the 5000 and 10,000-meter events, was badly hurt in an accident just before the British trials and was therefore, eliminated from competition, while Guy Butler of Oxford, a 400-meter star, is suffering from an injured tendon. A further misfortune has happened to the British, Coach Robertson says he has been informed, through the disqualification as an amateur of Griffiths, a half-miler, because he had accepted compensation for a race eight years ago.

The swimmers at Les Tourelles held trials to determine the entries in the several events which close tomorrow. Marie Chen Wehselau, the young Hawaiian girl, sprang a surprise by conquering Gertrude Ederle, the world's record holder, at 100 meters, free style. Miss Ederle finished third, being beaten also by Ethel Laskie of Chicago. The time of the winner was 1m. 12 4-5s. which bettered the Olympic record by 2-5 of a second, and was only 3-5 of a second short of Miss Ederle's world mark.

Elizabeth Becker, Atlantic City, clinched a place in the women's high diving, beating out Alma Mant of Panama, in competition for the third entrant place.

In the trials for men, 200 meters breast stroke, Ralph H. Breyer, Northwestern University, made the best time, 2m. 22 3-5s.

CARS RACE ON RIVAL ROUTES

Result to Determine Easiest Route From Tonopah

Drivers Expected to Uncork Wild Speed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BISHOP, July 2.—Arrangements are complete for the Fourth of July inter-State automobile race from Tonopah, Nev., to Big Pine and Bishop, and the start will be from the Western Union office at 6 a.m. It will be a fierce desert and mountain motor test to determine the relative merits of two passes leading from the East into California — Montgomery and Westgard.

Lemoyne A. Hazard of Bishop, champion of Montgomery and challenger for a run to demonstrate the better of the two ways, takes that route with a Dodge stock touring car and gives his opponent a handicap of sixteen miles, the distance from Tonopah to Big Pine via Westgard being that much less. Big Pine, so strong for Westgard that it seeks to divert all tourist travel that way, could find no driver in that town willing to defend the summit with his car, but engaged Joe Riley of Bishop to tackle the job with the Chrysler six. It will be by far the toughest grind any auto of that new make has been subjected to. Riley, a fast pilot, will be accompanied by Ralph Higgins of Big Pine. Roy Dodson and his Jewett are out of it.

Hazard will have 154 miles to go against Riley's 138, sixteen in each case being the additional distance to this city, where a second finish will be staged as a holiday feature. No more daring man than Hazard ever handled a wheel and he never has been defeated in a cross-country contest. Seven or eight years ago he and Riley clashed in a dash from here to Big Pine, Hazard giving a mile handicap and winning by two and a half. Riley hasn't forgotten—and Big Pine isn't paying him to lose for Westgard. The wildest speed ever seen on rough desert roads is expected. Montgomery Highway is scarcely more than a trail and there is many miles of splendid track the other way, through Goldfield, but the various high summits via Westgard are wretched going, both up and down. On Montgomery but one is to be crossed and the grade is extremely easy.

Rivalry is by no means confined to the racers but is even more keen between the proponents of the respective passes, over which thousands of transcontinental tourists to and from Southern California motor annually. Should the race prove Montgomery to be the easier and faster there may be a great change in the movement of travel, for Nevada is about to put that route in excellent condition, whereas an enormous sum would have to be expended to shape up Westgard for comfortable and economical usage, according to its critics. The race will be widely interesting.

noble fashion and after dropping the first set to the favorites, 6-3, Wayne and Reinke pulled the next one at 7-5. Godshall and Ferrandini settled down to work, however, and ran out the last two sets 6-4, 6-2.

FIVE SETS

Wally Bates, former University of California captain, and Bob Allen, likewise a former Bear player, qualified for the round before the semifinals by defeating Horace Donnell and Clarence Barker in the first five-set match of the tournament. Bates and Allen started rather uncertainly and wobbled at frequent intervals until each team had won two sets. Then the two tall boys pulled themselves together and ran away with the final set, dropping only one game.

Neer and Davies faced Bates and Allen in a sort of a twilight league battle to reach the semifinals. It was a renewal of the old Stanford-California enmity. Neer and Davies started badly and dropped the first set at 7-5. They bucked up and captured the next two and seemed to have a sure lead in the fourth set at 4-2, only to lose their margin. Bates and Allen finally won the set at 7-5. The final set will be played this morning.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Kinsey and Kinsey defeated Cobbs and Cobbs, 1-2, 6-3, 6-1.
Godshall and Ferrandini defeated Reinke and Wayne, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.
Sinnott and Warren defeated Callahan and Bowen, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.
Bates and Allen defeated Barlow and Donnell, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1.
Kinsey and Kinsey defeated McLoughlin and Bundy, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.
Snodgrass and Washrock defeated Sinnott and Warren, 6-4, 9-7, 6-4.
Davies and Neer vs. Bates and Allen. The score was two sets each. Davies and Neer lost the first set, 5-7, and won the second, 6-3, won the third, 8-6, and lost the fourth, 7-5.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE OF PLAY

10 a.m.—The deciding set of the Davies and Neer vs. Bates and Allen will be played.
2 p.m.—Snodgrass and Washrock vs. Godshall and Ferrandini.
3 p.m.—Exhibition mixed doubles.
4 p.m.—Kinsey and Kinsey vs. winner Davies and Neer vs. Bates and Allen.

TWO YACHT RACES ON SOUTHLAND CARD

The Southland Sailing Club has a pair of yacht races scheduled for the July 4th celebration at 1:30 o'clock. Both races will be over the inside course of Balboa Bay.

Boats of all sizes are eligible for the first junior race. Handicaps will be given according to the San Diego rules. The second race is open to all boats of the Marion class.

THE HEAD "WEIGHTER"

BY FEG MURRAY

Among America's Olympians of 1924 will be found a modest, unassuming youth who answers to the name of "Tiny" Hartranft, and who is doped to win fifteen or twenty points for the United States in the weight-throwing events. They call him "Tiny" because he is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 200 pounds, and they count on him for at least a first and a second place in the games, because he has put the shot and thrown the discus farther than any man living.

Tiny is a student at Stanford University. Accounts came out of the west off and on through the spring of a blonde giant who put the shot 50ft. 11½in. and threw the discus 154ft. 4½in., but the East didn't pay much attention to these records until the I.C.A.A.A.A. games at the Harvard stadium. There Tiny proceeded to break records right and left, defeating the renowned Hills of Princeton in the shotput with a heave of 49ft. 5⅞in. and winning the discus with a throw of 155ft. 8in. The latter mark, a new world's record, was not allowed, however, because it was possibly aided by the wind.

Hartranft developed suddenly in 1922 from a mediocre weight man to one of the best in world through the coaching of the country's youngest track coach, "Dink" Templeton. In spite of his size, he has run 100 yards in 10 seconds in college dual meets, and it is his speed, as much as his form and strength, that enables him to achieve such remarkable distances with the shot and discus.

OBSERVATIONS

BY BILL HENRY

They're going to have to get the pulmotor out for the benefit of Jack Dempsey if somebody doesn't dig up some good heavyweight prospects pretty soon. The heavyweight situation is so bad that pretty soon Jack will have to get busy and develop some rivals himself. The present crop of heavyweights either can't fight or won't, and it looks as though they are going to leave it strictly up to Mr. Dempsey to develop his own victims. Nobody else seems to give a whoop whether Dempsey ever fights or not, and Jack is going to have to go into the heavyweight-breeding business in self-defense.

When a prominent New York sporting writer who has been extremely close to Dempsey and Kearns sprang the idea a few months ago of getting up a heavyweight tournament with a view to developing three heavies worth taking over to Europe and pitting them against the best over there, a whole lot of people had more than a suspicion that Dempsey and Kearns were behind the proposition. Nothing would be more natural.

The scheme fell through because apparently there wasn't any such animal as a good young heavyweight prospect, but sooner or later one of 'em will be dug up and then you will see the frantic excitement to sign him up against Dempsey. With Dempsey in existence nobody will pay a dime to see any other heavyweight fight, and the only way a heavy can get enough money to make fighting worth while is to fight the champion. Fight the champ and the money-making days are over. So where is he?

If Dempsey expects to be able to draw down a huge sum of money every time he fights, his opponent must be carefully "built up" in the public estimation until a good percentage of the prospective spectators really think he has a chance. This is a mighty difficult job with a bunch of hams like the present-day crop of heavies. And yet, the fact that is can be accomplished is shown by the enormous gates that greeted some of the terrible battlers who were fanned to sleep by the champ in a few seconds of battling.

If Dempsey would wander around taking on all comers, just as John L. Sullivan and most of the old-timers did, there would spring up challengers all over the country. Most of them would be rotten but some hidden wonder might be located who would really prove capable of giving the title holder a real fight. If it could be done, it would be worth the effort. If it couldn't be done, nobody would be the worse off for it.

A lot of people seem to have been worrying for fear America is going to get murdered—or rather, drowned—in the Olympic swimming meet. Such people should be reassured. We might possibly be nosed out and we will undoubtedly get some red-hot competition, but we won't be left in the lurch completely. Sweden and Australia are the two leading rivals for the Olympic swimming honors.

Fortunately for us, Sweden and Australia will probably be busy cutting each other's throats in the long races while we are cleaning up in the sprints. It doesn't seem possible that we can lose either the 100 or 200-meter events and Johnny Weissmuller is going to be awfully hard to lick in the 400 and 800 meters, despite the ability of Borg of Sweden and Charlton and Beaurepaire of Australia. The Swedes will shine in the diving.

It is noted with interest that Charley Paddock is reported as having been handicapped in training over at Paris because he was saving his long spiked shoes for the actual races. This may not mean much to a lot of people, but it does mean something to Charley for it shows that he hasn't forgotten a lesson he learned in the 1920 Olympics at Antwerp.

At Antwerp, Paddock won the 100 meters by a whisker from his old rival, Morris Kirksey, but when Paddock was nosed out by Allan Woodring, a rank outsider, in the furlong, everyone lifted their eyebrows and asked "How come?" Charley explained it on his return by telling how the coaches, in passing out the shoes, thoughtfully provided Woodring, a special pet, with a pair having long spikes, while Paddock was given some of the short variety. The track was sloppy the day of the furlong finals and Woodring beat Charley by an eyelash in slow time. Evidently Charley isn't going to let anybody do that to him again.

morrow the Americans will meet the British and on Sunday the Argentinians. This latter match is expected to afford a more exciting exhibition of horsemanship than has ever been seen on the continent of Europe. HUNTINGTON PARK, July 2.—Accepting the challenge from the Bell Kiwanis Club to a game of tennis on the local courts, the tennis players of the Huntington Park club met the Bell Kiwanians in their first game, which resulted in Mack Brawley, president of the local club, defeating Ray Chesley, president of the Bell club, by 6-1 and 6-3. Al Foulke defeated Downing of Bell, 6-3 and 6-3. In the doubles Chesley and Downing of Bell were defeated by Brawley and Colegrove, 6-4, 6-2 and 8-6. The winners have accepted an invitation to play at Bell within the next ten days.

Tolley Wins French Open Golf Crown

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LA BOULE (France) July 2.—Cyril Tolley, star British amateur golfer, won the French open championship decided here today, with a total of 290 for the seventy-two holes of medal play. Walter Hagen, the American professional, holder of the British open championship, finished second with a total of 293.

Tolley's cards for the four rounds were 73-73-71 and 73. Hagen, less consistent, was most brilliant at the finish. After rounds of 75 and 72 yesterday, he fell off in this morning's round and took a 77. This afternoon he pulled out of the ruck with a 69 for the last eighteen holes, the low record mark for the tournament.

TODAY'S GAME

Clarke Nicholson vs. the Motion Picture Players' Association.

F. A. Hartwell's Oak Crest Indians lost another tough game last night in the Hollywood Twilight League to the Lounsberry and Harris Lumber Company by a score of 4-3.

It was a tough game for the Hartwells to lose, as the lumberjacks did not earn a run. In the first inning after two were down Stalcup and Bennett made errors and after they threw the ball away, two hits brought four runs across the plate. After the first inning the Lounsberry and Harris nine were never in danger of scoring.

Both Payne and Shubin pitched good ball, the former having the best of the pitchers' battle. The game was played in fifty-five minutes. This is the second time that Hartwell's baseball nine has played a game in less than one hour.

The hitting of Stalcup and Larson for the losers and the pitching of Shubin were the features of the game.

The Twilight League baseball fans will have the opportunity to see the Clarke and Nicholson team in action this afternoon when they meet the Motion-Picture Players' Association in an independent game. This is the first game for the Realtors and all teams are anxious to see just how good they are. Score:

GEORGE C. CALAN WINS WITH FOILS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, July 2. — George C. Calan, United States Navy, and Larraso of Argentine, today won their way into the third round of the semifinals in the individual foils of the Olympic fencing championship.

Both American entrants, Miss Adelaine Gehrig and Mrs. C. H. Harper of New York, were eliminated from the women's fencing competition of the Olympic Games.

Because the Royal English Henley regatta and the Olympic festival occur so closely together the entries for the Thames events are reported much below the average, and it is said that there will be no foreign entries for the Grand Challenge Cup, the eight-oared contest. The finals for the Grand Challenge Cup will be rowed July 5. Heats for the Olympic event will start July 10. It is stated that Mellon, the Oxford stroke, was named pace setter of the Leander eight, but if the crew should win the eights race and thus qualify for the trip to Paris Mellon, an American, would be ineligible.

COMES DIRECT FROM FLAT BUSH

Here's Frankie Pitcher of Brooklyn, who faces Johnny Adams in main event at Hollywood American Legion Stadium tomorrow night.

Adams Ready to Touch Off the Fireworks

Manager Si Masters of the Hollywood American Legion arena, announced last night that the regular weekly boxing show will be staged as usual tomorrow night.

Johnny Adams, one of the principals in the main event at the Hollywood American Legion boxing show, always did have a reputation for being kind hearted and he is living up to it by storing up all kinds of fireworks for the benefit of Frankie Pitcher, a newcomer from the East, who is the other principal. Frankie has not had time to get settled in our fair city as yet, so Johnny is going to help him celebrate July Fourth in a suitable manner.

In the semi-wind-up, Tommy Carter and Johnny Drew will trade the leather for the space of four rounds. Drew is also from the frifild east, and has a good record in that section of these United States. Matchmaker Tom Kennedy has seen Drew in action and says his speed and endurance should make him a winner in the four-round game.

The special event is being taken care of by Jimmy Lanning and Solly Seaman. Both ends of this event are lightweights who know what to do and when to do it, so it is freely predicted that the fracas will be worth watching. The rest of the card:

Kid Williams vs. Jack Herrick, 160 pounds.

Billy Ryan vs. Young Nino, 118 pounds.

Young Sperling vs. Toby Montoya, 122 pounds.

Johnny Welch vs. Joe Banda, 130 pounds.

but they were then well beaten, Raymond and Spence gaining the set and match, 6-3.

Three pairs reached the semifinal in this event. R. N. Williams and William Washburn beat S. C. Kingsley and J. C. Mastermann, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4, not being seriously extended. It was the greater pace and all-around tactical ability of the Americans that proved the decisive factor. They now have to meet the holders, R. Lycett and L. A. Godfree, who beat M. M. Alonso and L. M. Alonso by 6-4, 6-4, 9-7.

YANKEES TRIUMPH

In the lower half America was represented in the semifinal by Vincent Richards and F. T. Hunter, who dropped a set to the third pair of Great Britain internationals, Max Woosnam and J. D. P. Wheatley.

The first set went to America easily, 6-3. They, like the South Africans, recovered from 2-5 to win the second set by 7-5. So far Hunter has been the prominent figure, but he eased up, and Woosnam and Wheatley came into their own and volleyed decisively winning the third set, 6-3. In the fourth set Richards justified the title of one of the first volleyers in the world and ran the tide in favor of America, who won the fourth and deciding set by 6-4.

Egypt has entered the road and track bicycle races of the Olympic Games.

CLIFF BERGERE LATE ENTRANT

Duray's Conqueror to Race at Culver City

Qualifying Trials for 100-Mile Grind Held

Track Record is Equaled by New Speed Demon

Cliff Bergere, conqueror of Leon Duray in the recent dirt track race at Bakersfield, entered the July 4 Independence Sweepstakes on the Culver City Speedway late yesterday and finished first in the qualifying trials with a tremendous burst of speed in his big Miller No. 9, that equaled the track record of 46.2s. Bergere's entry was the sensation of the day, and many regarded him as a favorite to win the 100-mile grind over the one-mile dirt track on Friday.

After he finished his qualifying lap, Bergere declared that he will smash Babe Stapp's official track record in his first lap Friday.

A thrilling death grapple for supremacy now looms between Bergere, Fred Frame and Steve Elmore, who made the fastest qualifying times yesterday. Elmore, winner of the Decoration Day race at San Luis Obispo, rambled around the wide curves and down the long straightaways at a fast clip, making a lap in 47s. He was at the wheel of his Miller No. 4. Frame's time was 46.3 seconds.

Yesterday marked the first appearance on the Culver City track of both Bergere and Elmore.

John Kay drove his Edmiller Special into a place among the sixteen which will start in Friday's race. Kay was attempting a comeback after an absence of more than ten years from the track. Floyd Roberts made fast qualifying time in an Essex No. 47.

A surprising number of cars turned out for the qualifying trials. Where only thirty-five had entered before yesterday, more than fifty were on hand to make an attempt to qualify. Many of these had never been seen on local tracks and they came out in all kinds of cars. Some qualified and some did not, but those who failed announced that they would enter the ten-mile handicap race.

Babe Stapp, Eddie Winfield, Eddie Myers, Earl Myers, Jack Petticord and Leigh Green, whose cars were not ready yesterday, will be given a chance to qualify this morning and will move into the places of those whose time they better.

The winner of the 100-mile race will be given $300 in cash and the Green Mill trophy, which is to be presented by Ora Carewe, film beauty. Marguerite De la Motte, also a film star, will act as honorary started.

The following have qualified:

Al Miller and Rossi Mix in Duel on Mound

A battle between two of the classiest portsiders in Southern California's semipro ranks will be staged at the Shell Oil Park Sunday afternoon when that squad tackles the fast-stepping Hammond Lumber Company aggregation in one of the feature struggles of the Independent ball league schedule.

Al Miller, who formerly worked for the Vernon club, is billed to go on the mound for the Hammonds, while Rossi will pitch for the ollers. At the present time the teams are tied for first place in the loop with seven wins and two defeats.

Larry Arnold's Sawtelle squad, which is out of first place for the first time since the loop started play, meets the Palms-Culver City nine at Sawtelle in the second game of the afternoon. The latter squad lost a tough-luck argument to Ventura Sunday, 3 to 2.

The third game in the Independent League will be played at Ventura, where that squad will meet the Belvedere Gardens team. The latter outfit is now in third place, one game behind Sawtelle.

BELMAR WINNER OF BIG FEATURE RACE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NORTH RANDALL (O.) July 2. Belmar, owned by Taylor and Bowman, Memphis, Tenn., won the Ohio purse $5000 feature of today's grand circuit card here in straight heats. Marmaduke was second and Trumpet third. Best time 2:06 1-3.

ZBYSZKO ONCE WRESTLED FOR HIS LIFE AND WON

When Stanislaus Zbyszko faces Yussif Hussane across the mat at the Philharmonic Auditorium, next Wednesday night, the Turk's looks may remind him of the time, a few years ago, when he wrestled for the most valuable purse of all his eventful career—his life.

Just after the overthrow of the Imperial Russian government, Zbyszko was in Russia and being a Pole was thrown into prison on general principles. While in prison it was learned by the Bolsheviki who their prisoner was, and the nights being very dull, the Bolsheviki officer put on a wrestling show for the benefit and edification of his soldiers.

By way of making things interesting he announced that all the losers would be shot in the morning. For the giant Pole, he picked an equally giant Russian wrestler, selected a referee, gave the men all night and told them to go to it.

Through two long hours the men grappled. Life was as sweet to one as the other, and the Russian officer was good for his promise. Zbyszko had not been wrestling, and was not in training and says he still remembers the feeling of exhaustion that began to come upon him.

Finally, with both men's muscles aching and tired, with their breath coming in painful gasps, Zbyszko hooked his arm through his opponent's, and, with a terrific lunge, put his man on the mat with force enough to knock him unconscious. The Russian was executed in the morning. Zbyszko heard the shots.

Later, he was released and escaped into Austria, and thence to Paris. Wednesday night, he wrestles Hussane for a big purse, but that hazy bout in the Russian prison camp had the biggest prize at stake.

Other bouts are: Jim Londos and Emil Maupa, Grecian and French champions, and Sonza Kozak (not a new drink) and Ali Ben Ali, of Armenia and Turkey. Ali is going to perpetrate another Armenian massacre, he says.

with the announcement that time had been called just before the play started. After much wrangling between Pick and Becker, Pick subsided just when Joe was about to kick him out of the pastime. Siglin and Mollwitz again tried to work the double steal, but Hannah trapped Siglin off third to end the inning.

TIGERS GET PAIR

Vernon got a pair in its half of the first on singles by Kimmick and Blakesley, a walk to Hannah, and Rod Murphy's double to right with the bases full. Hannah was caught at the plate trying to score on Murphy's two-base wallop.

Sacramento got one off Vines in the second, three more in the third and a cluster of five in the fourth. Claude Rohwer's home run over the left-field fence with two men on accounted for three of the five in the Solon's big inning.

Rohwer had a perfect day at bat, getting a single, double and a home run in three times up and drove in four runs. The Sacramento third-sacker retired with an injured leg in the last of the fifth. Hemingway shifting from short to third and "Cooey" McGinnis filling in at short for the remainder of the contest.

At the close of the game Howard Lorena, secretary of the Vernon club, announced that Saturday, July 12, had been set aside as Chadbourne Day, in honor of the veteran Bengal outfielder, Chet Chadbourne. Chadbourne has been in organized baseball for twenty years and is the oldest man in the Coast League. He has been with the Vernon club for eight years and President Ed Maier decided to have a Chadbourne Day to show his appreciation for Chad's consistent good work for the Tigers.

JURY DODGING NEEDS REMEDY

Aversion to Serve Found to be General

Litigants Largely at Mercy of Professionals

Students of Problem Blame Mr. Average Man

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 2. — The jury in a criminal case recently returned a verdict of acquittal which the trial judge denounced as the most foolish verdict of which he had ever heard. Another eminent jurist complains that there is at the present time an apparent unwillingness on the part of juries to convict, especially to return verdicts calling for the death penalty, and says that the only possible explanation for this is that it is a reaction in the jury box of the general disregard for law that seems to pervade the country.

In one criminal case it was found necessary to summon 650 talesmen before a jury of twelve could be secured to try the defendant. In a civil case involving the rights of a railroad 1200 talesmen were summoned.

These incidents and facts are cited as evidence that something is wrong, not with our jury system, but with the way the system functions under present-day conditions. Men who are studying the problem say that the trouble lies with Mr. Average Citizen.

DODGING GENERAL

Most Americans who would fight for their right to a trial by jury, which is guaranteed them by the Federal Constitution, are exceedingly reluctant to do their duty when some one else invokes that right and they are summoned to jury duty. This aversion to serving on a jury is sometimes due to a dislike of assuming the responsibility for settling questions affecting the liberty or property rights of others. More often it is due to the feeling the average man has that he cannot afford to sacrifice the time from his business or professional work that jury service entails. But whatever the excuse, jury dodging has grown to serious proportions, especially in the larger cities.

The citizen who evades military duty when his country calls for fighting men is denounced as a slacker and held in general contempt. Citizens who can and do not vote at primaries and elections are being subjected to criticisms almost as harsh for their failure to discharge the fundamental obligation of citizenship, and now those who evade jury duty are coming in for their share of opprobrium.

MANY CALLED

Commissioner of Jurors Frederick O'Bryne of New York is authority for the statement that in the five counties comprising that city, 53,000 men served on the various juries other than Federal juries. An equal number were excused from jur duty for legitimate reasons, and more than 100,000 were summoned and examined before the 53,000 who served were selected. The commissioner says that citizens of intelligence and education know far more about how to sidestep jury duty than they do about performing it, or about their obligation to perform it.

His experience has led him to suggest the advisability of having classes in jury duty in all colleges and universities and the making of a special drive to impress upon the average citizen his responsibility for upholding the jury system. Citizens shrink from jury duty, he says, largely because many of them are not made to realize that it is an honor and obligation of citizenship.

SCHOOL INSTRUCTION

"That is why I should like to see college students instructed in the subject of jury duty," says Commissioner O'Bryne. "Many are called who do not know what is required of them. Students could be taught, and there are many books which they could read on what is required of a juror. They should be made to realize that the Constitution of the United States provides for the jury system and that it is with us to stay. The course should not be one of occasional lectures, but of constant lectures and recitations, as in any other college course. The student would then emerge from college with a sense of citizenship that is not felt by men who fail to appreciate the necessity in the public interest of their service in the jury box."

There are certain classes of citizens who are exempt from jury duty in most States, including clergymen, physicians, dentists, pharmacists, veterinaries, optometrists, attorneys, teachers, editors, reporters, Federal, State, county and city officials, foreign consuls, captains, engineers and pilots of vessels, superintendents, engineers and conductors on railroads, telegraph operators for press associations and railroads, election inspectors and clerks, and all persons who are physically incapacitated for jury service.

FLIMSY EXCUSES

Excuses that are offered in the effort to avoid jury duty are often of the flimsiest character. Some men seem to think that the mere fact that they do not want to serve is sufficient reason for their being excused, while pressure of business, sickness in the family and sudden calls out of town are always being heard by the court.

Most men who have been arrested for violations of the law are exceedingly anxious to conceal that fact, but when they think that it may help them escape jury service they have been known to relate their delinquencies eagerly if not pridefully. And in this day and age of the ubiquitous automobile and the equally unbiquitous traffic cop it is the rare individual who has not been arrested at least once. However, arrests for speeding and similar violations of traffic regulations do not suffice to keep a man out of the jury box.

The jury is the characteristic feature of English or common law, and distinguishes it from the systems of continental Europe derived from the law of the Roman Empire. Originally juries were composed of all those persons who had knowledge of the subject matter. They were summoned into court to state upon their solemn oath what the common opinion of the neighborhood was as to those facts which formed the basis of the criminal charge to be tried, or the basis of the right to possession or enjoyment of land or other property which was at issue, such being the typical cases of early days.

It soon became a matter of general acceptance that the testimony or opinions of twelve substantial men would be sufficient to establish the facts in a given case and to insure justice and fair dealing, hence the idea of the jury of twelve "good men and true."

As the judicial system grew, however, the courts came to have more and more extended territorial jurisdiction, litigation grew more extensive, and it was soon found that the attendance of twelve persons acquainted with the facts of each case to be tried would be unduly burdensome, if not impossible in many instances.

Out of this situation grew the plan of submitting legal controversies to the decision of an impartial jury sworn to determine the facts after all the testimony had been presented by witnesses who are sworn to tell "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."

In the early days men who served on juries prided themselves upon their importance in the community and upon the fact that they were rendering a real public service. Unhappily those days are passed and today litigants are largely at the mercy of professional jurymen, of which every community has its quota, and of citizens impressed into jury duty against their will and who, therefore, are apt to be in an unjudicially indignant frame of mind.

MOORS IN HEAVY ATTACK

Bombing Planes Used by Spaniards as Tribesmen Strike Along Front of Sector

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MADRID, July 2.—It is officially announced that the Spanish army in Western Morocco has been attacked along the whole line of the Tetuan sector, by Moors coming from the districts of Riff and Gomara.

The communiques do not give the exact number of losses, but the Moors lost more than 100, who were killed yesterday. The Spanish army was assisted by bombing planes over the Moorish lines.

The importance of this engagement resides in the fact that Western Morocco has been peaceful for years, and the outbreak of the rebellion there aggravates the situation, by compelling the Spaniards to fight all along the line with the exception of Raisuli's district, behind Tangier.

The directorio has issued an official note to the press as follows:

"The directorio is anxious to inform the public that it does not wish to conceal now that the state of affairs in the western zone of Morocco is aggravated by the rebellion of several tribes and by the presence of large detachments of Riffian and Gomara tribesmen in Platean Laut, which makes provisioning and communications with Spanish troops difficult. To restore normality our troops are attacking the Moorish positions all along the lines."

It is reliably reported that Gen. Berenguer, who was removed from service by a decree of the Supreme Court-martial, will be pardoned and restored to command in Morocco by order of Primo De Rivera. Berenguer was condemned for alleged negligence in causing the disaster in 1921, but it is generally recognized that he is the most competent commander in the Moroccan situation and as openly stated affairs are going from bad to worse since he left command in 1921.

DAWES VICTORY BOOM TO PIPES

His "Upside Down" Variety in Great Demand

Underslung Type is Popular With the General

Nomination Brings Maker Flood of Orders

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 2.—The nomination of Gen. Dawes for Vice-President has resulted in a tremendous rush of business for C. H. Lyon, the real estate man, who manufactures the peculiar "upside down" pipe, which is the constant companion of Gen. Dawes. Every mail brings many orders and the little factory is going night and day to meet the demand.

The underslung pipe was born of an idea Mr. Lyon had one night when his smoking was interrupted by one of those cataclysmic disturbances within the stem of the pipe, which for centuries has been the bane of pipe smokers. Mr. Lyon set out to construct a backfire-proof pipe, guaranteed to deliver only dry smoke from the stem. Then he saw a picture of Gen. Dawes in a magazine. He was holding a straight-stemmed pipe in such manner that Mr. Lyon knew the general must be an inveterate smoker, so he sent him one of the underslung pipes, with instructions to send back a check if he liked it, or if he did not, to return it and explain why. Soon thereafter Gen. Dawes sent him a check for a dozen pipes and since has been buying them in lots of one dozen to three dozen to give to his friends. The bowl of the pipe is of French briar, and the outer bowl is of mahogany, wild ivy or mountain laurel. It extracts all the moisture from the smoke and deliveres it through the stem as dry gas.

RUM "KING" ELUDES PRISON

"Butch" Crowley, Convicted Liquor Peddler, Enjoys Princely Freedom, Officials Hear

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 2.—"Butch" Crowley, son of the Joliet (Ill.) dogcatcher, who made a million by violating the prohibition laws, is joyriding in his Rolls-Royce and taking in the ball games instead of doing penance behind the walls of the house of correction, according to information furnished by Federal detectives.

Richard C. Burfrill, Crowley's partner in the booze business, was sharing in this good time until he overtaxed the good nature of some of the prison officials by staying away overnight.

"Butch" Crowley will be recalled as the man who rose from poverty to immense riches almost overnight. He built a mansion and furnished all the doors with solid gold knobs. He was blackballed by an exclusive club, bought up the stock and closed the club. He bought five or six breweries, purchased a big fleet of trucks and pleasure cars, employed high-priced booze-running gangs, purchased various officials and a crew of gunmen and his net income was running about $300,000 a year when the government stepped in and ordered him and his partner to jail for six months.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SEVERE SHAKE-UP IN FOREIGN SERVICE

RECLASSIFICATION FROM TOP TO BOTTOM IS ANNOUNCED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, July 2.—An unprecedented shake-up in the foreign service was announced today by the State Department under authority of the recently enacted Rogers bill for reorganization of consular and diplomatic activities. Retirement for age and resignations removed sixty names from the permanent rolls and in addition a reclassification from top to bottom was announced.

One diplomatic and thirty-one consular officials were retired as having reached the limit of 65 years; five diplomatic attaches, who had been carried on an unassigned list, were redesignated as "not reinstated;" eight diplomatic and thirteen consular officials were demoted as failing to reach the required standard of efficiency and two names were removed by resignations.

The reclassification carried out by the recently organized personnel board was declared by officials to have had the effect of placing the entire combined service "on a merit basis." From this time, they said, the service should be considered definitely a profession in which advancement would be dependent solely upon individual qualifications.

WHOLESALE SLAYING OF DOGS URGED

Slaughter of 75,000 in Detroit Recommended to Stop Rabies Spread

EAST LANSING (Mich.) July 2. At least 75,000 dogs should be killed in Detroit, veterinarians attending the forty-second annual meeting of the Michigan State Veterinary Medical Association were told here yesterday by Dr. E. E. Paterson, who conducts a dog hospital in Detroit. Dr. Paterson recommended the slaughter of unlicensed dogs to prevent the spread of rabies. He said that two-thirds of Detroit's 100,000 dogs are unlicensed and that only about 10,000 dogs are vaccinated against rabies.

The rabies situation in Detroit was the subject of a warm discussion at the Detroit meeting. Dr. A. S. Schlingman, who is connected with the medical research laboratory of Parke, Davis & Co., gave a paper on the disease, in which he discussed the handling of the situation by means of vaccination.

While Dr. Paterson agreed as to the efficiency of this method with the animals subjected to it, he criticised it in that he claimed that the vaccine occasionally causes a condition of symptomatic rabies which causes clients to distrust the veterinarian, although the symptomatic condition is not dangerous in itself.

Dr. F. W. Schofield of Guelph, Ont., a visiting veterinarian, objected to the tendency of people at the present time to place sole reliance in one practice or remedy. He recommended increasing taxes on dogs as a means of cutting down their number and raising the standard of those kept.

More than 140 Michigan veterinarians, including a large delegation from Detroit, are attending the sessions of the annual meeting, which will end Thursday afternoon.

BRITISH SHIPS WILL BE DRY AT BAY CITY

LIQUOR TO BE SEALED WHILE WAR VESSELS ARE IN AMERICAN PORT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The British service squadron, headed by the Hood, the mightiest of sea battlers, will be dry during its three-day visit to San Francisco harbor. The fleet is due here from British Columbia on July 7.

Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, K.C.B., in command of the squadron, has notified Gerald Campbell, British consul-general here, that in deference to the Volstead Act, the Eighteenth Amendment and the California dry laws, a seal will be put on the liquor stores of the big sea fighters. The dispensing of liquor while the vessels are in the harbor would be no violation of the law, it was pointed out by authorities here, but the drought will be declared as a courtesy to the American people.

A noisy and colorful reception, to be participated in by all manner of gaily bedecked bay craft, a number of vessels of the United States battle fleet and the land and air forces of the Army and Navy here has been mapped out for the visiting squadron. San Francisco is the only American mainland port at which the squadron will touch.

MAKE REDUCTION IN OCCUPATIONAL TAX

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ORANGE, July 2.—The long fight waged by local real estate men to have the municipal occupational tax reduced culminated in victory yesterday when the City Council voted 3-to-0 to slash the rate in half, making it $12 per annum instead of $24.

A committe, headed by Will A. Martin, president, and G. W. Murphy, representing the Orange Realty Board, appearing before the city solons with a petition protesting against the previous rate.

"We as members of the realty board, as individuals are paying $24 per year license fees," the petition read. "We believe that amount excessive as compared with the amount others are paying and therefore reuest that the fees be reduced to $12.

A resolution, protesting against the $24 tax, had previously been adopted unanimously at a meeting of the realty board at which time it was decided to send a delegation before the City Council with the protest.

SPEEDERS HEAD LIST OF OFFENDERS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ORANGE, July 2.—Seventy-five times during the month of June the strong arm of the law, as represented by local police, descended on some hapless person, it was disclosed at the City Council meeting yesterday when the monthly police report was presented by City Marshal M. E. Jemison.

Speeding, as usual, headed the list of arrests with forty-one motorists showing a tendency to rest their foot too heavily on the accelerator pedal; eleven were charged with passing cars at intersection; three with selling liquor; three with vagrancy; one each for transporting and possessing liquor in addition to other arrests for minor traffic law violations.

Fines, exclusive of some which remain to be paid, aggregated $783, according to the report of City Recorder G. W. Ingle, submitted at the same time.

NEW CHIEF TAKES OFFICE AT BEACH

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, July 2.—Clarence E. Webb, captain of local police for more than eight years, who was recently appointed Chief of Police of the city, has taken over the office.

In acknowledgement of Mayor Steele's address Chief Webb said: "Mayor Steele has bestowed upon me the honor which I deeply appreciate and I wish to assure my fellow members that with your cooperation we will perfect an organization of men to the point where the citizens of the community will look with pride upon its police force."

Following the oath of office an inspection of all members of the local force was made by the new chief.

PICKED POCKETS OF POLICE COURT JUDGE

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, July 2.—Police Judge Frank C. Dunham who each day drains the pocketbooks of unfortunate law violators, who are brought into court, today had occasion to send up a mighty wail when his own pocketbook was unceremoniously rifled.

His purse containing $157 was taken from his pocket this morning while the judge was doing a little early morning shopping in a crowded store.

ENORMOUS CROP OF WHEAT SEEN

Oklahoma and Texas Will Export Vast Quantity

Total in Two States to be 70,000,000 Bushels

Low Protein Returns Will Cut Down Premiums

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 2.—Oklahoma this year will produce 50,000,000 to 55,000,000 bushels of wheat, and Texas 20,000,000 to 23,000,000 bushels, according to estimates made at the Oklahoma City Grain Exchange.

Dealers say that these States will have over 50,000,000 bushels to sell outside these States. Owing to the fact that high-protein wheat, such as is demanded especially by Minneapolis mills, is spotted and that protein returns in many places have been disappointing, interest has increased in export bids. This fact also has served to defer premium paying, although early last week Texas mills paid 1 cent a bushel premium for some high-protein grain. All sales to Oklahoma millers were on an export basis. A number of contracts were made with Galveston for exports and dealers look for a great deal of wheat from these States to go early to European countries.

Some samples of Oklahoma wheat received here after early threshing showed a protein content as high as 17 per cent. Samples that came later showed the content to range from 9 to 11 per cent. Minneapolis mills want contracts on a 13 per cent basis, but will take some with 12 per cent. They offer a premium of 2 cents a bushel over export bids for each half of 1 per cent increase in protein content above 13 per cent.

Sections of the grain belts of Oklahoma and Texas are producing an unusually large yield of oats, but dealers do not believe that enough will be produced to meet the demand within these States. Some dealers already are offering a surplus from their communities. These States will ship out a great deal of red oats, but more than an equal quantity of white oats probably will be shipped in.

INSULT TO GIRL ENDS IN DEATH

Man, Bent on Revenge, Shoots Wildly; Innocent Bystander Killed

BOSTON, July 2.—A wedding, an insult to a girl, a slapped face, liquor and a thirst for vengeance. Then Leo Kelley, 19 years of age, innocent bystander and sole support of his mother, was slain by a bullet, fired outside the place of merry-making.

Kelley had returned from work on his motorcycle. He put the machine up and walked toward his home.

In front of Hazl Carl Hall he met his friend, Daniel Coleman of Cambridge street. In the hall a wedding was in progress. The two stood talking for a few minutes in front of the hall.

Five men stepped out of a taxicab that drew up. One of the five began to shoot wildly. A bullet stung Kelley just about the heart and he dropped to the sidewalk. He died in the Cambridge City Hospital.

The police were hunting for the girl who slapped a man's face at the merry wedding. They have her name, and they believe that, through her, they will be able to hunt down the slayer.

From what the police have learned this man, after engaging in an altercation with some of the girl's friends, came to Boston, secured four of his friends, imbibed too freely and went back, bent on vengeance.

The victim was young Kelley, well known as an end man in minstrel shows of the Sacred Heart Church and the St. John's Knights of Columbus, Cambridge.

NIP RUSSIAN PLOT IN GUN SMUGGLING

Police Create Sensation in Seizure of Arms Boxed to be Sent to Holland

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, July 2.—A seizure of machine guns, which were about to be smuggled out of the country was made by the London police today at a Thames warehouse. A number of large cases labeled steel castings and consigned to Amsterdam firms were found to contain sixty tons of machine-gun parts said to be a portion of the British war surplus.

This may develop into a huge scandal, as the Labor government has been determined to destroy this surplus, and it must have been stolen with the connivance of British guards.

The purchasers who were trying to smuggle out the guns, and who were said to be representatives of the soviet government, are in the position of purchasers of stolen goods. The government is said to be much perturbed about the discovery, which is likely to have a bad effect on the Anglo-soviet conference.

What It Is

THE DEPENDABLE DRUGGISTS' ASSOCIATION is an organized group of the best independently owned and personally conducted drug stores of Southern California. The owners of these stores are Graduates in Pharmacy and Registered Druggists. Pharmacy is their profession. The handling of drug merchandise is their business. They know their work and love it.

They keep their own stores; they maintain their own individuality and personal service and combine with these all the advantages of the greatest drug institutions. By combining their forces each member acquires tremendous buying power and the greatest advertising facilities at the lowest cost. By running their own stores they can operate more efficiently. They are in a unique position to offer greater values and render better service.

Why It Was Organized

THE DEPENDABLE DRUGGISTS' ASSOCIATION was organized because there are many high-class Pharmacists and qualified druggists who want to keep their profession and business on the highest plane. They wish to maintain their own professional ideals and practice the highest ethics in business relations. They believe individually owned drug stores best can do this. The reasons are obvious.

On the other hand, they wish to offer to their customers fresh merchandise of the highest quality, together with intelligent service, all at the lowest prevailing prices. Naturally they feel this is their duty and to the best interest of the communities they serve. By doing this they can retain their individuality, capacity for personal service and professional pride. The dependable Druggists' Association is the result.

BEER POPS, POLICE SEE BOMB PLOT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BOSTON, July 2.—Midnight quiet at Somerville police headquarters.

Lieut. John Ray and Patrolman Dadmun on night duty dozed fitfully. Scratching of pen across paper. Uneasy shuffling of two-pound boots. Sounds of snoring from interned "scofflaws."

Then—Bang! Also two more Bangs!

The "leftenant" and his man leaped out of their chairs.

From the "leftenant:" "What the—is that?"

"An explosion upstairs somewhere," from Dadmun.

They took the stairs three at a time—maybe it was two or one. But they got there and searched for debris "mass of twisted metal and splintered wood." All that sort of thing. Nothing doing.

Down stairs again and to work.

Came 3:30 a.m. and another tremendous blast resounded on wooden stairways. Same search. Same result. No wreckage no debris.

Lieut. Ray: "Well of all the blamed things."

Morning roll call brought members of the liquor squad. They opened the locked door of their cache. They found answer to the "bomb" mystery of the night. Two dozen broken bottles, which had contained asserted beer and "hootch."

End "Big Bomb Mystery."

BALTIMORE WARS ON RATS

Modern Pied Piper Comes to Town to Clean City's Markets from Pest of Rodents

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BALTIMORE, July 2.—The modern Pied Piper of Hamelin has again come to town to slaughter market rats. His name is J. L. Nicholes and each year he comes to Baltimore to demonstrate, with the sanction of the city authorities, how to exterminate the rodents.

Unfortunately, in past years the demonstration also showed how easily cats may be killed, although that was not part of the purpose. Last year so many cats lost all their nine lives during the rat raid that the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals protested.

Will Safeguard Cats

This year an effort is to be made to protect the rat catchers from the lethal poison banquet that is to be spread for the rats. Mr. Nicholes is to confer with officials of the society about saving the cats.

The attack on the rodents is to start in Lexington Market and at other markets later. The rat banquet is to be spread under the stalls. Bacon, the rodents' favorite food, will be the piece de resistance, but each piece will be liberally sprinkled with poison.

Counting on the poor memory of the rat family it is expected that the rodents will flock to the banquet, completely forgetting the massacre of last year. Last year's poison slew the rodents in hundreds.

City to Supervise Work

Mr. Nicholes will do his work under the supervision of the Market Department and the Health Department. He has figures to show that the rodents destroy thousands of dollars' worth of property annually besides being a factor in the spread of disease.

Poisoned Nerves Cause Neuritis
Neuritis or "nerve inflammation" often follows an attack of malarial poisoning, typhoid fever, pneumonia or some other infectious disease. The most frequent causes of the trouble, however, are colds, injuries, bruises or nervous exhaustion.
Neuritis may affect one nerve or it may involve many. In some cases the pain moves from place to place, but usually it is confined to the shoulder, neck, forearm, thigh, leg or small of the back.
Beware of drugs that relieve by deadening the nerves. Such relief is deceptive and dangerous. Kopa Neuritis Tablets act in a safe, natural way, helping to remove the inflammation and bring about permanent, lasting results. Go today and obtain a dollar bottle of these tablets. ESPEE MERGER PETITION FILED

Asks Approval of Deal With El Paso Road

Involves $57,000,000 Worth of Stock and Bonds

Combine of Missouri Pacific Group Progressing

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 2.—Application on behalf of the Southern Pacific Company and El Paso and Southwestern Railroad Company was filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, by representatives of the two companies asking for an order approving and authorizing the proposed unifying of the two properties through an exchange of securities, according to an announcement made here tonight by A. E. Sweet, vice-president and general manager of the Southwestern lines.

There was filed at the same time with the commission an application on behalf of the Arizona Eastern Railroad for certificate of convenience and necessity covering proposed new construction between a point near Toltec, about thirty-one miles east of Maricopa on the Southern Pacific via Phoenix, to a ponit on the Southern Pacific just east of Yuma. It is the intention of applicants to do all they can to secure favorable action by the commissioners as soon as possible, Mr. Sweet stated.

The El Paso and Southwestern will receive from the Southern Pacific $28,000,000 par value of Southern Pacific stock and $29,400,000 face value of Southern Pacific 5 per cent bonds. These securities cover not only the Southwestern Railroad but the Nacosari Railroad and other valuable assets in the treasury of the Southwestern, Mr. Sweet announced.

ANOTHER MERGER

Another railroad merger, the Missouri Pacific group, is proceeding almost as rapidly as the Southern Pacific-Southwestern, according to announcement made here today at a meeting of the city merger committee on information said to have been obtained from W. R. Scott, president of the Atlantic system of the Southern Pacific. Mr. Scott said today that he understood that the Missouri Pacific has already acquired financial control of the Texas and Pacific and that the financial control of the Gulf Coast lines by the Missouri Pacific is already well under way. "Gulf Coast lines have been granted permission to take over the I. G. N. in the same grouping," said Mr. Scott. "The Missouri Pacific connects with the Southern Pacific in Texas and Louisiana. It is the short line via Texas and Pacific to St. Louis territory. It reaches out through connections to California. If we compete at all with vast middle western territory in Missouri we must give the same rate for a longer haul and better service," he added.

El Pasoans scored the Southern Pacific for rate favoritism to El Paso trade rivals at the meeting held yesterday afternoon. Mr. Scott replied that El Paso would have to ask for what she wanted in order to get it.

EVADES DIRECT REPLY

Mr. Scott, seemingly trying to evade a direct answer, made no comments on questions put to him regarding the proposed merger having some relation toward the Rock Island and Orient as well as the Southern Pacific and Southwestern. The fact was brought out that El Paso would fight the completion of the Orient. Several well-known business men announced that the building of the Orient would be a tremendous asset to El Paso and would probably be completed within the near future.

So soon as the agreement receives the necessary public sanction it will become effective and the El Paso and Southwestern system will then become an operating part of the Southern Pacific Lines. When that takes place the Southern Pacific agrees to construct lines in Arizona connecting with the present main line that will result in putting Phoenix and the Salt River Valley upon the main line and will give the Southern Pacific Company the benefit of a double track service through the larger part of the territory it traverses in Arizona. This new line will leave the present main line at or near Picache forty-six miles west of Tucson and then proceed along the San Carlos Irrigation Project past the prehistoric Casa Grande ruins, entering the fertile Casa Grande Valley which possesses great development possibilities, and then across the Gila River, paralleling the Gila, it will serve the well-developed Chandler section of the Salt River Valley connecting there with branch lines of the Arizona Eastern Railroad, which is a subsidiary already constructed by the Southern Pacific.

LINE TO BE REBUILT

This line is to be reconstructed and will be used through Phoenix, Mesa and Tempe, as part of the new main line to its westerly terminus at Hassayampa, from Hassayampa the new line will be constructed Southwesterly not quite paralleling the present main line of the Southern Pacific, but slightly converging to a point of junction near Dome, which is twenty-three miles east of Yuma.

Thus Arizona secures from the Southern Pacific a double-track main line substantially all the way from El Paso to Dome and important cities now served only by branch lines will be given main-line service. From Tucson eastward the line of the Southwestern with its branches serving the territory lying south of the Southern Pacific main line both in Southeastern Arizona and Southwestern New Mexico becomes part of the Southern Pacific system, thus giving double-track service between the cities of El Paso and Tucson, which are not only important railway centers and gateways, but centers of great business activity generally.

Application was filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission asking authority to construct this new main line which was undertaken in the name of the Arizona Eastern Railroad, because of the branches already in its name reaching Phoenix.

The new lines to be constructed and the service that will follow are in themselves great factors toward the development of this rich territory.

Thirty questions on the effect of the proposed merger upon El Paso and Phoenix were submitted today in New York to railway presidents by the El Paso Chamber of Commerce committee, which is expected to return the latter part of this week.

RODEO DEFENDED BY PEERS

American Cowboys on Trial for Cruelty Before London Court Attract Favorable Attention

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, July 2.—After the rodeo defense had produced twenty witnesses yesterday attempting to prove that steer-roping and wrestling were not cruel, the trial of the American cowboys, whose show at the Empire exhibition was stopped, was adjourned a week.

Big Tex Austin attired in Bond-street pants and leather vest drew the eyes of the women, many trying to secure an autograph.

Laughs abounded when the counsel for the defense asked the S.P.C.A. inspector who declared steer-roping cruel, "Have you ever been at the grand national or polo matches or at the steeple chase?"

The witness replied that he had not.

The former S.P.C.A. inspector now on pension derided the idea of cruelty but later caused more comedy when a report was read showing that he disapproved the rodeo frightfully until he had been ejected from the S.P.C.A. office.

"George Washington wasn't in it with you," replied the attorney prosecuting.

Distinguishing baronets and viscounts voiced their approval of the rodeo, declaring that it was one of the best exhibitions of skill in careful handling of cattle they ever saw.

Removes That Knock

Boyce-ite, if given sufficient time, will remove from any motor, regardless of size or design, carbon knocks. Knocks caused by loose bearings, improper timing, etc., are conditions remedied only by an expert repair man. Each gallon of Boyce-ite-treated gasoline removes a certain amount of carbon. Patience is necessary in some motors, but the final results are the same. Use sufficient Boyce-ite and give it a fair trial.

Boyce-ite Saves Money

Total your present expense of grinding valves, scraping carbon, etc., and to this add the increased mileage obtained by the use of Boyce-ite— and you will find that Boyce-ite actually does save many times its cost, and that the slight expense of adding Boyce-ite to every gallon of gasoline you use is a real economy.

Prevents Carbon Forming

New cars may be driven, with Boyce-ite in the gasoline, without the necessity of ever removing the cylinder head. Many car agents are using Boyce-ite in their new demonstrating cars to avoid carbon knocks and to assure that powerful, velvety feel of the motor that Boyce-ite always confers.

Increases Power, Increases Mileage

Valves seat properly, producing better compression; power increases; spark plug points become clean; acceleration improves.

Boyce-ite saves gasoline without any change of carburetor adjustment. This is Boyce-ite's greatest proof of being a super-fuel. Taxicab companies, truck owners, motor boat operators, car owners, etc., write us of obtaining one, two, three and as many as six miles per gallon greater mileage when Boyce-ite is used in their gasoline.

TREATED GASOLINE
Kills the Carbon Pest

THE motorist of today is being sold all kinds of so-called high powered fuels under fancy names.

Every oil company claims theirs is the best. But you know and I know, and every chemist knows that all these fuels form carbon. One look at your spark plugs proves that.

How long is the American motorist going to stand for this unwarranted tax?

Carbon is your motor's deadliest enemy. Absence of knock does not mean absence of carbon. Carbon exists in every motor.

Carbon clogs valves, fouls spark plugs, overheats the motor, wastes fuel and causes an unbelievable loss of power.

Carbon today is shortening the life of your motor by tens of thousands of miles. Nobody knows how long a carbonless motor would run.

I am not exaggerating. Every word I have said is true. Carbon is interfering with the advancement of an industry. Carbon is hampering the development of motor transportation. Carbon is costing the American public millions of dollars yearly.

Carbon must go.

At the top of this page you will see the familiar Boyce-ite can.

Whenever Boyce-ite is poured into any gasoline the destructive carbon does go. The spark plug test proves that. And, with the elimination of carbon comes increased mileage, smoother, more velvety operation, more power and a marked reduction in your gasoline and repair bills because you never have to grind valves, clean plugs or remove carbon.

This convenient Boyce-ite can, dust-proof, leak-proof, tamper-proof, easy to use, is your protection from the carbon pest. Poured into your favorite fuel Boyce-ite enables you to create for yourself, before your own eyes, the carbon-destroying super fuel—a fuel that I believe is the only fuel fit for your motor.

Now a word of warning—avoid foul smelling nostrums that injure metal surfaces; beware of poisonous, corrosive preparations. Boyce-ite cannot injure metals. The very fact that it is packed in a tin can proves that.

My name is not unknown in the automotive industry—it appears on over five million Moto-Meters. It has never been connected with a product that was not reliable in every respect. Boyce-ite is no exception.

Boyce-ite has been endorsed by leading car distributors: Ford, Chevrolet, Packard, Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Marmon, Stutz and others. Boyce-ite bears the unqualified approval of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University which made the most rigid and exhaustive investigations.

Boyce-ite is backed by a guarantee unique in the automotive industry. Here it is:—

"Go to any garage, automobile or accessory store, or gas station in your city, buy two or more dollars' worth of concentrated Boyce-ite, use according to directions, and if you are not satisfied that what I have told you is an absolute fact, take your car to your regular garage, and if your trouble is due to carbon, I will pay for having the carbon burned out, if you will send me the bill."

Go to your filling station, take a chance on the gasoline from any colored pump, but remember that every fuel forms carbon until it has been treated with Boyce-ite.

The Affair at Othman's

By WILL PAYNE

Synopsis: Frederick Othman, wealthy Turk, is secretly planning to marry Flora Marsden, society girl. Rodney Barlow, fashionable newspaper-owning scion to the Marsden social circle, is granted immunity by Othman for consignment in considering of assisting the Turk in his plans. Phillip Kendall, a reporter, is a rival for Flora's affections. Flora's father becomes financially involved. Othman assists him. Barlow reveals a clandestine affair of Marsden's years past, and the existence of a subnormal child, of which Marsden is the father. Othman, who controls the paper on which Kendall works, details him to investigate. A Mrs. Smith refuses to reveal Marsden's past. Kendall interviews her and is sent to Maine to substantiate her story. Kendal questions a citizen of the town and reports back to Othman. Mrs. Smith arranges a meeting with Kendall—having the subnormal girl with her.

"I followed you up to Nero. I wasn't satisfied to leave Marie there any longer. You see she's not bright. Stamford Marsden might take advantage of her again—get her away and hide her. I don't trust that woman up there, that Mrs. Chadwick. She's done Marie harm enough already. So I'm going to keep the girl myself until she gets her rights."

She spoke neither with anger nor boastfully; there was a calm certainty about it which seemed to sweep all objections and obstacles aside. Kendall felt himself so swept aside, yet he must speak a protest.

"You have no business to do it. This is no place for her. Mrs. Chadwick took good care of her."

But Mrs. Smith evidently had no mind to enter into pointless arguments, and simply repeated, without heat, but in that assurance, "she will stay with me."

"What do you propose?" Kendall asked, as decently as possible.

"I propose to have her father acknowledge her and give her her rights," she replied emphatically. "He is her flesh and blood. That woman at the hotel—Mrs. Chadwick—has kept this secret and feathered her own nest out of it. She's been getting money from Marsden all along, but it's done the girl no good. Stamford Marsden has gone his way. This girl has been a slave to that woman up there. You can see by her hands how she's worked. Her mind's been neglected. If her father had done his duty by her she would have had training years ago. She's been given no chance. It can't go on any longer." She gave her head a shake.

Kendall bracked himself and replied with the best air of conviction he could muster. "I've looked it over—what you told me, and up there. I don't believe he is her father."

That did not disconcert her in the least. "I'm not a woman to go into things blindly," she said. "But if you don't believe it there's no use in our talking any further. Maybe I should have gone to Marsden in the first place. I didn't know just how to begin. I wrote that letter on the spur of the moment. But, now that I've seen Marie again, I'm more bound than ever to go through with it. I'll go to Marsden and then into court if necessary."

That sense of helplessness to do anything with her short of just killing her held him by the throat. All the same he plunged at it, doggedly, to make the best argument he could:

"Look here, Mrs. Smith, you believe in mercy and forgiveness—do unto others. Say Marsden is all you accuse him of; but for twenty years at least he's held an honorable position here, and his wife is a sweet and lovely woman, active in charity, kind to everybody. And he has a daughter—a fine girl. Don't you see what you'd be doing to them? Surely they are innocent."

"The daughter is not innocent," Mrs. Smith replied, with her ready assurance. "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children. This is her sin."

Wanting to choke her, he still urged, "But she never knowingly harmed a human being in her life. She's all goodness to everybody. What about mercy to her?"

"You know this daughter, then?" Mrs. Smith inquired.

"Yes," he admitted. "I know the family. Mrs. Marsden and her daughter are fine people. You see what you would be doing to them."

"I have thought about them," Mrs. Smith announced. "I'm not looking for vengeance, Mr. Kendall." She glanced up significantly at the motto on the wall. "If there is any way to spare this New York wife and daughter I am willing to consider it. But this girl has got to be provided for. She's got to be taken out of that woman's hands and given the chance she's entitled to."

"What would you call a proper provision," Kendall ventured.

Apparently Mrs. Smith had considered that, for she answered quite promptly and positively. "At least $5000 a year, secured to her for life. For myself, I don't even ask to have my railroad fare paid back. I want you to understand there will be no selling out in this case. If it seems right to spare the two women you speak of I'm willing to consider it. But Marie has got to be provided for. You know the family. You can bring me a proposition any time within the next forty-eight hours, but not later."

He went down the stairs asking himself in helpless rage, "Was there ever such an implacable hag?"

But now he must trot down to Othman with his proposal, and as he hastened to a telephone booth he was ridden by a sense of his own impotence. It was only 3 o'clock, so Othman would most likely be in his office. But the man of many affairs had engagements, and it was a quarter to five when Kendall was shown into the private room, with its windows overlooking the harbor. There he recited the interview with Mrs. Smith faithfully.

Othman listened soberly and ruminated aloud: "Bringing the girl down here looks as though she meant business." He got up, paced over to the windows, hands in pockets, head bent, absorbed in thought. A moment later he paced back to his desk.

"If this were only a business affair, it would be easy. At this point we'd naturally go to Marsden, lay the case before him, and let him decide what to do. But it isn't only a business affair." Dark eyes on the reporter, he continued, "I may as well tell you. I'm hoping for another alliance with Marsden." He made it more explicit. "I wish to marry his daughter. You see how that changes it." He let himself down into the chair. "If this woman's story is true, Marsden must meet her terms. To assure a young woman a life income of $5000 takes quite a bit of cash. At 5 per cent it would take $100,000. Marsden's affairs are all hung up. He's leaning on me as it is. He couldn't raise $100,000 to save his soul except by coming to me for it. You see the situation. To carry him over this bridge would put him under too great an obligation to me." He gave a little chuckle. "It's difficult to feel that way toward a man without hating him. It would spoil our relationship. If I should ask him for his daughter that feeling of being at a disadvantage—a gun to his head—would come up. I don't want to take the risk. Do you see what I mean?"

"Yes, I see," Kendall answered, dully—looking down so that Othman might not see his eyes.

The dark man resumed, in a more cheerful tone, "Of course, five thousand a year means nothing in particular to me. I propose to play safe. I will arrange tomorrow to settle an income of five thousand a year for life on this girl. The Manifold Trust Company will do the business. She will get due and binding notice from them by day after tomorrow morning. What is that address, now?"

He pencilled it down as Kendall repeated it.

"You must make it clear to Mrs. Smith and to the girl," he instructed, "that this five thousand a year is on the understanding they both keep their mouths shut. The condition of the trust will be that Marie Marsh acknowledges herself to be the daughter of George Marsh, and the trust will be void if she ever makes a contrary claim. A capable lawyer will draw it up. Impress that point on them, will you? It's five thousand a year if they make no trouble. I'll have a copy of the trust indenture sent them so they can read it for themselves. You'd better see them again in the morning, and telephone me. I'll wait for word from you before I see the trust company."

So, once more, next forenoon, Kendall climbed the two flights of narrow steps, and once more beheld the thin, intelligent face of Mrs. Josephine Smith looking out at him through the open doorway. But this time he found Mrs. Smith in a rather softer mood, as though she had taken counsel of that charity which he had recommended to her. Marie was not in sight.

He said that an annuity of five thousand would be settled upon Marie—with the strict provision that she acknowledge George Marsh to be her father and never put forward a contrary claim; this five thousand a year was to settle the affair forever. He added something about the consideration due to Marsden's wife and daughter.

"I have decided to accept it, Mr. Kendall," the fateful woman replied, without that subtle air of hostility to him which he had theretofore been sensible of. "Let them send the documents to me. I will examine them. I must see this trust company, too, and be sure there's no trick. I understand such things better than you may suppose. But if the trust assures Marie a life income of five thousand, I will accept it."

Leaving Mrs. Smith, Kendall telephoned Othman, who said a copy of the trust instrument and a due notification from the trust company would be sent within twenty-four hours. Thereupon Kendall heaved a sigh of relief. Thank heaven, the miserable business was ended! There remained the one point of Mrs. Smith's finding the trust indenture to her satisfaction; but he had made clear to her what its provisions would be, so that point was hardly more than a formality.

Within twenty-four hours, Othman had said, which would mean by 11 o'clock Friday morning. About a quarter to five Friday afternoon—with a meticulous wish to have the last small point definitely settled—Kendall stepped into the tiny vestibule with its row of letter boxes. He noticed that the inner door of the vestibule, giving to the stairs, was slightly ajar, so there was no need ringing Mrs. Smith's bell and having her press the button upstairs which unlocked the door. Instead he pushed the door open and climbed the stairs. Midway of the second flight he was aware of voices in the hall above him—and laughter. At the turning of the stairs, when his head came above the floor of the hall, he saw a man, in overcoat, hat in hand, standing at Mrs. Smith's open door. Evidently he was either going in or coming out, for he was shaking hands with somebody inside the door and talking. Somebody inside was laughing, or perhaps two persons were laughing. Kendall thought the man was taking leave, but was not sure, and he didn't wish to present himself at the small flat, with its one sitting room, when there was company. He withdrew several steps down the stairs, therefore, waiting and listening. If the man was saying adieu, he took his time about it, for the sound of voices and laughter continued. When it ceased Kendall listened an instant more; then resumed his upward course.

LIQUOR GOES IN BANK VAULTS

"Quart-size" Deposit Boxes in Demand Since Dry Laws Prevail

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) July 2.—The Volstead Act has brought "quart-size" safety-deposit boxes into greater prominence. A Houston banker tells of a customer who asked for a "quart-size" box because his wife objected to his drinking at home and he dared not keep liquor in his office.

Another customer, the banker said, pays $60 a year for a safety box in which he keeps an old rusty horseshoe.

SNOW SAVES AUTOISTS IN HILL PLUNGE

Trio Hurled Into Drifts When Car Crashes Down Steep Embankment

COLORADO SPRINGS (Colo.) July 2.—The lives of three persons were miraculously saved near the top of Pikes Peak recently when their steam-propelled automobile balked, slid backward and plunged over a 300-foot embankment.

The injured, all of whom escaped death when they were tossed into deep snowdrifts during the descent, are: Mrs. W. H. Betts, 27 years of age, of St. Louis, Mo., her husband, 30, and Lawrence Minor, 21, of Colorado Springs.

The failure of water to boil at the great height of the peak top, caused the accident. When the machine failed to function, the driver became rattled and neglected to apply the brakes with the result that the car slid backward, left the road and plunged over the yawning chasm. All three of the occupants were thrown from the car in the drop, each landing in the soft six-foot-deep beds of perpetual snow.

Mrs. Betts was the most seriously injured. She incurred a fracture of the pelvic bone and possible internal injuries. Betts and Minor were only cut and bruised.

SEARCH FOR DROWNED BOYS PROVES FAILURE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

GLOBE (Ariz.) July 2.—Search is being made along Salt River in the canyons west of the Roosevelt dam for the bodies of two Globe boys, drowned while swimming near the camp of their party, several miles below Roosevelt. One was Samuel Jaquinta, 9 years of age, and the other Kazo Nishio, son of a Japanese restaurant owner. Grappling hooks sent down by the Globe city engineering department have failed to raise the bodies, the use of dynamite has been refused by the State authorities, and there is reluctance to turn out the flow of the river, owing to the necessities of the Salt River Valley for irrigation.

RIFLE SHOT IS FATAL

GLENDALE (Ariz.) July 2.—Ben Jones, 34 years of age, a resident of Glendale, is reported to have been killed near Ajo by accidental discharge of his rifle. About a year ago he was severely wounded near Glendale by accidental discharge of a rifle when its hammer caught in a wire fence through which he was crawling.

The evolution of Dentistry

How the E. R. Parker System Contributes to Dental Science

GROUP dentistry as administered under the E. R. Parker System represents the latest and one of the most constructive steps in the evolution of dental practice.

From primitive man who undoubtedly pulled teeth with the thumb and forefinger; from the priests of ancient Egypt and from the physicians who practiced when Greece and Rome were young came the first meagre contributions to the development of dentistry.

To these, to the barber surgeons of the middle ages and to the worthy men who followed we owe our dental science of today.

To make the benefits of this great science available to rich and poor alike, the E. R. Parker System now contributes the economies of time and money made possible by group effort. In twenty-six cities of the West, Parker offices last year rendered the highest type of dental service to more than 150,000 patients. It is a service, wherein the objective is painless dentistry thoroughly and quickly performed; a service which by the employment of modern business methods is rendered at the lowest cost consistent with first-class workmanship.

It tells you what you have the right to expect from your dentist and how the E. R. Parker System permits the highest type of dentistry without pain and at an economical cost.

El Discurso de Bryan Provoca Frenéticos Anatemas

NUEVA YORK, Julio 2.—El más aborrecido hombre de Nueva York esta noche es un bondadoso caballero de edad madura, que cree que Eva fue creada de una costilla de Adán, que juzga que el poder de la gente de dinero de los Estados Unidos trata de arrebatarles el pan de la boca a la viuda y al huérfano, y que se siente orgulloso por el hecho de ser ya bisabuelo.

Este hombre, que ocupó hoy la tribuna de los oradores en Madison Square Garden para exhortar dramáticamente a la Convención Democrática a que componga sus diferencias y se ponga de acuerdo cuanto antes en un candidato presidencial, oyó a una gran muchedumbre de 15,000 hombres y mujeres poseídos de la ira, expresarle su odio con silbido ensordecedor que parecía el ruido del huracán que azota una selva de pinos.

Se le hizo el blanco de abucheos, insultos, maullidos. El tenía la ventaja del micrófono que multiplicaba la intensidad de sus palabras; pero aun así, éstas quedaron ahogadas, perdidas en la tempestad que él mismo había desencadenado.

El hombre a quien nos referimos es Bryan. Estaba en pie, enteramente solo, y presentando un rostro sonriente a sus atacantes.

Tal fue la recepción que se tributó al gran "Commoner", al tres veces nombrado líder de la Democracia, al hacedor y desfacedor de Presidentes, cuando intentó abrir brecha en el callejón sin salida a que había llegado la Convención, que no se decidía ni por McAdoo, ni por Al Smith, y encaminar en precipitada masa a los delegados rumbo al "carro de la murga" de McAdoo.

Sin duda eran buenas las intenciones de Bryan, pero la consecuencia de su acto fue destruir definitivamente las esperanzas de McAdoo. El resultado inmediato va a ser que el Gobernador de Nueva York sea llevado más cerca de la meta por la oleada de resentimiento que produjo la bien intencionada intervención de Bryan.

Bryan creó en la Convención Nacional Democrática de 1896 una estampida favorable para sí mismo; en la de 1912, una estampida favorable para Wilson; pero no pudo determinar en la de 1924 un efecto análogo en favor de McAdoo.

Lorain Comienza a Hacer Negocios de Nuevo

LORAIN (Ohio) Julio 2.—Con procedimientos ordenados se está logrando volver a dar cuerda a los relojes industriales de Lorain. Flotan banderas con letreros en carácteres rojos que dicen "Los negocios como de costumbre". Con ellas se ocultan en parte los escaparates destrozados y las fachadas deterioradas, a la vez que se invita a la ciudad a que se aperciba para el trabajo. A los ciudadanos se les impulsa con mano firme hacia las tareas del momento, y la actividad está desvaneciendo el azoramiento.

Las señoras de casa lavan y bruñen ventanas. Las madres ya están regañando de nuevo a sus vástagos, y ordenándoles a grandes voces que vengan acá por el aire. De las casas se desprende el sabroso tufo de los manjares en preparación, y el grato ruido de los platos.

El gas funciona ya y los alambres telefónicos y de la luz están ya más que a medio reparar. Los tasadores de la compañías de seguros se hallan en la ciudad computando las pérdidas de cada compañía, y la perspectiva general no es ni tan triste ni tan desesperada como parecía al principio.

Una Compañía de Chicle Gestiona una Concesión en Méjico

SAN LUIS POTOSI (Méjico) Julio 2.—Manuel Ramoneda, de la ciudad de Méjico, ha presentado una solicitud al gobierno mejicano, a nombre de una empresa chiclera de los Estados Unidos, pidiendo una concesión para explotar el árbol del zapote, de donde se saca el chicle, en una extensión de 100,000 acres ubicada en el Territorio de Quintana Roo.

NOTAS LOCALES

Importante Estadística Presentada por Vollmer

Los ciudadanos y autoridades, en su lucha contra los bandidos, los salteadores, y los que roban casas habitadas, mataron veintidos criminales en el año fiscal que comenzó el 1 de Julio de 1923 y terminó el 30 de Junio de 1924, según revelan las cifras que presentó ayer el Jefe de Policía Vollmer.

Durante ese mismo período, los agentes de policía y los tenientes aheriffs tuvieron éxito en la presentación de pruebas suficientes para mandar a otros once pistoleros a la horca.

"No pueden salirse con la suya", fue el comentario del Jefe Vollmer al hacer públicas estas cifras. "Los criminales no pueden ganar en este juego, y los jóvenes novicios que hacen de cuando en cuando excursiones al terreno del crimen, andan cortejando a la muerte. Generalmente topan con ella."

El año fiscal que acaba de expirar revela un notable aumento de crímenes, si se compara con el inmediato anterior; pero muestra también tremendo aumento de actividad por parte de la policía.

De Julio 1 de 1923 a Junio 30 último se cometieron aquí 1175 robos con fractura. En el mismo período se registraron 827 robos comunes y 1572 hurtos mayores. Noventa vidas fueron arrebatadas por mano criminal en ese mismo espacio de tiempo.

Estas cifras representan un incremento de 90 por ciento en robos con fractura, 182 por ciento en robos comunes, 66 por ciento en hurtos mayores y 12 por ciento en asesinatos, si se comparan con las cifras respectivas de la estadística correspondiente al período fiscal inmediato anterior.

YOUTH IN COUR... CLASSIC CRI...

DENVER, July 2.—Ben Schecket, 16-year-old student of Shakespeare, was before the judge of Juvenile Court Tuesday on a charge of resisting an officer. Judge Schecket, according to the story, money not only resisted an arrest but gave three of them all he could no to arrest him and take him to jail for disturbance.

"What is your name?" the judge inquired.

"Ben Schecket," the boy replied.

"Ben," mused the court, "my name's Ben, too."

"Is that so?" the lad responded.

"Well, I'm going to change mine, then."

In the course of the hearing it displayed further evidence of independence of mind.

"What do you do with your time?" asked the court.

"Read," Ben replied.

"Read what?" asked the court.

"Well, what do you read yourself?" the boy countered.

"I read this," the court read, exhibition a leather bound volume of Shakespeare's plays.

Schecket's eyes showed a spark of interest.

"What do you think of that fellow Cassius?" he asked. He thinks Brutus a dirty trick. And I don't let 'em tell you Caesar was such a swell guy—he wasn't."

FIRE SWEEPS ON KERNVILLE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 2.—Still raging after having swept approximately fifteen square miles of timber and brush, according to an estimate made today at the Brown & Co. store, a forest fire which started near the mouth of Bull Run Creek Sunday evening, is sweeping north on the west side of Kern River toward the big timber on Green Horn Mountain and most of available men in Kernville and South Fork Valley are helping the forest rangers fight the conflagration.

The fire is within two miles of Kernville and ashes and burned pine needles are being blown into the town. The town is not in immediate danger, however, as the territory between the fire and the town is sparcely timbered or burned out. The only fear is that it will ignite the big timber of Green Horn Mountain. Between 150 and 200 men are fighting the fire under direction of rangers from Forest Supervisor Frank P. Cunningham's station.

FIFTEEN STRIKING FIRE FIGHTERS JAILED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—When a strong wind came up this afternoon and fanned into fierce flame the forest fire that has been burning for two days on Redwood Peak in the outskirts of Oakland, twelve paid fire-fighters, refused to take up the battle against the menacing blaze. They were promptly arrested by State Fire Ranger E. F. Barnes, in charge of the combined forces of Oakland and Berkeley.

The "fire strikers" were loaded into a truck of the Berkeley fire department that had just arrived with seventy recruits and taken to Walnut Creek and lodged in jail.

Misdemeanor charges will be placed against the strikers by Barnes, who says he has authority under State law to arrest any one who refuses to fight a fire in the lines.

VALLEY MEETING ON MENACE IS CALLED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FRESNO, July 2.—With forest fires reaching a point where they may jeopardize irrigation for a number of years to come, the Fresno County Board of Supervisors today called a meeting here Monday of supervisors and farm bureau directors of the San Joaquin Valley to devise ways to meet the danger.

A fire that broke out west of the Fresno River on the Wawona Road between Oakhurst and Sugar Pine was raging uncontrolled today as the result of the spreading of a small grass blaze.

About 125 acres of brush and grass have been burned over and the flames are working rapidly toward the timber line a mile away. Forest Supervisor M. A. Benedict has forty men on the ground fighting the fire and is arranging for more men to be rushed to the lines.

PRISON TERM FOR MEANS

Convicted ex-Federal Agent Sentenced to Two Years, Fined $10,000, in Liquor Plot

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 2.—Gaston B. Means, adventurer and former Federal agent, received the maximum sentence today for his share in a conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act. Federal Judge Wolverton fined him $10,000 and sent him to the Atlanta prison for two years, less than twenty-four hours after a jury found him guilty to conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. Elmer W. Jarnecke, his former secretary and "messenger boy of the master mind," escaped with a $5000 fine and two years in prison.

Pallid in the shadow of his first conviction—it was Means's boast before the Brookhart committee that he had been indicted for everything from murder down, but always acquitted—the former agent of the Department of Justice largely managed to maintain the suavity under fire that so impressed the Senators at Washington.

MAXIMUM URGED

As Means faced the bench for sentence, Hiram C. Todd, the government's special prosecutor, loosed a final vitriolic demand that the ex-detective be given the maximum penalty.

"It appears that Means personally retained a large share of the $65,000,000 that changed hands in this deal," said the thin-lipped Todd. "He can well afford to pay the $10,000 maximum fine. His clear culpability was demonstrated by the quickness of the jury verdict. I urge that he receive the ultimate limit, both as to fine and imprisonment.

"As for Jarnecke, I recommend that any difference in their sentences be made in his favor. It is plain that he was led by Means, the 'master mind.'"

A last plea for leniency for Means was made by a boyhood friend, Fred J. Coxe, who replaced Thomas B. Felder, absent on account of illness. After sentence was pronounced Mr. Coxe applied for a writ of error, to enable him to appeal, but Judge Wolverton refused to grant the writ.

FREED ON BOND

His application for the release of each prisoner on $25,000 bond pending appeal was granted, however.

Means and Jarnecke were charged with receiving from Charles W. Johnson, a government witness, $15,000 by check and $5000 in cash in return for a promise to withdraw from the Sam Thompson distillery at Brownsville, Pa., a quantity of whisky owned by John W. Hubbard, steel manufacturer, of Trenton, N. J. Government witnesses testified that Means said the Department of Justice was back of him.

LORAIN MAKES NEW START

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LORAIN (O.) July 2.—Orderly procedure is rewinding the industrial clocks of Lorain today. "Business as usual," red-lettered banners announce, which, hiding shattered windows and dilapidated fronts, are calling to the city to partake of the future. The citizens are being jerked back to the task in hand, and the listlessness is being dispelled by activity.

Housewives are washing windows and polishing them. Mothers are again scolding their children and yoo-hooing for them to come "right here" and be quick about it.

The smell of cooking food is stealing out from the homes and the clatter of dishes is heard.

Gas service has been restored. Telephone and electric light wires are more than half repaired. Insurance adjusters are in the city to compute the losses of the individual companies, and the outlook is not nearly so cheerless nor so hopeless as it first appeared.

It is certain at this time that the entire country must aid in the rehabilitation of Lorain. Many are penniless, without shelter, without clothing. Old men who have established their position will find it impossible to begin again. Factory workers who have saved penny by penny are appalled at their fate.

It is the declared intention of the committee of twenty-five, which will function as the controlling agency in Lorain until the town is restored, to build homes, to return the workers to them, and in so far as possible to lift intolerable financial pressure from the individual.

HELD IN INSULT TO FLAG

Japanese Arrested at Osaka; Nippon Hastens Its Regret Over Incident to Embassy's Colors

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

TOKIO, July 2.—Rihei Okada, 21 years of age, was arrested at Osaka early this afternoon under a charge of cutting down the flag of the United States at the American Embassy here yesterday.

Tokio police asserted tonight that Okada was a member of a society for the prevention of Bolshevism and that he had been identified as a member of the gang which mobbed Viscount Goto's residence December 27, last.

The two young men arrested yesterday, the police said, are members of the same society, which is said to be made up mostly of young reactionaries with ruffian tendencies. They are still in custody and will be tried as accessories before the fact. All three lived in a lodging house, which the society maintained near the American Embassy. It was there that the mutilated flag was found.

PUNISHMENT TWO YEARS

The Criminal Code prescribes a maximum of two years' imprisonment for a crime such as that Okada is charged with committing and the authorities intend to ask that Okada be given the limit.

Interpellations of the government in regard to the cutting down of the flag at the American Embassy occupied virtually the entire attention of the House of Peers at its session today.

Baron Yoshiro Sakatani made the interpellation and Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replied on behalf of the government. The Foreign Minister recounted the measures taken to express to the United States the regret of the Japanese government for the incident.

JAPAN SHOCKED

Baron Sakatani asserted that the "Japanese heart is shocked by this incident which, unless promptly put in its proper light, may undermine Japan's legitimate protest against exclusion and alienate the sympathy of the world."

He urged that the government prevent recurrence of such "outrages of which every Japanese disapproves." He urged the Kato Ministry to consider what steps might be taken in the event of reciprocal incidents in the United States.

UNCLE SAM MAKES COIN FOR POLAND

United States Mint to Produce $4,800,000 Worth of Zlotys

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 2.—The government of the Republic of Poland through Dr. Ladislas Wroblewski, the Minister of Poland at Washington, closed a contract with the American Smelting and Refining Company today, acting for itself and the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company, and American Metal Company, for the purchase by the government of Poland from these producers of 12,000,000 one zloty silver coins and 4,000,000 two zloty silver coins, the zloty being the new gold monetary unit of the republic of Poland, having a value of 19.3 cents, United States gold.

The silver producers have agreed through the American Smelting and Refining Company to furnish silver and alloys to the United States mint which will manufacture the coins; the silver producers will then deliver the coins to the Polish government at Warsaw, Poland, where payment is to be made.

In an interview, Hon. Hipolit Gilwic, counselor of the legation of Poland at Washington, in New York today stated that United States government authorities were furnishing every facility and consideration to the Polish government in connection with the coinage of these coins at the United States government mint at Philadelphia, in order that the Polish government might at the earliest possible moment receive the finished coins.

It is understood that this is the first order for coins to be placed with the United States mint by a foreign government since the war and that it is the first time in which American silver producers have contracted with a foreign government to deliver finished coins.

It is stated that the coinage of this silver together with the coinage of gold and silver coins and lesser coins, which is now going on in foreign mints including the mint in Poland, is a part of the program of the Polish government for stabilizating its finances. Since January, 1924, Poland has succeeded in the following accomplishments to this end: She has stopped the money printing press; stabilized the paper mark; established the gold zloty as the monetary unit; balanced her budget; collected enough taxes to cover government expenditures; undertaken the reform of her revenue administration; organized and opened on April 28 the Bank of Poland, the national bank of issue, which is a private bank, and oversubscribed its 100,000,000 zloty stock, and successfully floated in Italy a 400,000,000 lira loan, the proceeds of which are to be used in further restoring the country's finances, and which was oversubscribed more than fifteen times by the Italian public.

BATTLE POLICE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 2.—Mrs. Jesus Acero, 33 years of age, apparently maddened by narcotics, gave two police officers a strong battle this afternoon before they succeeded in placing her under restraint in the City Jail. The woman was arrested at her home, where the officers went to investigate a liquor charge. A quantity of whisky and a Mexican drug known as marihuana, was said to have been found in the house.

THINK IT WAS BOYS

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, July 2.—Breaking in the rear door of the City Hall drug store, Venice Boulevard, prowlers last night escaped with $9 in cash and several cartons of cigarettes. Owing to the fact that the burglars did not remove anything but money and cigarettes, police believe that several youths in the vicinity who have been giving trouble are responsible for the crime. Local detectives are investigating.

WOULD PAVE ALLEYS

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, July 2.—Commissioner John A. Morton, before City Commissioners this morning, proposed the paving of all alleys in the city. The investment will be considerable, but all the city officials agreed that the improvement would be profitable to property owners. The question will be given further consideration at the next meeting of the Council and it is expected definite action will be taken.

CRIME STUDY PROPOSED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, July 2.—A recommendation that this city establish a commission to study crime control has been made to the Safety Council by Robert E. Lee, vice-president of the council, following study of the Chicago Crime Commission. The report was prepared after the bar association here pointed out the need of criminal law reform.

THIS JOKER WAS A STEEPLEJACK

NEW ROCHELLE, July 2. New Rochelle awoke recently to find a demijohn of whisky and a blazing red light decorating the top of the pole on the City Hall. Ten firemen worked for an hour with hook and ladder. They removed the red light but couldn't budge the demijohn. So they called upon a steeplejack. He will attempt to take down the "little brown jug" at a cost to the city of $75.

While the community looked upon the incident as a joke, the prosecutor is seeking the joker.

BANKERS TALK INDUSTRIALISM

W. D. Howard Main Speaker at Commercial Luncheon

City is Declared Behind in Manufacturing Response

Better Financial System is Plea Voiced

Continental National Bank Day was observed yesterday at the luncheon meeting of the Commercial Board of Los Angeles in the ballroom of the Biltmore. W. D. Howard, president of the Continental National Bank, was the principal speaker, and Arthur O. Garrett, vice-president, was in charge of the meeting. Industrial topics were discussed by the two bankers and also in three-minute talks by half a dozen industrialists of the metropolitan area of Los Angeles.

Mr. Howard declared Los Angeles is in the middle of changing business conditions where intensive real estate development is giving way to industrial activity of the highest order. "Industry is going right along with increasing output, settling to a firmer and stronger position; but industry is in the condition real estate was in five years ago," the banker asserted.

"We are way behind in the demands of industry," he said. "We need more pay rolls; we must have work for our fast growing population. It is a grave mistake to assume that real estate is not in a healthy condition, for in the course of the fall it will be better stabilized than ever and the demand for homes and continued construction on a normal scale will continue at the proper ratio to the population of our city.

"Industrial engineers say that conditions here favor factory operations as high as 20 per cent, in some instances, over the situation in eastern factory cities. Just now we find that industry should be increased for we have more labor and more population than industries, despite the tremendous growth of our factories. We are now launched on a wave of industrial development which will absorb our investment money and which will furnish profits and wages to our people."

Provision of markets for locally manufactured goods and the establishment of a proper credit system were both held in vital light by Mr. Garrett. "The task before these manufacturers is to build up and increase—both the physical and the financial credit fabric of industry. We are putting out a satisfactory quantity of goods for our capitalization now, perhaps, but we must turn out more. We must absorb the goods manufactured locally or find markets for them."

THREE-MINUTE MEN

F. R. Feltshans, president of the Los Angeles Desk Company, and head of the Los Angeles School Board, was the first of the three-minute speakers. He declared that of the high school graduates of the city only 27 per cent were going to universities and the remainder would be absorbed by stores and factories. More factories are needed, he said, to hold these young persons in Southern California.

D. G. Topper, general manager of Topper, Roth & Knewbow, asserted goods can be manufactured on the Pacific Coast as successfully as in the East and urged local financiers to take an interest in mill expansion.

F. L. Lyke, president of the Lyke Shirt Company, said that 85 per cent of the shirts sold in the Southland were manufactured in the East and that few retailers realized that if they bought Los Angeles goods they were helping their own business.

A. Schleicher, president of the Samson Tire and Rubber Company, said the bankers of Los Angeles had grown up in an atmosphere of sunshine, fruit, tourists and real estate, and that they were entitled to special credit for taking the preliminary steps in industrial financing.

C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of States Societies, told of how future Los Angeles citizens were being invited to come here and live.

Crombie Allen, president of Southern California Associated Dailies, was called upon for a few words with regard to the State-wide daylight saving plan.

S. C. Hagen, manager of the foreign trade department of the Continental National Bank, and a musician of renown, directed several musical selections. Thorlief Olsen, baritone, sang one number.

CRUDE RUBBER MARKET

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 2.—Slight increase in prices were recorded in most of the grades of rubber in today's local crude rubber market. The market evidently broke away from its dullness and inactivity which was characteristic of every session for the past two weeks, and opened up the trading with early bids. Speculative operators were also present and added to the activity.

The principal grades of rubber managed to reach almost to their normal levels at the close of the day's business. The Paras which had been below the 30-cent level for the past few weeks sold at 20½ per pound and seemed well on the way to higher levels when the session ended. Spot ribbed smoked sheets was in great demand and bidding was lively bringing its quotation to 18¼. Amber No. 1 also picked up ¼ and closed at 18¾. Brown crepe in thin clean sheets was the only grade of rubber that held fast to yesterday's prices, being quoted at 17¾.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Business Slows Down for Holidays; June Made Good Showing; Underlying Conditions Sound

The approaching holidays, plus a touch of real summer, plus too much convention, plus vacations, together with half a dozen other job lot pluses is slowing down business both within the Los Angeles Metropolitan District and throughout the country.

A Bradstreet report forwarded yesterday from the office here said that there is no material change in local conditions since a week ago, there appearing to be a tendency to still restrict buying.

Favorable comments concerning the June conditions have been made by food supply and wholesale shoe houses to the effect that business last month was maintained at the 1923 level.

In the upholstery line and those allied with furniture, there has been a material decrease in sales, and collections are slow. Manufacturers of shirts report business a little below June of a year ago, but better than May. The Postoffice Department shows an increase of 9 per cent over June of a year ago. Imports for June show a drop of approximately $1,000,000.

Exports increased $900,000 over a year ago. Petroleum reports from the harbor exceeded 2,000,000 barrels during the past week, which exceeded the prior by almost 1,000,000 barrels.

The power shortage has not handicapped business due to conserved use of water. Favorable reports from ranchers on all crops have been received although prices have sagged.

COUNTRY-WIDE OUTLOOK

That the outlook of business is for a quiet summer is the view expressed by the Mechanics & Metals National Bank of New York, in its July letter to customers, issued today.

"Production in most lines has been adjusted to smaller demands," reports the bank, "and prices on the whole are more stable after an important measure of liquidation. Basic production is much below the peak of this year and last, and is at the lowest point since the summer of 1922. This means that consumption in many lines, even at the present restricted point, must be outrunning output.

"Extreme movements bring their own corrections, and it is reasonable to believe that the rapid shrinkage in output in some materials has made supplies subnormal to such an extent that an upward turn in the output of those materials cannot be long delayed. But no boom is in sight. Supplies in the hands of retailers and jobbers are far from being as unwieldy as they were in the setback of 1920-21, and there is little of the distress selling which marked the deflation of that time. Most manufacturers, operating under the restraint of falling prices and limited sales, have sharply curtailed their output and inventories to the needs of the moment. Certainly this is true in such a basic industry as steel, where the country's output, with prices at the lowest average of three years, is down to less than half of capacity.

"To give a thought to the favorable influences of the current situation, they include these: underlying trade conditions are sound; there is a large reserve buying power throughout the country; foreign conditions are improving; the available supply of banking credit is the most satisfactory in years. Though not all that had been hoped for, tax reductions are an accomplished fact, and the country is partly relieved of one of its oppressive and unnecessary burdens. A rise has occurred in the price of wheat to the highest level in more than a year, and corn has advanced to its highest level since 1920."

WALL STREET VIEWPOINT

Even the point of view attained by close contact with the market brought forth a strain of optimistic forecast from the Wall Street Journal yesterday:

"Apparently the business of the country as a whole has settled down to a stable basis and with only minor fluctuations from week to week. Wheat harvest has begun in Southern Kansas and new grain will soon be reaching country elevators in volume.

"Wall street is becoming more and more convinced that a real bull market is under way. This theory is based on the belief that the large constructive interest has been responsible for the rise over the last four or five weeks. Recently a large amount of buying has been traced to interests who were identified with the bull move which started in August, 1921.

"The most conspicuous development in steel has been rapid shrinkage in stocks in the hands of producers as well as consumers. This means consumers will eventually be forced into the market as buyers. There has already been an improvement in demand which recently got as low as 25 per cent of mill capacity. Further expansion is expected during the summer."

CORPORATION DEPARTMENT

Because it could not comply with impounding conditions, the permit issued by the State Corporation Department to Marshall-Kerr Productions has been revoked by the State Corporation Department on request of the company. Other orders by the department follow:

Revocations—Pacific Southwest Finance Company, requested; Interstate Petroleum Syndicate No. 1, on request; Mitchell Marine Air Port Company, unable to locate company; Greater California Building and Sales Company, on request; Arrowhead Silver Black Fox Company, project abandoned.

L. A. I. INCREASES DIVIDEND

The board of directors of the Los Angeles Investment Company, at the regular meeting held July 1, decided to increase the dividend for the year 1924. The earnings of the company so far this year justify an increase, and accordingly the directors decided to pay a dividend of 5 per cent on August 15, 1924, and 5 per cent dividend on November 15, 1924.

During the year 2 per cent was paid February 15, 1924, and 10 per cent on May 15, 1924.

A resolution was adopted declaring a dividend of 5 per cent payable August 15, 1924, to stockholders of record at the close of business July 15, 1924.

LIBERTIES SOFT

In a statement issued by the bond department of the Bank of Italy, the softness in Liberty Bonds early in the week is attributed to liquidations caused by July 1 interest requirements.

Simultaneously with the slight decline in these issues, money advanced to 3½ per cent and closed at 3 per cent Tuesday. It is pointed out that this is only a temporary influence, and that all government issues will probably resume their firm tone before the middle of the month.

SOUTHERN COUNTIES GAS

The Southern Counties Gas Company, through Blyth, Witter & Co., reports net earnings for the month of May, 1924, as $172,241, as compared with $90,904 for May, 1923. Gross earnings for the twelve months ended May 31, 1924, were $5,880,146, as against $5,612,286 for the twelve months preceding. Net earnings for the same period were $1,288,586, as compared with $1,130,971. Surplus after bond interest, other interest and miscellaneous was $658,130, as against $631,784 for the twelve months ended May 31, 1923.

DIVIDEND MEETING

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Nicholls Grain and Milling Company will take place on July 10 at the plant of the company, located at 2505 Santa Fe avenue. The regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent will be declared on the preferred stock and possibly something of interest will transpire in regard to the common stock. A supper will be served from foods manufactured entirely by the company. Addresses will be made on the subject of the industrial situation in Los Angeles.

MOHLER TALKS OF ANIMAL INDUSTRY AT CHAMBER BANQUET

Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry United States Department of Agriculture, was the guest of honor at a dinner given last evening by the agricultural committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce at the University Club.

Dr. Mohler in a speech following the banquet outlined a plan to put the Southern California livestock industry on a higher plane and better paying basis.

He is directly responsible for all matters pertaining to livestock in the United States and it was through his influence that $2,500,000 was appropriated by Congress to fight the foot-and-mouth epidemic in California.

The meeting was presided over by C. S. Whitcomb, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber. Other guests were Drs. U. G. Houck, Rudolph Snyder, J. W. Murdoch, and George H. Hecke, director of the State Department of Agriculture.

BEARS HIT COTTON AFTER CROP REPORT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 2.—Spot cotton closed 29.90, off 1 cent.

Cotton contracts sold off sharply here today, a wave of bearishness being induced by the government crop condition report. Before the publication of the report trading had been quiet around the previous closing levels or at small advances under scattered evening up, but upon the flash of the report large selling orders hit the ring and many could only be executed at sharp gains, resulting in a running reaction of 75 points within a few minutes. At this level a temporary halt was called by moderate covering from local bears. The decline continued in later dealings and the close was only a few points above the bottom and 93 to 106 points net lower.

In Diversification Is Strength

Individual first mortgages on approximately 165 homes, scattered throughout Los Angeles and twenty neighboring towns and cities—this is the dependable security behind SECURITY HOUSING CORPORATION First Mortgage Collateral Trust 6½% Bonds, due serially 1927-1934.

The individual borrowers are people of every walk of life—care being taken to avoid excess loans to any one class or occupation.

This diversification, both of location of mortgaged property and in the occupations of the borrowers, is an important safeguard against a sudden decline in regional property values, or depression in an individual business or industry. We believe it is indicative of the exceptional care with which SECURITY HOUSING CORPORATION loans are selected.

Backed by such safeguards, these bonds offer conservative investors a real opportunity of securing a 6.75% interest yield without the sacrifice of safety. They are a legal investment for Savings Banks in California.

A Dependable Income For Life

THE steady decline in interest rates during the past month has brought to the attention of careful investors the importance of placing a portion of their funds in securities which guarantee a stable income over a considerable period of time.

APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY 6% Gold Debentures are, we believe, particularly attractive for this purpose. Due July 1, 2024, they are non-callable for twenty-five years, after which they are redeemable at the unusually high rate of 110 for the next seventy years. Priced at 87½ and interest, they will return a dependable income of 6.85% for a lifetime.

These debentures are a direct obligation of the APPALACHIAN POWER COMPANY which serves forty-three prosperous communities in the Appalachian section. Annual net earnings applicable to interest on this issue are over four times total annual requirements. These Debentures are followed by preferred and common stocks of the company, which have an equity at present market quotations of $10,000,000, or 2½ times the amount of this issue.

L.A.I. BOOSTS ITS DIVIDEND RATE

Big Realty Company Will Pay 22 Per Cent

Analysis of Condition Shows Strong Position

Remarkable Development an Index to City's Growth

The market reacted sharply to the news of the added dividend payments to be made this year by the Los Angeles Investment Company and the stock which has been an active trader ever since the beginning of the oil development on property leased by the Standard Oil Company again became the center of interest.

According to the announcement made by the board of directors a total of 22 per cent will be paid in dividends this year. S. F. Balantine, head of Balantine & Co., Love State Building, which has been closely following the L.A.I. development, yesterday made an analysis of the stock in which he said:

"Twenty-two per cent will be paid in dividends this year, or a total of more than $618,000 on 1,100,944 shares of outstanding stock, with a par value of $1. The net profits of the investment company for 1923 were $2,444,725.85. After deducting dividends paid for 1923 of $281,326.40 and a reserve for income tax of $305,975.81, this company had a net earning surplus of $1,857,423.54. This was entirely from building operations and the sale of lots. The company sold during 1923, 619 houses. This earning surplus amounts to more than 10 per cent on a valuation of $5 a share for this company's stock that is issued in outstanding.

REDUCE INDEBTEDNESS

"According to this company's statement on January 1, 1924, they had a total indebtedness of $777,-718.34. This indebtedness has been reduced during the year more than $500,000, leaving the company's indebtedness on which interest is being paid, of less than $250,000.

"During 1924 the company has sold about 150 new homes in Los Angeles and about the same number of lots, and the company's earnings for 1924 should be close to the net earnings of 1923. This shows the tremendous growth of Los Angeles and territory as well as the management of the investment company when it is considered that in December, 1915, when the present management took their first report on this company's affairs, they were paying interest on about $2,500,000 of that their indebtedness has been reduced to less than $250,000 today, and that the net assets of the corporation today are approximately $10,000,000.

"The present board of directors went on record as stating that the company could have paid a larger dividend this year, but from the outlook and what they have—in assets they declared a 22 per cent dividend, as they knew that they could pay this for the next several years.

CONSERVATIVE POLICY

"The general policy of the board of directors seems to be conservative and safe. And while larger dividends could easily be paid, a good healthy surplus has been built up and is being persistently added to.

"These figures do not make an allowance for the oil situation. The Standard Oil Company on April 1, 1924, paid to the Los Angeles Investment Company $500,000 in cash for a lease on 1000 acres in the Baldwin Hills Tract, with a royalty of one-fifth and with an additional income from the net amount of oil after the Standard had received back their investment. The stock of this company at its present market of $3.50, affords an excellent investment, the income being in excess of 7 per cent at that market, with a large possibility of a big increase in value."

Exceptional Security Dependable Income

THE safety of any real estate mortgage bond depends, first, upon adequate security and, second, upon dependable earnings sufficient to meet interest and maturity requirements.

THE J. C. FORKNER FIG GARDENS, Inc., Serial (Closed) Mortgage 7% Gold Bonds, due 1925-1934, fully meet both these requirements.

The issue is secured by 1692.97 acres adjacent to Fresno, California, and conservatively appraised at over twice the amount of this issue, and by sales contracts on this land carrying balances still due of $481,729.85, or more than the total amount of these bonds. The purchasers have a substantial paid-in equity of $363,-236.41.

These sales contracts, drawing 7%, mature annually and will provide adequately for interest requirements and for the retirement of these bonds four years before maturity.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Bond Lists Uneven

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 2.—Bond prices fluctuated unevenly in today's trading, which was featured by the strength and activity of foreign issues and an extension of recent gains by Wilson and Company obligations.

The advance of Wilson mortgages was attributed mainly to speculative buying based on expectations that the new refinancing plan would be favorable to bondholders. Net gains for the day ranged from 1 5-8 to 3 points with the 7½s advancing at one time more than 5 points.

Mixed price movements prevailed in the railroad list, gains of about a point in Canadian Pacific 4s and Iowa Central 5s being offset by losses in Erie and other low-priced liens.

POLITICS HAS TRADE EFFECT

Smaller Wheat Yield Promises Advancing Prices

Trend Toward Higher Level for Farm Products

BY ARCHER WALL DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger)

While the tumult and the shouting of Congressional investigations have died there still remains the ancient apprehension of what a Presidential campaign may bring forth. Unfortunately, it is more prevalent this election than usual, and the shadow of it lies as heavy on the countryside as in the stock market. It is not a definite concern as to some special and untoward happening, but that undefined fear of it knows not what.

Just uncertainty, merely that, but it is still the strongest incentive to lack of action save for the immediate time. It has been accentuated in the eastern half of the country by a late, cold spring, which held back the development of agriculture and created concern as to the outcome of the harvest. Despite all this and much rainfall of late, the growing crops have made headway.

WHEAT MAY GO HIGHER

The wheat harvest is over in Texas and is on in Kansas, and goes north each day about twenty miles, or as fast as a man can walk. States that had but little wheat last season have good yields now, Kansas and North Dakota especially. It is not so well with these commonwealths east of the Mississippi River, but they had their turn twelve months ago. Also, wheat is higher, and it looks as if it will go higher yet, for it is not just a national matter, but a world-wide proposition of smaller wheat yields than a year ago.

Corn is advancing in sympathy, and likewise because the corn crop had a late start and looks none too well in some of the principal corn-growing States. The next move will be in live stock, where higher figures are badly needed.

In talking with some farmers and their representatives of late one finds a growing belief in higher prices of farm commodities in the near future. That is what the countryside needs most of all and is what will give it the most cheer.

BETTER PRICES NEEDED

We have as one of the many unfortunate legacies of the war a belief that good times can come only from advancing prices and overflowing production. As a matter of fact, what is most needed is that prices of manufactured commodities shall remain more stable, while those of farm products be higher. For the time being matters seem trending that way, and a little more of it will more effectually dispel the present uncertainty than any other one happening.

Cotton may be a lone exception to the advantages of advancing prices, because it had a late start and is in that stage where it cannot resist the boll weevil appearing in southern latitudes. Continued high-priced cotton will only accentuate the present difficulties in the textile industry, for consumers still hold off. Nor does the real solution of the difficulty—a large crop at moderate prices—appear to be a likelihood at present.

There will be much fruit this year, the usual bounteous yields of garden truck and plenty of forage for live stock. With higher and more remunerative figures for all these things, the uncertainties of the present will not long obscure the course of business in agricultural sections.

DEFENDANT IN BURGLARY TRIAL FLITS

Bond of $5000 Forfeited in Case of Man Accused of Hotel Robbery

The bond of $5000 in the case of George Frank, alias George E. Williamson, charged with burglary and robbery, was declared forfeited yesterday by Judge Avery when Frank failed to appear for trial. The case was continued until today for trial and the Sheriff's office and police department were requested to join in the hunt for the missing man.

Frank is charged with robbing E. A. McPherson, wealthy resident of Fort Worth, Tex., of $5000 worth of jewelry in McPherson's bungalow at the Ambassador. The robbery is asserted to have occurred the evening of November 13, 1922.

According to Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hill, McPherson and his wife returned to the apartment late in the evening and surprised Frank in the act of burglarizing the place. Frank is asserted then to have drawn a gun and robbed them of their jewelry.

The case was tried in June, 1923, in Judge Keetch's court and Frank was found guilty on both counts and sentenced to San Quentin penitentiary. He appealed the case, however, and was admitted to bail pending the decision of the higher court, which finally reversed the findings of the lower court and granted a new trial.

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) July 2.—M. E. WOMEN WHO LOOK OLD

In many cases they are not old in years, but because they are overworked, over-tired, nervous and run-down, ailments have developed peculiar to their sex and this condition makes them look years older than they actually are. Such women should consider the remarkable record held by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a recent canvass among over one hundred and twenty-one thousand women who had used it, ninety-eight out of every one hundred women reported benefit from its use.—[Advertisement.

ENTOMBMENT FOR ALL PRESIDENTS

Bodies of All Who Have Passed Away, From Washington Down, Have Been Entombed Rather Than Committed to Earth Burial

Recognition of the superiority of entombment over earth burial may be seen in the disposition made of the mortal remains of our dead Presidents. All have been placed in tombs or Mausoleums, and that has been the custom from time immemorial the world over in caring for the bodies of the great and honored dead.

In its two beautiful Mausoleums at Hollywood and Inglewood Cemeteries the California Mausoleum Company has made this approved and superior method of sepulture available to the great majority of people who would show a fitting respect to their loved ones who have passed on. Enduring granite, reinforced concrete and marble have been employed so enduringly and artistically that these "Temples of the Dead" provide a beautiful and dignified resting-place, and provision for intelligent perpetual care ensures a continuance of the present irreproachable maintenance.

One cannot really appreciate the chaste dignity and cathedral-like atmosphere of these structures except by seeing them with his own eyes. A visit of inspection is also necessary if one would understand the great advantages of this system of entombment—its safeguards to the health of the living, its "naturalness"—and also its actual economy. The Mausoleums are open to visitors daily from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. Booklets giving full information may be had at the Offices of the Company, 204 Harris Bldg., 110 West 11th St., phone MAin 1534.—[Advertisement.

WIFE WINS IN SPITE OF LOVE NOTE

Letter to "Dearest Daddy" Fails to Gain Point for Husband in Divorce

A letter to Dean Laughlin, in which Mrs. Sarah Carleton salutes him as "My Own Dearest Love Daddy," and expressed her desire to see him, in saccharine phrases, was introduced before Judge Guerin yesterday by William H. Carleton, her husband, during proceedings relative to appointment of a receiver to manage Carleton's skating rink pending trial of their divorce and annulment proceedings.

Mrs. Carleton wants the marriage annulled, charging that Carleton had another wife at the time he married her. Carleton replied to her suit with the assertion that his former marriage had been annulled prior to their wedding and with a cross-complaint named Dean Laughlin.

The wife asked that the rink, which she said netted an income of $500 and $600 weekly, be placed in a receivership to protect her interests. Despite Carleton's protests that the annulment suit and the receivership proceedings had been instituted by his wife so as to make it more convenient for her to engage in her romance with Laughlin, Judge Guerin held that appointment of a receiver would do no harm and named Willard Goodwin.

EDGAR DAWSON WILL SPEAK AT UNIVERSITY

Edgar Dawson of Hunter College, New York, will be an instructor of the University of California, Southern Branch, for lectures this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Millspaugh Auditorium. Dawson is making a tour of universities to present his arguments for a correlation of the social studies. Mr. Dawson spoke on this subject at the University of California in Berkeley recently and his lecture at the summer session will be open to the public. Dawson advocates that training in citizenship begin in the first grades through emphasis on social and moral values and that be consistently continued into college years. His lecture will be followed by a conference with those who are interested in the furtherance of this work.

PERIL OF FIRE CLOSES ROADS

Public Barred from Forest and Canyon Trails

Angeles Reserve Protected from July 4 Crowds

Dryness Makes Strict Rules in Woods Necessary

Twenty-six canyons and trails in the Angeles National Forest were closed to traffic yesterday by order of R. H. Charlton, forest supervisor, on instructions from the district forester. The order was made following approval by the Secretary of Agriculture on recommendations relative to protection against fire over the Fourth of July.

All will be closed through the remainder of the week and many of them, and perhaps all, will be closed through the remainder of the season, Supervisor Charlton said.

The closing order affects the following parts of the forest:

All of Wilson Canyon; Little Tujunga Canyon north from Shortcake Ranch; Trail Canyon trail from Big Tujunga to Mt. Gleason; West Fork of the San Gabriel Canyon from Camp West Fork to Bear Creek; Sawpit Canyon from Monrovia City Park to head of canyon; all of Spanish Canyon; Monrovia trail from Monrovia City Park to San Gabriel Divide; Fish Canyon Trail, from Fish Canyon Falls to Monrovia Divide; all of Brown's Gulch; Big Rock Creek from Lamel Ranch to mouth of Vincent's Gulch; all of Little Dalton Canyon.

DALTON CANYON

All of Big Dalton Canyon above Baldor Ranch; West Fork of the San Dimas Canyon, from Hines Peak to San Gabriel Divide; all of trail from San Dimas Canyon along the divide between San Dimas and San Antonio Canyon; all of Evey Canyon trail from San Antonio Canyon to head of Evey Canyon; all of West Fork Cucamonga Canyon Trail from Stoddard's Canyon to Cucamonga Canyon; all of Cucamonga Canyon; all of Deer Canyon, all of Day Canyon; all of Etiwanda Canyon; all of Sanwanda Canyon Road; Casey trail, Flat; Crest trail, from Cajon Ranger Station via Cajon Mountain to mouth of Cable Canyon; Crest trail from Sugar Pine Flat to head of Devil Canyon; all of Pleasant Creek, and the Santa Ana Canyon from the mouth to Keller Creek.

The strictest regulations ever enforced in the Angeles National Forest are necessary now to protect the forest in view of the extreme dryness, Supervisor Charlton explained. The danger from fire is extreme, he added, and carelessness in the management of camp fires or by smokers might start the most serious conflagration ever experienced.

FIFTY ACRES BURNED

A fire that burned brush on fifty acres in the Big Dalton Canyon, north of Glendora, was reported to the supervisor's office yesterday. Forest rangers were aided in fighting the fire by 100 men from Glendora, Azusa and San Dimas.

It is not known how the fire started, Supervisor Charlton said, but efforts are being made to apprehend three young men who were seen to drive away from the canyon in an automobile just before the fire was discovered.

In addition to the precaution of closing the canyons and trails to travelers this week orders have been issued to all forest rangers and guards to prevent fireworks in the forest. A large force of men has been employed by the department, cities and water companies

Tells How to Throttle Vices

Miss Theresa Meikle

Who thinks prosecutor's duty only has started when conviction obtained and who urges prison work as sequel.

CRIME END SEEN IN SCIENCE

Woman Assistant District Attorney of Bay City Urges Cell Observation for Reform

More scientific methods must be used in dealing with criminals if the number of crimes is to be reduced, in the opinion of Miss Theresa Meikle, assistant District Attorney and prosecuting attorney of the Women's Court of San Francisco.

Miss Meikle, now at the Biltmore, holds the distinction of being the first woman to be appointed Assistant District Attorney in California and she was the only woman attendant at the recent convention of the District Attorneys' Association of California in San Diego, where she made an address on "Suggestions as to the Discretion of the District Attorney in the Institution and Prosecution of Criminal Charges." She is visiting Los Angeles on her way home from the convention.

Miss Meikle's observations during the year she has held office have led her to the conclusion that not enough attention is paid to criminals after conviction.

"The duty of the District Attorney does not cease after the criminal is convicted," she declared. "The prosecutor should then interest himself in the individual in the hope of rebuilding his character. Only in this manner can the criminal tendencies be checked. Under our present system but little is done in the way of reformation of convicts."

Referring to the changes she believes should be instituted in the present system of dealing with criminals, Miss Meikle suggested the establishment of a department charged with the supervision of convicts.

"Tests should be made from time to time to determine the physical, pathological and psychological condition of the prisoners and the medical and psychological experts making these should submit reports of their findings to the judge of the court where the case was tried and the attorney who prosecuted it. This method would reduce to a scientific basis the question as to what action would be advisable in the case of any convict seeking a parole or pardon."

The Women's Court of San Francisco was established eight years ago. Before it is brought every case in which a woman is a defendant or complaining witness, Miss Meikle stated that an average of 500 cases are tried every month, of which about thirty are felonies, forty indictable misdemeanors and the rest misdemeanors.

Miss Meikle, who is a very young woman to hold so responsible position, was born in Globe, Ariz., and graduated in law from University of California in 1915, receiving the degree of doctor of jurisprudence. She was appointed Assistant District Attorney at the request of prominent members of a number of women's organizations in San Francisco who selected her as their candidate in response to a suggestion of Dist.-Atty. Brady of the Bay City that he would appoint anyone the women would agree upon as best fitted for the job.

OFFICER ADMITS TWO ROBBERIES

Refuses to Name Others Who Had Part in Crime

Another Man of Department Reported Involved

With a confession said by the police to have been obtained from Patrolman S. H. Millsap admitting taking part in two poker-game hold-ups came the announcement by the police last night that a ranking officer of the police department is involved in the investigation of the robberies.

Although Millsap was taken into custody Monday, his arrest was not disclosed until last night because of a desire to apprehend two men who are said to have assisted in the robberies. The officer whose name is linked in the inquiry into the hold-ups is expected to be questioned today.

Millsap's arrest was on complaint of H. Smith, who rooms at a Third-street hotel, where one of the hold-ups is said to have been committed. Smith passed Central Station Monday and, according to police, recognized Millsap as one of the three bandits. Smith immediately communicated with Assistant Captain of Detectives Cato, who with Detective Lieutenants Evans, Robinson and Lane, took Millsap into custody.

Following his arrest Millsap is declared to have confessed the hold-up in which Smith was one of the victims. This, the police said, occurred on June 2, last, in which the plunder was $50. The other hold-up, according to the police, was on May 20, last, in which a poker party at a South Main-street address was robbed of $75.

After admitting his guilt, according to the police, Millsap declared he was drunk at the time. The prisoner has refused to name the other two men who were said to have assisted in the robberies, the police declared.

Millsap, who is 24 years of age, joined the police department as a uniformed patrolman on January 21, last.

DEADLY AIM OF SAILORS IS REVEALED

Splendid results in torpedo marksmanship were accomplished by the destroyer forces of the Pacific Battle Fleet in the recent maneuvers off Los Angeles Harbor, it became known yesterday when the publication of photographs showing the various features of the maneuvers was authorized by the office of naval intelligence.

Actual torpedoes, minus the explosive heads, were fired at the battleships by the destroyer divisions and the fact that many of them found their mark was proved by pictures showing smashed heads where the deadly projectiles struck the iron sides of the ships.

On the other hand, almost unbelievable skill in dodging the torpedoes was displayed by the bulky dreadnaughts, on many occasions the battleships seeming to almost stand on end as the commanders swung them about to avoid the onrushing torpedoes.

After the battle was over, a detachment of destroyers cruised about in the vicinity of the maneuvers picking up torpedoes and saving them for future use. If a torpedo can be recovered, it can easily be fitted for use over and over again, thus saving considerable expense. Recovery of torpedoes is aided by the use of airplanes which fly over the battle area and locate them, indicating their position to the pick-up ships by dropping small smoke bombs.

WOMAN ACCUSES SALESMAN

Auto Dealer's Wife Collapses After Telling Story of Abduction and Attack; Warrant Issued

After reciting sensational details of how she was dragged into an automobile by a man of giant stature and carried to a lonely spot and there attacked, Mrs. Helen Hanley, attractive wife of Cal Hanley, automobile dealer of 116 North Western avenue, collapsed in the District Attorney's office yesterday and was taken to her home in a serious condition.

As a result of her story a complaint was issued by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Mackay against R. D. Steen, real estate salesman of 4430 West Pico street, charging a statutory offense.

HUSBAND ARRESTED

The asserted attack, which was said to have been committed Sunday morning, was brought to the attention of the police early yesterday morning when Steen's wife summoned Wilshire police to her home, where, she said, Hanley was threatening her husband with a pistol. Police answered the call and took Hanley into custody on a charge of disturbing the peace. Steen was also arrested on complaint of Mrs. Hanley in which she recited details of the asserted attack.

Hanley told Officers Grant and Cobler that he went to Steen's home after he had traced the number of the automobile his wife declared her assailant drove. When they arrived there early yesterday morning, Hanley said, Mrs. Hanley positively identified Steen, who is 200 pounds and athletic, as the man who had attacked her.

According to Mrs. Hanley's story to the police, which she repeated in detail yesterday at the District Attorney's office, she had been on a visit to the home of her brother, Osborne Dean, 8214 De Longpre avenue, Saturday night. She started home on foot ahead of her husband.

TELLS OF KIDNAPING

Near the intersection of Western avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard, Mrs. Hanley declared, an automobile drove up to the curbing. A man, whom she identified as Steen, invited her to ride, she said. In spite of her refusal, she averred, the man grabbed her by the back of the neck, with such strength as to cause her to partly lose consciousness.

Holding her with one hand, Mrs. Hanley declared, the man drove to the end of the Pico-street car line. He then dragged her from the machine, she said, to a clump of bushes. After holding her captive until nearly daybreak her assailant drove her to Western avenue and allowed her to go, she asserted.

Mrs. Hanley said she went home at once and reported the matter to her husband. With the description of the assailant and the number of the machine, she declared, Steen was identified as the man.

Steen denied the attack and declared he had never seen Mrs. Hanley before. He told the detectives that on Saturday night he was out with Glen Walker, 1044 Georgia street, a business associate, until past midnight.

Steen said he went home as soon as he left Walker and remained home with his wife all night. His machine, he declared, was left in front of his home all night, and was there when he left in the morning.

Mrs. Steen absented herself from the Steen residence all day yesterday and could not be found for questioning in regard to the alibi advanced by her husband. Detective Lieutenants Teal and Veit of the Wilshire Police Station stated last night after spending a large part of the day attempting to locate her. Neither was Walker found yesterday, the officers stated. An attempt to find them and hear their stories as to Steen's

TO ABIDE ON SEA OR LAND IS PROBLEM

Keeper of Harbor Light, Also Inland Postmaster, Must Make Choice

E. N. Varnadoe of the Marine Exchange, has boasted that he is the only deep-sea lighthouse-keeper in the world who lives twenty-five miles from tidewater and also holds the office of first assistant postmaster of Fontana, seventy miles inland. But tomorrow he must make his choice.

From the Washington offices of the United States Lighthouse Service yesterday he received a letter demanding that he immediately resign one post or the other. No man, declares the communication, can efficiently tend Inner Harbor Light at Los Angeles Harbor and at the same time deal out the mail of Fontana orange growers.

The post of keeper of the harbor light gives Mr. Varnadoe the munificent salary of $20 per month and it is understood the Fontana position brings him even greater revenue.

Mr. Varnadoe held a telephone conference on the subject with Solomon N. Jacobson, lighthouse tender of the Salton Sea. Mr. Jacobson advised his brother keeper to stick to the sea.

"I called Mr. Jacobson because he ought to have the 'low-down' on the situation," Mr. Varnadoe explained. "The Salton Sea, you know, is 202 feet below sea level."

Mr. Varnadoe gained his early training as a lighthouse tender while keeper of the river beacon at Timbuktu, along Mayo Balleo River in Central Africa. That position also afforded him the opportunity of making what entomologists declare to be a valuable collection of African insects. The countless bugs and beetles of the Congo were attracted from an area miles in extent by Timbuktu light. He now has the collection on display at his offices in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

BANDIT SUSPECT DIES

Negro Was Shot by Officer in Attempt to Escape

Marcus Johnson, negro bandit suspect, who was shot by Police Reserve Officer Hickey early yesterday when he attempted to elude the officer, died later in the day at the General Hospital.

The dead man and Benjamin Harris, white youth, had been arrested by Hickey and other officers after the officers found a pistol in a machine in which the pair were riding. Johnson started to run but was brought down by a bullet from Hickey's gun. Harris is held as a material witness.

PIECE OF SKULL DORIS EVIDENCE

Fragment of Woman's Head on Meyer's Corpse

Position Held to Show Shot Fired on Other Side

A tiny fragment of bone, a bit, the police contend, of the skull of Mrs. Therese Doris, was declared yesterday to be the strongest link in the chain of evidence connecting Charles William Doris, Long Beach capitalist, with the slaying of his wife and of Henry Dietrick Meyer, millionaire Pasadena merchant, rancher and oil man. Found on the collar of Meyer's coat as he lay dead in the Doris apartment, it negatives, the police believe, Doris's story that Meyer shot Mrs. Doris and proves that her husband killed her, either accidentally or to remove the only eyewitness to his asserted slaying of Meyer.

While the Long Beach detectives were assembling and checking over the evidence in the case in preparation for the inquest today, Attorney George L. Spicer, who represents Doris, was equally busy. He had sent Doris away from Long Beach for a rest, he said, but was working hard on the case.

"I have discovered evidences that substantiates fully Doris's story of the tragedy," said Mr. Spicer. "This will be produced at the proper time, and will result in giving him his freedom."

Doris, who was held Tuesday in $50,000 bail on two counts of murder, had declared Meyer shot Mrs. Doris and was then killed by the discharge of his own weapon, in a struggle with Doris. The shooting, Doris declared, followed a quarrel over money matters. Doris is said now to be in Los Angeles.

The bone fragment which the police declare to be the most important bit of evidence yet discovered, was found by Detective Sergeant Mosley a few minutes after the shooting, but its significance was not at first realized. The police explained that the shot which killed Mrs. Doris was fired from the weapon pressed tight against her scalp behind her left ear, so close to the ear that the lobe must have been pressed forward by the barrel of the weapon; that the bullet made its exit at her right temple, carrying with it portions of her skull; and that it would have been impossible for a fragment of the bone to have lodged on the shoulder of the person firing the shot.

Even if it had, the police declared, it would have been dislodged in the struggle which Doris declared had followed the killing of Mrs. Doris.

The bone fragment also proves, according to the police theory, that Meyer was killed first.

TELLS OF SHOTS

Mrs. Mary Puddifoot, who occupies an apartment next door to that of Doris in the Elleanor apartment building, told the police yesterday that on Monday, the day of the tragedy, she heard one shot, then moans, then two more shots in quick succession. The moans ceased after the second shot, she said. This testimony fits in with the elaborated police reconstruction of the slaying, the police declare.

The first shot, they believe, was fired by Doris at Meyer in the den of the apartment, when Meyer was standing in front of a curtain of heavy velvet or behind it; it passed through his head and dented a door, falling to the floor. They think the wounded man then attempted to struggle with Doris and was shot a second time; that Mrs. Doris attempted to intervene and received the third shot herself. The bullet that killed Mrs. Doris, the police say, struck a windown sill in a dressing-room and fell to the floor. It carried a bit of her skull with it.

TWO YOUTHS WOUNDED IN STREET ROW

One Stabbed and Brother Knocked Unconscious in San Gabriel Fight

A street fight between three white youths and five Mexicans and a negro last night at San Gabriel resulted in one of the white youths receiving critical knife wounds, while one of his companions was knocked unconscious. The assailants escaped in an automobile.

The most seriously hurt is Ben King, 28 years of age, of 700 Pearl street, San Gabriel, who suffered a deep knife wound near the heart. He was removed to the Alhambra Hospital, where it was reported he is expected to recover. His companion, who was struck on the head and severely cut, is his brother, Wilfred King, 20. The third youth, who escaped without injury, is Powers Garrison, 22.

According to the version of the altercation given the police at Alhambra and local detectives who were called, the three white youths and the others had trouble the previous night. Last night, six men, riding in an automobile, stopped near the youths. Words were followed by blows and several knives were brought forth by the Mexicans, it was reported.

LORENTZ WILL NOT RESIGN

Utilities Engineer Defends Outside Work; Head of Board Agrees; No Official Action Taken

Frederick A. Lorentz, engineer to the Board of Public Utilities, admitted yesterday that while an employee of the city he received money from the Acme Signal Company for professional services performed out of hour, but defended his action on the ground that it was known to the board, had the board's tacit sanction and was not in itself an impropriety.

Testimony to the grand jury is that Lorentz received $2000 at the rate of $400 a month and was to be given a percentage of the profits received from acceptance by the city of the company's traffic signaling apparatus.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Officially, no cognizance of the incident was taken yesterday, either by City Council or the board.

"I think, though," said Boyle Workman, president of the Council, "that it is a manifest impropriety for any city employee to accept money from any individual or interest which has business with the city."

At the City Attorney's office it was said that such a practice was not forbidden by city ordinance or State statute, but that it was not allowed under the office rules, in that department.

Lorentz said yesterday that he will await what may be in store for him and has no intention of resigning.

"My connection with the Acme Signal Company," he said, "was known to Commissioner Walter T. Leeds of the board as it is now

PASTOR ORGANIZES CHORUS OF BOYS

Third Group on Pacific Coast Is Started Here

"If more boys sing the right kind of music, then more boys will have the right kind of thoughts." From this idea Rev. H. E. K. Whitney, who organized a boys' chorus of 2000 boys in Portland, Or., now is in this city training one hundred boys here. The second endeavor at present is the concert to be given the evening of the 31st inst. in the Hollywood Bowl.

By then he expects to have perfected a chorus of boy voices, the first of its kind which he has organized in the West.

It is the aim of Mr. Whitney to form a national organization to stand for the developing of choruses in all the large cities of the United States. The headquarters will be found to have in Los Angeles, where he has been very successful in Spokane, Wash., and Portland, Or., the choruses there having 1000 and 2000 boys, respectively. Mr. Whitney plans to have 100 here as the nucleus of a larger body.

The first appearance of the boys will be at the First Methodist church Sunday evening. From then on it will make appearances everywhere. It is said to be nearer supporting than any other philanthropic organization in the world. A board of directors is being formed at present among prominent men and women of the city to manage appearances and to handle all financial matters in connection with its organization.

A uniform is to be worn by the choristers, similar to that adopted in Portland. It consists of a white shirt, white knickers, blue sash and cap. The boys are chosen more for their willingness and desire to

COURT MAY GET LICENSE BATTLE

Council Refers Protest to City Attorney

Dock and Wharf Company is Asking Low Fee

Interstate Business Volume Question Involved

Returned to City Council by the finance committee yesterday without recommendation, the protest of the Outer Harbor Dock and Wharf Company against paying a license fee of $12,000 to the Board of Harbor Commissioners instead of $6000, was referred back to the committee and the City Attorney, for further consideration. The company's former license expired June 30, last, and it is now doing business without authority.

Councilman Criswell, seconded by Mallard, moved that the protest be denied.

"We can't get anywhere with this," objected Wheeler, "the way it stands now. There are too many things we don't know."

His view prevailed.

Charles J. Colden, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, called before the Council to give the view of the board, said that the company passed under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission six or seven months ago; that he had no idea what portion of the company's business was intrastate and what portion interstate, or how that fact could be determined; but that until the board last May proposed to raise the fee from $6000 to $12,000 there had been no protest, although the company now suggests a fee of $1000.

The company's contention is that its interstate business cannot be taxed and that its intrastate business, undeterminable under the rules of accounting prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, is so small as to be negligible.

Councilman Musbet, speaking on the finance committee's report, said in part: "As the matter stands before us now, we don't know how much of their business can be taxed; they don't know and Mr. Colden here doesn't know."

Criswell and Mallard were for throwing the whole question into court, by denying the protest.

"If they go into court," agreed Musbet, "they'll have to make a showing of some kind."

BOYS' CHORUS FORMED HERE

enter the chorus than because of the quality of their voices. Mr. Whitney stated yesterday that he had discovered that even a boy with "no voice at all" is able after a few months in the organization to sing acceptably for group work. The splendid effect of the chorus work on the moral, mental and physical well being of boys is the motive behind the organization of these bodies of boys, according to Mr. Whitney, who left the ministry in order to continue the work.

"When a boy opens his voice to sing, he opens his mind to absorb the surrounding influences," he stated.

BAD-CHECK SUSPECT HELD

P. W. Rickey, said to be connected with a collection agency in the Broadway Central Building, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs Shultz and Luker for the San Luis Obispo authorities. It was said he was wanted on a bad-check charge.

DAYLIGHT SAVING CITY TASK

Governor Says Municipal Ordinance Would be More Effective Than State Law

Enactment of daylight-saving laws should be ordered by cities rather than as a Statewide measure by the Legislature, Gov. Richardson declared in a statement issued yesterday at Long Beach. The Legislature, he said, could enact such a law but it would apply only to State and possibly to county departments and would not be able to compel railroads, telegraph offices and business concerns to adopt the plan.

The Governor stated he does not think it advisable to call a special session of the Legislature. He expressed the opinion that cities could enact daylight-saving ordinances, but that they would apply only to city offices.

A plea for assistance of all State officials in the campaign for conservation of electricity to relieve the shortage of water was made by Gov. Richardson. All State officers were asked to use as little electricity as possible and to change their working hours if it will result in a saving of electrical current.

STOPS SIGNS

Power Supervisor Butler issued orders for elimination of all sign display lighting here except on Sundays and for strict reduction of other electrical energy used. Chief of Police Vollmer stated he will detail policemen to see the orders are observed.

Patrons of the Edison Company were notified by Supervisor Butler to reduce window and similar lighting consistent with public safety. In reductions in power consumption to agricultural users, Butler said, regulations will be guided by recommendations of the County Farm Bureau. Agricultural users are taken to include packing-plants, canneries, milk-handling plants and similar industries. A plan has been agreed on by representatives of the Farm Bureau and the Edison Company, it was stated.

Service curtailments already announced by the Los Angeles and Pacific Electric Railways as part of the general power conservation program were approved by the Board of Public Service Commissioners, with the understanding that they are subject to change upon notification by the board.

MAINTAIN SERVICE

"Generally speaking," says a statement by the board, "skip stops have been pared down approximately 40 per cent and the rush-hour service has been maintained as near 100 percent as possible, thus leaving only the valley periods for the major curtailment.

"Skip-stop changes probably will be completed by tomorrow evening, but the trainmen have been instructed to make present stops for a period of four days before conforming to the new stops, thus giving the public four days of grace to adjust themselves.

"This department is receiving daily petitions regarding skip-stop changes. This is expected and we wish to assure the public that these matters will be gone into thoroughly and carefully."

GIRL PREFERS HER MOTHER

Told Judge She Would Enjoy Trip With Father, but Turned it Down; Divorce Suit Pending

Eleven-year-old Lillian Claire Wagner decided that a trip to the Yosemite would not recompense her for leaving her foster-mother alone, when the proposal of Charles D. Wagner, her foster-father, that he take her on a vacation trip, was referred to her by Judge Burks yesterday.

Wagner has been sued for divorce by Mrs. Ethel M. Wagner, and Lillian, whom they adopted, was awarded to the custody of Mrs. Wagner pending trial. The family was in court yesterday on Wagner's motion for permission to take the girl with him on his vacation.

After listening to a few words from the warring couple, Judge Burks took Lillian into his chambers for a conference.

"Motion denied," he ruled after the conference. "Lillian says she would like the trip a lot, but she doesn't think she ought to leave her mother alone.

Mrs. Wagner, who listed $100,000 in community property in her complaint, named one Vera Howard in her suit. Wagner, in a cross-complaint, alleged she once warned him that he might get "what her first husband got," which he interpreted as a threat to run away.

SIGNS OF VIOLENCE

When Mrs. Hanley was examined at the Receiving Hospital, surgeons there stated she bore evidences of having been subjected to violence. On the back of her neck where she declared her assailant held her until she was nearly unconscious, the physicians found blue marks. She was in a highly nervous state as a result of her experience, the hospital attendants stated.

The complaint against Hanley sworn to by Steen when the officers went to his home yesterday will be dismissed, it was stated.

The date of Steen's arraignment had not been set yesterday and is expected to be held in abeyance pending further investigation.

ARREST NEAR IN ARSENIC SPRAY CASE

Celery Treated With Too Much Chemical Traced to Japanese Rancher

Arrests are expected today in connection with a shipment of celery from Los Angeles to Minneapolis declared to have been sprayed with enough arsenic to cause dangerous illness. The celery, 1500 crates in all, has been traced to a Japanese rancher near Los Angeles. His arrest, expected today, may be the beginning of a campaign against the use by celery growers of arsenic sprays of sufficient strength to cause illness.

Two years ago approximately fifty growers were arrested by county food inspectors on similar charges. At that time the officers were successful in inducing the farmers to reduce the amount of arsenic in their sprays, used for bleaching and pest eradication purposes.

A number of other shipments of celery are being traced, it was stated last night, so the celery may be seized before being consumed.

County Health Officer Pomeroy is in charge of the county food inspectors investigating the celery situation. Federal pure food inspectors are also conducting an investigation.

Mitchell Rites Next Monday in San Francisco

Funeral services for George M. Mitchell, 69 years of age, who died Tuesday as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident near Eureka on June 26 last, will be conducted at San Francisco next Monday.

GEORGE M. MITCHELL

Mr. Mitchell was associated with Marco H. Hellman for some years as private and confidential auditor, and also was president of Choice Productions, Inc. He was a Knight Templar, having been the first candidate knighted while the Cannon City Commandery, No. 9, was operating under dispensation. He was also the first Mason of Leadville, Colo. Mr. Mitchell leaves a wife, a sister, Mahala Mitchell, and a daughter, Mrs. P. D. Tyler of San Francisco.

GAME OFFICIAL ASKS PUBLIC TO AID

An appeal for the conservation of California's timber land which urges everyone to assist in the prevention of forest fires was issued yesterday by Edwin L. Hedderly, Assistant Fish and Game Commissioner in charge of the Southern Division.

"This year with mountain streams the driest ever, there is compelling need for far more than even ordinary care about fire," the commissioner's statement declares.

"Let every man and woman constitute themselves self-appointed fire-guards. If we watch our own actions and add a prompting word to the unwise there will be fewer fires and the wardens will be able to watch the danger spots more closely.

"Co-operation with all agencies seeking to minimize fire hazards should be the slogan of every mountain seeker this summer."

Commissioner Hedderly pointed out that there is no true sportsmanship without conservation. "Conservation of wild life means conservation of its habitat, which in turn affects our streams directly," he said.

Today mountain fires mean much more than loss of timber and denuding the watersheds with their effect upon underground water storage, the commissioner stated. Mountain resorts and playgrounds of California are affected, wild life is killed off or driven out and the streams are robbed of their fish.

NATIONAL FOREST AREAS ORDERED CLOSED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—Certain "high hazard" areas in national forests in California were ordered closed to all public travel, camping, fishing and hunting today, while four fires raged uncontrolled within the forest areas, it was announced at the headquarters of the United States Forest Service here.

The "high hazard" areas, all of them in the low brush country, will be closed over the Fourth of July holiday period and for the remainder of the fire season.

The situation was said by the Forest Service executives to be so critical that the closing order was necessary "both for the protection of the forest and of the public."

"Klieg Eyes" Hit Delegates to Convention

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 2.—"Klieg eyes," bane of the existence of moving-picture players, are troubling scores of Democratic national convention delegates.

The powerful Kleig lights used to illuminate Madison Square Garden during the night sessions were held to be basically responsible for the newest cause of suffering to the delegates, many of which for days have been complaining of sore throats due to the strain from cheering and the change of atmosphere and climate.

Sleepless nights and the dust in the convention hall are believed by eye specialists to have contributed, with the lights, to the mild epidemic of sore eyes among the delegates.

MAYOR WAITING ON CHIEF

Infers Action on Choice of Vollmer Successor Will No be Made Until Vacancy is Actual

Inferentially, Mayor Cryer gave it to be understood yesterday that he will take no open action on the appointment of a successor to Police Chief Vollmer until a vacancy in the department actually exists, and that when he does act, his selection will be made from among the eligibles who are members of the department. Such an inference would exclude Police Chief Kelley of Pasadena and narrow the choice to Capt. George S. McClary of Central Police Division and Capt. Robert L. Heath, in command of the Division of Records. They stand at the top of the list, in the order named.

The Mayor said that it was not given him to call upon the civil service commission for the certified list of eligibles until there was an actual, not merely a prospective, vacancy. Chief Vollmer has informed the Mayor verbally, but not yet in writing, that he will return to Berkeley at the expiration of his year here, August 1.

"As a matter of information, there is no doubt in your mind, is there," the Mayor was asked, "that Vollmer has resigned, effective on the first of August? And such being the case, you could make an informal selection now and thus give the man selected opportunity to consult with Vollmer as to his plans and policies while he is still here?"

"That's true," said the Mayor, "but the man to be chosen probably will know all about the job, anyway.

Both Capt. McClary and Capt. Heath are in daily contact with Vollmer and might be said to "know all about the job."

QUARREL DENIED

Meyer's two children, Elleanor and Henry D., Jr., who accompanied him to Long Beach, were questioned soon after the tragedy and told the police both were positive Meyer had no weapon. Eleanor told Detective Sergeants Ward and Mozley, the officers say, that after her father dressed she saw him place his wallet, keys and other things in his pockets, and that he could not have been carrying a revolver or she would have seen it. No stop was made on the way to Long Beach, the children declared.

If both the weapons can be proved to have belonged to Doris, the police assert, the case against him will be strengthened greatly.

Reports that Doris and his wife had been estranged for some time prior to the shooting were denied yesterday by Attorney Spicer and by other friends of the family. On the contrary, it was asserted, Mr. and Mrs. Doris were extremely devoted. The police said they were unable to find anyone who knew of a quarrel between the couple.

CHILDREN PROSTRATED

Wesley Ruggles, one of the two sons of Mrs. Doris, who is a film director, telegraphed yesterday from Chicago that he was on his way here. He made no mention of his brother, Charles Ruggles, an actor, but it is believed he also is hastening westward.

Two of Meyer's six children were reported yesterday to be prostrated by the affair. The eldest son, George Meyer, 21 years of age, was ill in bed and the daughter Elleanor was hysterical. Both were under the care of a physician.

The question of who called who on the telephone was said yesterday to have been settled. Doris made a call for Meyer, telephone company records show, it was said, but Meyer was not at home. When he returned he called long distance and was connected with Doris. Then, it is supposed, the appointment for Monday morning was made. The defense declared yesterday the point was unimportant, but the police pointed to it as another discrepancy in Doris's story of the shooting.

The inquest will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. today at McFayden's undertaking rooms, Long Beach.

Girl Killed by Old Rifle That Wouldn't Shoot

NEW YORK, July 2.—Another victim of the "unloaded" gun, Miss Wilhelmina Hessler, 20 years of age, died in Mary Immaculate Hospital, Jamaica. She was shot in the mouth accidentally by Fred Wouters, 24, who owns a delicatessen.

Miss Hessler was one of half a dozen house party guests at the Wouters home. They had finished a late supper and were dancing shortly after midnight when Wouters came in with an old .22 caliber rifle belonging to his 17-year-old brother, George.

The gun had been thrown about the house for two years and was believed to be broken so it would not work. George had taken it hunting several times but had been unable to make it shoot. About the house everybody not only believed it unloaded, but that it could not be fired.

Fred began playing "soldiers" and after marching up and down the room at "shoulder arms" he stopped in front of Miss Hessler, pointed it at her and playfully pulled the trigger. There was a spurt of flame, a cry, and the girl sank to the floor. She was rushed to the hospital and died two hours later without regaining consciousness. Though all present agreed the shooting was an accident, Wouters is being detained for questioning by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Wolff.

"Stolen" Child Had Only Been on Auto Jaunt

BOSTON, July 2.—When a stranger drove up to a South Boston beach and drove off with Betty Collins, 5-year-old daughter of Attorney Edward D. Collins the child's playmates became alarmed and ran to her home telling Mrs. Collins: "Betty's been kidnaped by a man in an auto."

Mrs. Collins notified the police and a description of the child and of the big limousine driven by the stranger was broadcast.

LA FOLLETTE CLUB

LORENTZ WILL NOT QUIT JOB

constituted, to former Commissioner John P. Kennedy and to the board that preceded this one. In fact, everybody in the office knew it. There never was any concealment.

"If anybody will take the trouble to read the report I made to the chief engineer of the board three years ago, he will find that it contained several criticisms of the apparatus as it was then being constructed and that these suggestions were embodied in the final contract entered into with the city."

E. F. Bogardus, president of the board, said that the connection between Lorentz and the Acme Signal Company first came to his attention a fortnight ago, when Lorentz informed him of it; that he saw no impropriety in a city employee performing work out of hours for private interests, as long as the character of his work for the city was not affected, if, as he believed, it was not forbidden by ordinance or statute, and that, personally, he had the highest respect for Lorentz's ability. The matter, he added, had not come before the board at yesterday's meeting and he saw no reason for taking cognizance of it in the present juncture.

The grand jury will resume its investigation of the matter today, and several new witnesses will be called, it was said at the District Attorney's office. Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Dept. Dist.-Atty. Shelley yesterday went over the books of the Acme Signal Company, which they had obtained by subpoena, looking for the names of other city employees than Engineer Lorentz, who, it was thought, might be mentioned. If any were found no announcement of the fact was made.

The investigators were seeking also to trace what became of 1000 shares of stock voted to Otto Schultz, an official of the company, as a bonus. Schultz is said to have declared he gave 500 shares of this stock to another man who was instrumental in obtaining the city contract for the company.

DUMPING OF DEBRIS IN RAVINE STOPPED

Presiding Judge York of the Superior Court yesterday granted a restraining order to the city against contractors who have been dumping dirt and debris in the Silver Lake ravine, thus blocking the Silver Lake Boulevard project. The survey for the new boulevard is now under way. It is proposed to use the ravine for a storm drain for the boulevard.

CROWD THERE, BUT ANN NOT

Court Throng Waits in Vain to See Miss Luther

Neither She Nor White Are Present in Hearing

Citation In $100,000 Suit is Delayed for Week

The crowd that jammed in Judge Oliver's courtroom yesterday morning in anticipation of seeing Ann Luther, plaintiff in a suit for $100,000 damages against J. F. White for asserted breach of contract, met with disappointment as neither Miss Luther nor White was present for a court hearing on an order in the case.

Miss Luther, film actress and wife of Ed Gallagher of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean, had asked that White, wealthy mining man and motion-picture producer, be cited into court on an order to show cause why he failed to answer certain questions propounded by Miss Luther's attorney while taking White's deposition.

The questions were said to revolve about the injection of the names of many prominent picture folk into Miss Luther's lawsuit. White was said to have declined to answer the queries on advice of his counsel. White's deposition, according to Ray Howard, attorney for Miss Luther, is more than 400 pages in length and is now in White's hands for certification before being filed with the papers in the case.

Hearing on the order to show cause was continued by Judge Shaw to the 10th inst. by stipulation of counsel. Leonard J. Meyberg, attorney for White, told the court the order had not been served on him in sufficient time to enable him to get his client into court. White was reported to be out of the city.

The courtroom was packed with men, women and girls yesterday, who spent the greater part of the hearing in asking each other if Miss Luther or White was in the courtroom.

Local Man Wins Coveted Honor as Yale Student

Herbert F. Sturdy of 2307 La Salle avenue, a member of this year's graduating class of Yale University, has been awarded the Alpheus Henry Snow prize of $500 as the senior who has done most for Yale. Notice of the award was received yesterday by the local Yale Club.

Herbert Sturdy

Sturdy graduated from Los Angeles High School in 1920 and has been at Yale for the past four years. He went to Yale after winning the $500 a year scholarship offered by the local Yale Club.

He was one of the outstanding students at the University and his scholastic average for the four years was higher than any attained by a student since the present system of marking has been put into effect there. The terms of the Snow prize provide that it be awarded to that member of the senior class who, through the combination of intellectual achievement, character and personality, has inspired his fellow students to the greatest degree.

GIVEN CRAFT IN FOR WORK AND CITY OF LOS ANGELES IS LARGEST JOB

During the month of June the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation completed extensive repairs on the liner City of Los Angeles, completed construction on the Wilmington Transportation Company's pleasure boat Catalina and repaired thirty-two tunnels.

The monthly repair job report issued at the general offices of the company yesterday shows that the larger jobs included those of the Alaskan, which was in on June 1 for extensive bottom repairs, painting and miscellaneous repairs to main engines, boilers, piping and auxiliaries; the Baltic, in for main engine, hull, boiler and electric repairs and the Tascalusa for bottom repairs and boiler mishaps.

The dry dock was used by eleven steam and yachts, chiefly for hull cleaning and painting.

Several yachts, including the Black Swan, Hopestill, Castana and Manetta were in for overhauling preparatory to cruises. The major of the remainder included tugboats and freighters.

HARRY McFARLAN IS MAN BEHIND THE GUN

One reason for the rapid strides being made by the new Harry McFarlan six, both in popularity, in distinctive design and in keeping a product of high-grade at a reasonable retail price, is Harry McFarlan, according to F. E. Lewis of the Lewis-Hall Company, McFarlan distributors in California and Arizona.

Lewis spent several weeks at the McFarlan factory in Connersville, Ind., during May and June. He became better acquainted with Harry McFarlan. He found that he is a virile progressive type of middle-aged business man who gives to the new issues of the day and vitally interested in the welfare of his chosen business and his country as a whole.

"Fine blood in middle-aged men is about the way to put it," says Lewis. "Mr. McFarlan is interested in sports, in national affairs, in finance and in every line of manufacturing that may have any kind of a bearing, directly or indirectly, on the automobile industry."

COUNCIL SCORNS FREE HELP

Offer of Traffic Expert of Harvard Research Bureau Looked Upon With Skepticism

Inability to deal with the growing traffic congestion of Los Angeles and unwillingness to take advice were admitted and asserted by City Council yesterday in one and the same breath.

There came before Council a communication from the Traffic Commission offering the free services of Miller McClintock, head of the municipal research bureau of Harvard, author of the Detroit traffic code and nationally esteemed as an authority in his specialty, to consult with the City Attorney in framing a new simplified code for Los Angeles.

SEES CODIFICATION NEED

"Los Angeles," said the letter, "has a mass of traffic ordinances which are contradictory—many of them unenforceable—and it is our belief these should be codified and simplified."

Councilman Criswell wanted to know what portions of the city ordinances were unenforceable.

"It is my understanding," answered Mushet, "that the police department takes it upon itself to decide which shall be enforced and which shall not."

"Just so," assented Criswell, "but that isn't saying that the ordinances cannot be enforced. "We've spent quite a lot of money on traffic experts in the last three or four years and I don't believe we need any more information. We have all the information we need now in our files. There are certain things that we know we've got to do.

"We've got to stop parking in the congested district, and we've got to make certain streets in that district one-way arteries, but we can't do it because of the pressure of affected commercial interests which object, and unless and until we do, all the advice in the world is of no value."

Mushet was of like mind. "This is an old matter," he said, "and it keeps coming up. We have the Automobile Club and the Safety Committee and the police department and the Police Chief and the Traffic Commission and the Parking Commission and the Board of Public Utilities and I don't know what other authorities. We've got about fifteen doctors and they don't agree."

Mallard and Baker were both suspicious of a concealed attempt to put Mr. McClintock on the pay roll. "He'll come along pretty soon," predicted Baker, "asking for a big salary."

A motion by Criswell to file the communication—equivalent to ignoring it—failed to find a second, and it was referred to the Safety Committee. Sanborn, chairman, and Baker and Mushet. Sanborn and Allan spoke mildly in favor of the offer, as something that cost the city nothing and promised to yield valuable results.

Mr. McClintock was introduced to the board of directors of the Traffic Commission at luncheon at the Elite. He has been retained by the commission to make a survey of Los Angeles traffic ordinances, with a view of simplifying and codifying. He will be here for ten weeks and it is hoped during that time he can work out a model set of traffic regulations which will be easily understood not only by the local motorists, but also by visiting tourists.

Mr. McClintock said in his address that good traffic regulations should handle traffic rapidly and with safety. He pointed out that no matter how many streets the city has, it never will be able to get the best use of them without proper regulations.

Official Word Here of Death of F. Obrikat, Sr.

Official confirmation was received here yesterday of the death of F. Obrikat, Sr., on board a steamer while crossing the English Channel, June 8, last. Death was due to heart disease. The body was cremated in Europe in the presence of relatives and the American Consul-General in Hamburg.

Mr. Obrikat came to Los Angeles sixteen years ago and was a pioneer in the local fur business, making numerous fur collecting trips to Alaska, Siberia and Europe for the Obrikat-Meyer Fur Company, of which he was president. Last year the firm retired from the fur business and entered the finance field under the name of Obrikat-Meyer Finance Corporation.

Mr. Obrikat is survived by his widow, a daughter, Estella, and two sons, Franz, Jr., and Edward R., all local residents.

DEMONSTRATOR SALE IS HELD

There are some car in every automobile establishment that receive the most painstaking attention. They are kept in perfect running order, serviced right up to the minute, no squeaks or rattles, motor running easily and smoothly, no stiff turn over. They can be stepped up to a good brisk clip without any internal injury to the motor. They are the demonstrators, the cars that are carefully broken in and never abused, the cars which are used to show the new owner what his new car will be like when he has it nicely broken in, and just as carefully serviced.

Motorists that know keep an eye out for demonstrators whenever they are in the market for a new car.

The White Auto Company is staging a "demonstrator sale" which includes both Auburn and Stephens sixes, classified as "slightly used" by the trade, but actually just nicely broken in, so that the owners will not have to nurse their cars along at twenty miles an hour or worry about "burning up" a new car that is still stiff and tight.

SAFETY FACTORS BRING A LOW INSURANCE RATE

Just as any city where the electrical regulations are extremely strict—Pasadena being a notable example in this section—is given the advantages of an exceptionally low fire insurance rate, so are automobiles which are well protected against possible blazes allowed minimum rates by the fire underwriters.

This fact was pointed out yesterday by Robert S. Breyer, vice-president and general manager of the Troy Motor Sales Company, Nash and LaFayette distributors, following receipt of latest rates on cars for fire and theft insurance.

That the low theft insurance rate is the result of an efficient in-built transmission lock and an ignition lock, both of which are opened only with special Yale keys, was the further explanation of the Nash executive.

SPEEDERS ARE FINED

Justice Baird conducted weekly speeders' court yesterday. He assessed fines on the 175 defendants appearing before him for a total in excess of $2000.

James R. McClumb was fined $200 for driving his truck in a reckless manner and forcing other motorists to scurry to the side of the road for safety. Mrs. E. G. Wilkins was assessed a fine of $250 "on general principles." The court was unable to find out who drove the car in which the Wilkins family was riding and imposed the fine to make sure "justice was done." The Wilkins machine was speeding.

W. J. Wagner paid a fine of $100 for running over a fire hose.

ESTATE MUST PAY TAX

Mrs. Jennie L. Dryburgh, widow of Alexander Dryburgh, who died here March 23, 1923, must pay the State an inheritance tax of $4964, it was announced yesterday from the Los Angeles office of the State Controller. Mr. Dryburgh left property amounting to $136,227. According to the will Mrs. Dryburgh will receive the entire estate save for a $1264 bequest made to Arthur J. S. Dryburgh, a son.

Second Divorce Comes as Last Tot Succumbs

BOSTON, July 2.—The sacrifice some women will make for their children have been declared beyond all understanding.

Mrs. Emily Claremont of Somerville, even went so far as to marry her own husband, it was brought out in Suffolk Divorce Court.

Back in 1903 she married him the first time. Two children came, but Claremont, his wife asserted, associated himself with light company. She divorced him and took the children.

One of them died. Because she wanted the remaining child, a daughter, to have a daddy, the Somerville woman married her own husband over again. This was in 1917.

But Claremont once more took up his butterfly pursuits outside of his home, she declared. Then the second child died and she no longer was compelled to sacrifice, she said.

Judge Sanderson granted her second divorce.

TICKET SALE OPENS

Film History of World War to be Shown for Veterans' Aid

Several hundred members of Quentin Roosevelt Chapter No. 5, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, yesterday began selling tickets for "Over the Top," government film history of the war, which will show at Philharmonic Auditorium one week starting the 14th inst. The proceeds from the sale of tickets will go toward the fund for care and maintenance of disabled veterans.

The picture is seven reels and is an official government record of important battles of the World War. Headquarters for the ticket-selling campaign are at Philharmonic Auditorium under the direction of H. B. Miller, show manager, and Harold Williams, chapter commander.

SEVENTEEN APPEAL TO RAIL BODY FOR WATER

In a complaint filed yesterday with the State Railroad Commission seventeen residents of Canterbury Park, a subdivision near Long Beach, seek to force Mrs. Greek Canterbury and others to continue to supply water to them. It is asserted the defendants for a year have been operating a pumping system whereby water was furnished the plaintiffs, but that it recently has been discontinued and it is feared sickness will result in the community. Engineers from the commission have begun an investigation of the circumstances. Date for a hearing has not been set. The plaintiffs are represented by Attorney Homer Johnstone.

GRAYS PLAN PROGRAM

Military Organization Has Full Schedule for July

The California Grays have outlined a busy program for themselves during the coming month. Friday they will participate in the July 4 parade and celebration. A business meeting will be conducted next Monday night at 1301 West Seventh street, and on the 14th inst., silent manual, platoon and squad drills will be conducted. The rifle manual and rifle exercises will be gone through on the 21st inst., and guest night will be observed on the 28th inst.

BAKERY CELEBRATES LOS ANGELES NIGHT

Los Angeles Night was observed last night at the new $500,000 plant of the Holsum Bakeries in Beverly Hills. The symbolic couple, Beauty and Industry, whose wedding was solemnized with the formal opening of the plant, returned yesterday from a brief "honeymoon" and greeted visitors to the plant. More than 10,000 persons attended the community meetings during the past week, according to J. W. Costello, general manager of the Holsum Bakeries of Texas and California. The Beverly Hills plant is the third to be opened by the company.

WAR-TRIED LOVE ENDS IN DIVORCE

Valentina Zimina

A marriage that survived the hardships of revolution-swept Russia and two years of wandering before a haven was reached in the United States, was severed yesterday in Superior Judge Hollzer's court, when Valentine Zimina Jackovieff was granted a divorce from Alexis Jackovieff.

After an escape from Siberia the couple reached San Francisco in 1919, Mrs. Jackovieff testified. She said she learned English quickly and obtained work. Her husband found the strange language difficult, she declared, and was not able to find work, so she was forced to support him.

When her husband did master the language, she declared, he assumed a patronizing air and would not contribute to her support. Mrs. Jackovieff, who is a singer and dancer, using her maiden name, came to Los Angeles, she said, but her husband remained in San Francisco and refused to send her any money. She got the divorce on the grounds of desertion.

HEART ATTACK KILLS F. H. SOLOMON'S AUNT

Stricken with heart disease while attending a theater in San Francisco yesterday, Miss Ophelia Bear, aunt of Fred H. Solomon, local dance-hall owner, died almost instantly, according to word received here last night. Miss Bear, who was 63 years of age, had lived here for some time. Her body will be brought here for services, after which it will be sent to New Orleans for burial.

NOT SO EASY

Prof. David Houston says that the Klan should disband in the name of patriotism and peace. But there is too much rake-off to be disposed of by snapping the fingers.

REFRESHMENT NOTE

Over 7000 quarts of whisky was confiscated by dry officials during the first week of the Democratic convention in New York. Bourbons without their bourbon must feel rather wry.

ON WITH THE DANCE

Our Sunday-schools are agitated over dancing and card playing. They are trying hard to find substitutes for them. Possibly it would be safer to recognize cards and the dance and have them indulged under parental supervision. These pastimes are harmless of themselves and only become objectional when abused.

MUCH MARRIED

A man recently married is already asking for a divorce. He had heard indirectly that his wife was a grass widow, but he now finds that he is the lady's eighth adventure. It is no fun to be pointed at by the neighbors as the eighth choice of any woman—even if she be a Hebe. So he packed his valise and quit. Now he wants a decree that will help him to forget it.

THE ECONOMIST

In connection with discussion of the budget and government business President Coolidge firmly announced: "I am for economy. After that I am far more economy." These words should become immortal because they are spoken by one in authority and one who intends to realize upon them. Economy will not be merely a word or a promise while Calvin Coolidge is in command. It will be rigidly applied, even if it sears like a branding iron.

MONTANA MUMMIES

If Montana's mummies are not Pharaohs, but grasshoppers. In the warm, moist climate of Montana before the Ice Age cloud-like swarms of grasshoppers lived. When the climate turned cold the grasshoppers became immured in the ice and there they have remained, in cold storage, down to this day. From the Mt. Wise glacier, outside Yellowstone Park, Margaret Lindsley has recovered quite a collection. Although thought to be 500,000 years old, the grasshoppers are in a good state of preservation. Egypt's mummies may be more manlike, but ours are at least 100 times more venerable.

LIVING FOSSILS

A party of University of Pennsylvania explorers has gone to South America to obtain motion pictures of a prehistoric bird, the hoatzin, which never quite attained birdhood. It is a bird in the making, a near-bird caught with the gear of the flying reptile still on it. It is more bizarre than an ostrich, for it has claws at the angles of its clumsy wings which it uses for climbing. Besides being loathsome to look at, the hoatzin has a raucous squawk and a nauseating odor. A feather is said to be a glorified scale, but the hoatzin's scales did not glorify. This unfinished bird lives in British Guiana and, like toads and frogs, is a living fossil. It is not far removed from the fossil bird called the archaeopteryx, which had a vertebrated tail and jaws armed with teeth.

FOOLISH FANCIES

The new creed which is supposed to represent the ideas of Democracy calls for an American-owned merchant marine. It should be American-built and manned by American crews. The government should own and operate such ships without obstructing the development and growth of privately owned American shipping. There must be no subsidy. All this sounds as if it might have been written by a Philadelphia lawyer, but never by a seaman. If the nation is trying to economize it can never achieve it by engaging in the shipping business. The government cannot even secure enough American sailors for its American ships when it tries to run them. If a Democratic administration purposes to embark in the shipping business and create a merchant marine on its own power we can promise it a deficit of $1,000,000,000 a year.

GIVING ASSURANCE

If More wise men from the East are coming. These are the experts who can take a man's bust measure and the age of his Aunt Jane and compute his expectation of life. They are the actuaries of the big insurance companies and they will be a section of the approaching assemblage of the National Association of Life Underwriters, who will convene in this city the week of July 22. It is figured that some 3000 officials and workers in this great field of endeavor will be here. The men who take your life on the endowment plan are fine fellows and they do more than their share in keeping the world green and amiable. Life insurance is now considered the commonest of necessities and men buy it with the same calmness and candor as they do their food and clothing. As Shakespeare says: "Then every god did seem to set his seal to give the world assurance."

A PLEA FOR TOLERANCE

The unenviable position in which the Democratic party now finds itself through the Ku Klux controversy is one upon which its opponents can afford to look with regret rather than with contumelious scorn; for it is an issue not limited by party lines.

History teaches no clearer or more vital lesson than that any political organization which permits itself to be misled by a set of men whose minds are warped by religious or racial rancor quickly becomes a menace to good government.

It is a pity, and a great one, that the Ku Klux Klan should have triumphed at the New York convention. To assert the negative is to take but a shallow, opportunist view of the sad consequences that must inevitably follow the deliberations of that or any other great political assembly where a spirit of religious or racial intolerance is invoked to the degree that it must be placated.

What a spectacle for the foreign onlooker in sympathy with our nation and its best institutions! We are a great people, living in apparent unity under an orderly government and, of a sudden, this devil's hoof of religious and racial hatred protrudes itself in a sickening and dismaying way.

Carlyle, who predicted giant problems for America, hardly could have previsioned such a one as this; for, with all his crustiness, he was a believer in the eventual disappearance of religious intolerance and, after all these years of religious freedom, one might have felt safe in assuming this condition for our country.

The Sage of Chelsea, as well as the wise men of all ages, not only felt but advised perfect toleration. He could see and set forth the heroic qualities of Abbot Samson as well as those of Cromwell, of Mohammed and of Moses, and he could set these great figures up as divinely human examples.

But your Klansman, if he knows history or enlightened literature of any sort, heeds it not. In a great church replete with works of worth he recognizes only evil. He relegates to himself the right to regulate religious, political and social affairs. In a smaller way he is in the position of Marcus Aurelius, who, while writing his "Meditations," a highly spiritual philosophy of life, was practicing imperial tyranny amid universal corruption and calmly assenting to the throwing of Christians to the lions.

Bryan, wrong in many other ways, was right when he declared that no religious test could be required for an office of trust under our government and that all efforts to arouse religious dissension should be discouraged.

The political policies and intrigues of the Klan will be rebuked and repudiated at the polls, but the great pity remains that the flapping of its nightshirts should have so awed a great party convention. In these enlightened times it is almost inconceivable that men professing the highest principles should pursue such a narrow course, and yet the thing actually has occurred.

But it must not recur. Militant religious bodies must not be allowed to clash in convention halls. They must learn that there as elsewhere they are expected to recognize the rights of others and, whether a group of people be Catholic or Protestant, the right to adhere to and to practice its particular creed must be respected.

Such defiance of the spirit of religious freedom for which our forefathers fought so nobly—the spirit that shines from every page of our great Constitution—must not be permitted to assert itself in such a way.

HEEDLESS AMERICANS

According to private communications from Japan received by The Times, Americans traveling in the island kingdom are in part responsible for the resentment expressed by the Japanese over the Exclusion Act. These American tourists are inclined to patronize the Japanese, to assume airs of superiority and condescension that inflict mortal wounds on Japanese pride.

Too many Americans disregard the racial sensitiveness of the Japanese. They have as high codes of honor as our own, but they are differently expressed. No people resent more deeply the patronizing demeanor of the average American traveler. He is convinced of the superiority of all things American; and when he sees things that are done differently he insists that they are done wrong.

The Japanese are not concerned about any economic question in relation to exclusion. They are not dollar diplomats. But they feel that America scorns them as an inferior people when it only partially excludes Europeans and totally excludes Japanese. If the island people could be brought to understand that it is not because America deems them inferior, but because it finds them unassimilable, that it makes the exclusion absolute, that it is a question of blood and not of honor, it is possible that their resentment would fade. Our people desire to live on terms of friendship and equality with our neighbors on the western shores of the Pacific.

A little more consideration and restraint on the part of Americans traveling in Japan would lessen the embarrassment of the Department of State in dealing with the Japanese exclusion incident.

KEEP THE "WHITE SPOT" CLEAN!

Amid the expressions of general regret that Chief Vollmer should have decided to retire from the Los Angeles police department, after a year of active and efficient service, there sounds a determined note that none of the ground gained during the last twelve months shall be abandoned. Chief Vollmer has always enjoyed the confidence of the community. While the number of deeds of violence committed in the city during his term of office would indicate to the uninformed poor police service, thoughtful citizens are well aware that they are due to exceptional conditions here, and in the world at large, and not to lack of efficiency at the head of the department.

Policing Los Angeles is a difficult problem. The rapid growth in population and industry has caused the city to run away from the department. It was organized to police a city of not more than 250,000 population and was necessarily inadequate for a city of 1,000,000. The Councils of the past were not accustomed to such large police budgets. They suggested extravagance; and the result was that the department remained undermanned.

Due to the prosperity here while many other parts of the country were suffering from business depression, Los Angeles became the Mecca for hundreds who live by their wits. They flocked to the "white spot" looking for easy money. As the California automobile registration climbed toward the second 1,000,000 the number of officers, too, required for crossing duty was vastly increased. This service made a serious inroad on the number of officers available for general patrol duty.

No Chief, however highly endowed, can give satisfaction with a force that is undermanned and underequipped. The public showed its recognition of this fact when it voted in the spring elections for a bond issue to provide substations and a modern police signal system. The people are back of the city officials in their attempt to afford adequate protection to life and property.

It was due to the efforts of the Crime Commission that Chief Vollmer was induced to come here last year. The commission will work with the municipal authorities to secure an efficient successor. Chief Vollmer expressed his appreciation for the voluntary aid he received from the Crime Commission while here; and the commission will be equally diligent in the support of his successor.

The main point is that the constructive reforms now under way must not be abandoned. The increase in the police force already approved must be accomplished. The new Chief must be placed at the head of a department manned and equipped to protect life and property in a city of 1,000,000. The taxpayers of the city demand such protection and they will not shrink from paying the bills. Los Angeles must not become a rendezvous for lawbreakers. A vigorous campaign in the interests of law and order must be maintained until the word goes forth through the underground channels of the world of crime that the climate of Los Angeles is deadly for crooks.

THE FOURTH ABROAD

The Tampico (Mex.) Tribune has just arrived with a big first-page story under a double-column head relating that the "Glorious Fourth of July will be celebrated by Tampico Americans with a monster excursion on the Panuco River." Half a dozen huge barges—and the barges the great oil companies use to transport oil down the Panuco are as huge as they make 'em—will be hitched together and towed up the river by a steamboat. There will be music and dancing and fireworks and the Declaration of Independence will be read. And each barge, the Tribune quaintly tells us, "will be provided with chairs to sit on and bars to stand at, so it will not be necessary to pass from barge to barge, either to sit or to stand."

When we think of what the Fourth of July means to Americans in a foreign land we realize better what it means to us. At home, in normal times, one is not likely to care much for the reading of the Declaration of Independence. Many are rather inclined to shy away from the more solemn forms of patriotic observance. They like having a holiday, but grouch about the noise. Listening to some, aliens in our midst might get the idea that the Fourth was invented by the fireworks trust instead of being a day of patriotic rejoicing for national liberty.

But when one gets into a foreign land it is different. Then every sight of the Stars and Stripes thrills. If we see it on a ship coming into port we are interested in that ship. If we see it over a consulate we feel almost at home. And when one of our national holidays approaches we get big around the heart and moist about the eyes in our pride and thankfulness for the great boon of American citizenship.

Throughout the world, wherever two or three Americans can gather together, this Fourth of July will be celebrated and the observance will be heartfelt and reverential. The Tampico affairs of great personal importance, involving fortunes, will be put aside and utterly forgotten, for the time, and the same spirit will prevail among Americans in many other foreign cities.

Shall it prevail in your house here at home? Shall the day make you, too, fully sensible of the blessings of American liberty?

THE VERDICT

A Connecticut court and jury adjourned to make a personal test of the question whether a kennel of twenty barking fox terriers constituted a neighborhood nuisance. It did.

Seeing Things

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Reclaiming Criminals

The world is getting better. There are abundant signs. Not only in the international field, to be sure, but in the daily contact and relations of fellow-human beings. Men are taking an active interest in reclaiming criminals from the underworld. That is a Christian attitude. No longer is the released convict avoided like a leper. He comes from a hospital where he has undergone a cure. He has expatiated his crime. There must be some welcome for him upon his return to society. Preparations are made in some cities that he may take up the studies he should have taken up earlier in life.

A Change of Front

Chancellor Marx of Germany enters the Ruhr and says that his government seeks world reconciliation. He says Germany lost the war and is anxious to pay for the damage. That is a ray of light amid the dark clouds of Europe. A significant admission to be made at this time. French officers in the audiences sent by Gen. Degoutte, the Military Governor, wait for the word of swaggering insult. But it does not come. Marx talks about reconciliation. World reconciliation. He is right. Not only Germany but also France and Belgium need change their attitude of senseless vindictiveness.

At Their Own Game

George of Givechsburg, former King of Greece, has refused to abdicate. A committee of Greeks came to tell him in the palace of his mother-in-law, Queen Marie of Rumania, that Hellas had decided on a republic and that the King was requested, in the interest of patriotism and general prosperity, to resign his job. George said he wouldn't do it, because there had been no referendum of the people. George has hopes that his mother-in-law will be able to persuade the Rumanian people to take up arms against Greece to get even for the insults to her children. But Russia is watching with hawk eyes. The moment the Rumanian army marches away against Greece the Red divisions enter Bessarabia. In the meantime 100,000 Greeks living in Rumania will be expelled. The ancient game of the people being no more than pawns in the hands of quarreling royal families is still going on in the Balkans.

A Glimmer of Light

Strange things are going on behind the scenes in Russia. Trotzky, banned for six months, comes back and talks a language that is understood all over the world. Without sacrificing his Communist principles, Trotzky makes this important declaration: "As long as we live in a world where Communism is not universally accepted, where bourgeois governments dominate, we must try and seek the confidence of those governments and the only way to win that confidence is by paying our debts. Not only the debts contracted by ourselves and Kerensky, but the old Czarist debt as well." Trotzky is violently denounced for his opinions by George Zinovieff, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Third International. But the fact that he even made these utterances is significant and important. A couple of years ago he would have faced a death sentence and been punished as a traitor to the revolution. Not so now. Some people are beginning to think in Russia.

The New Spirit

The world is growing better. There are abundant signs. Men are coming to the point of view that force is answered with force, that nothing is gained with blood and iron. Belgium and Holland are not going to war over the disputed Flemish regions north of the Scheldt River. They will call their seventh commission of arbitration to see if an understanding can be reached. In the old days brothers would be killing brothers long before this. That idea seems to have gone by the board. A new spirit has invaded the councils of nations. True, the diplomats are stirring uneasily. Their gain and glory lie in secrecy and vile intrigue. But if the people are to decide matters, if the men who are to do the bleeding and the dying are to settle disputed questions, there will be more and more reason and more round-table conferences before the sword is unsheathed and the machine guns begin to spit death and mutilation.

THIS IS THE DAY

The massacre at Wyoming, Pa., took place in the year 1778. A force of Indians and border rangers in the service of Great Britain fell upon the settlers of the Wyoming River in Northern Pennsylvania who numbered about 3000. The settlers were overwhelmed by an ambuscade of Indians. Two hundred and twenty-five scalps were taken in half an hour. The British lost two whites killed and eight Indians wounded. Next day the entire valley was ravaged, 1000 houses were burned and many women and children were killed. The majority escaped and fled eastward.

The naval battle of Santiago was fought in the year 1898. It resulted in an American victory that practically ended the Spanish-American War. The American loss was one man killed and one man wounded. The Spanish fleet was destroyed, 350 men killed and 1774 were taken prisoners. The whole time of the battle was three hours and fifty minutes.

FLYING CHIPS

BY ALMA WHITAKER

One of the pet sports on the beach at Catalina Island these days is guessing and betting on sex.

You see, the girls—especially the swimming, diving, athletic girls—are not only cultivating boyish haircuts this year, but boyish figures, too. The boys, on the other hand, still go in for pompadour hair-cuts. As for bathing suits, perhaps there is some subtle difference somewhere, but it takes a connoisseur to discover it. And when it comes to expert swimming and diving and talented athletic stunts generally, well, you can't prove the sex of the specimen by that.

So we have a great time under our gay umbrellas deciding which are which. Voices are about the only sure evidence—and even those can be misleading on occasion. In the end no bets are settled until the parties finally desert the beach and dress for dinner.

We also observed that more boys have naturally curly hair than girls. That fooled us several times. A long wavy pompadour on a lithe, slender boy, competing with a very straight, short-cropped girlish head—and both of them with violently sunburned noses and husky, young, well-molded arms — fairly flummoxed us.

Another prevalent style this year is the white, bell-bottomed, sailor pants. These are worn by girls and boys alike over their bathing suits instead of wrappers—usually without upper concealment. If it is chilly these may be surmounted by a mannish-looking sweater—both sexes. As they all stroll up the beach, boys and girls both carrying Japanese sunshades, guessing sexes becomes harder than ever. Dash it all, the girls even walk with a boy's stride.

Quite a funny sight to see scores of young people getting into white trousers right there on the beach. They even play golf in this rig-out sometimes—confusion worse confounded.

Bathing caps are not being worn much this year—but when they are, boys anxious to control pompadours wear them more often than bobbed-hair girls.

Altogether, anything under the age of 20 or so is pretty hard to distinguish in the matter of sex.

There must be something about ships that makes everybody feel cuddly. On that two-hour trip across to the island all sorts of the most unlikely looking couples snuggle up to each other. Seats everywhere on every deck chock-full of snuggly couples who don't care who sees them. And coming home all the children snuggle up to mother and dad, and even the unescorted girls snuggle up to each other.

And while, of course, these masculine young girl athletes surely do lack the enchanting romance of the fluffy, girlish girl—they do seem to snuggle just as much the other kind—and appear to have more opportunities for it. It wasn't these young, mannish, bobbed, little creatures who were reduced to snuggling with another girl! Nay, nay, nay! The girls consoling each other, unescorted snuggling were all the well-made-up little fairies with sticks and applied cosmetics, just oozing old-fashioned, lovable femininity. The young men were all boy style—hair, clothes, language an' everything. Even the married snuggling couples can even do that—found a lady sport-clad and practical, probably bobbed.

Which reminds me. I sailed with a lady fellow-traveler on the homeward trip if she didn't just love Catalina Island.

"No," she snapped, "I simply had a hateful time."

"Good gracious, what happened?" I pondered, wondering if they had installed the summer rates on the boat before July 1.

"Oh, no, it was all my fault. It was all wrong. I hadn't a single garment in my wardrobe that was suitable. If I had I were in the wrong time of day. I thought at least my stylish fancy silk pongee suit and handsome knitted sweater cape would be all right—but no. Everyone was wearing either plain, black, wool bathing suits, either old sweaters or those awful trousers. I would have looked a fool in those, but I looked a perfect fool in my fancy rig-out. What do the stores sell 'em for?

And she actually cried in her humiliation and chagrin. She hadn't a chance to snuggle up to, although she was quite young and was wearing a frightfully expensive fur trimmed coat.

One simply cannot control one's sort of anguish.

BY DAVID STARR JORDAN

Another species of trout has been found in an isolated lake of the High Sierras and has been given the name of Salmo rosei. It is a large and very vigorous form with a long, pike-like head, depressed above, the body much spotted with black and the anterior border of its lower fins orange or white from base to tip. The adipose fin is edged with inky black and there is a rosy band along the side of the body and a blood-red blotch at the base of each paired fin.

The fish was found by George R. Culver, dean of men in Stanford University, and Dr. Wyckliffe Rose of the Rockefeller Foundation, for whom, at Mr. Culver's request, the species was named Salmo rosei, by Jordan and Alexander. The first account has been lately published, with a fine figure, by the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. The specimen figured was taken by Mr. Egerton Lakin of Palo Alto and others by Eric Knight Jordan.

Lake Culver, from which these fishes were taken, is the largest of a little group of lakes at an elevation of 10,500 feet, tributary to the Big Arroyo on the northwest side of the Kern River Valley, in the depression next north of the Five Lake Basin. The outlet of Lake Culver is a small waterway leading into the Big Arroyo, itself impassable for trout. This form is beyond doubt a variant of the common Kern River trout (Salmo gilberti,) produced (as are the three species of golden trout) by long isolation from the parent stock. As new and peculiar forms of land life are developed on lone islands in the sea, so are new forms of river life developed in isolated ponds or streams.

The largest of the Rose trout taken was nineteen inches long. "One catch of five fish on California Coachman flies made the limit of ten pounds. They are good fighters and, unlike the trout in many overstocked mountain lakes, were in excellent condition both as to flesh and color."

Probably the five species of trout in the Kern Basin, set free by anglers who have transferred them from one basin to another will soon hybridize, producing a variety of forms. I may here place on record the original localities to which each species was restricted by lava dykes and waterfalls.

Salmo gilberti, the main Kern River.

Salmo roosevelti, Volcano Creek.

Salmo whitei, south fork of the Kaweah.

Salmo rosei, Lake Culver.

Of the last four, Salmo whitei and Salmo rosei are nearest the original stock of Salmo gilberti, and their isolation is doubtless of much more recent date.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By The Foothill Philosopher

There was much food for thought at the food show at Exposition Park. All food for the stomach is food for thought—in more than one way. In the first place, all of us that one thinks of eating is very thinking about seriously before the things one eats, and the way he eats them, have a great deal to do with the character of his thought and conduct. As a man eateth so thinketh he.

"Food is the producer of thought." Man does not know how this is done, but science and reason have shown that this statement is true.

Thus declared Bishop Chester Ward Locke in a recent interview given the writer of this article. If this be true, how careful one should be in his choice of food!

It is impossible for one to consume vast quantities of unwholesome or unclean food in a ravenous manner and possess the strong body, clear mind and dominant will of the person who eats clean, wholesome foods temperately. This is a moment of the man and women you know, remember what and how they eat and you will agree with me. Mind you, I am not speaking of mere weight, but of the general physical, mental and moral health of that being that calls himself man.

In many ancient religions fasting was considered a sacrament and a sacrifice. This attitude certainly does not detract from the value of food to the body and the attitude alone, without considering the possibility of food as transcendental substance, has a tendency to strengthen the finer senses of the sensibilities of the eater.

The mind of man is the instrument of his soul, or spiritual body. The physical brain is the instrument of the mind. It follows, therefore, that if the brain be not supplied with pure blood (which comes from pure food) the whole system of man's being will be thrown out of gear and inharmony will be demonstrated in disease and conduct.

Those who decry things as of little value, and yet hold those as of prime importance, should pause to consider the fact that thought itself is material, since it is produced from form and substance. Thought, like that which produced it, can be changed in form and quality, can be made beautiful or deformed, can grow and develop.

Originally built of Virginia sandstone, the house was called, during its earliest years, the Executive Mansion, or the President's House. But since 1814, during the administration of President James Madison, the house has been known throughout the world as the White House.

ARABIAN NIGHTS REVIVED AT KHJ

"Thief of Bagdad" Theme Sung for First Time

Other Notables Contribute to Splendid Bill

BY CLAIRE FORBES CRANE

Every man is but twice a child. In the truth of these words of Shakespeare lies the secret of existence. The human faculty of play which slumbers in the adult awaiting the arrival of the prince of fancy to awaken it, is the sedative which lulls earthly cares to sleep. The inclination to occasionally spread one's wings of imagination and take flight into the land of make-believe is the ointment which soothes the reality and which at some time or other offers the only haven of peace and rest. In this common love of Fairyland, a feature of KHJ program last night struck a responsive chord. A thought of the Arabian Nights was given birth in "Thief of Bagdad" musical theme which was sung for the first time before the public. Still unpublished, it was sung from the original manuscript in duet by Frederick Huttman, tenor, and Miss Victoria Johnson, coloratura soprano, accompanied by Ione Gilbert. The musical score for this number was written by the noted New York composer, Mortimer Wilson, and from it was taken the duet which was exquisitely rendered last night by two genuine artists.

Frederick Huttman, the male member of the duet, is credited with the leading roles of no less than fifty-eight operas and about 30 oratorios and cantatas. For a number of years he appeared in the leading tenor role in the Royal Opera, Berlin, and during this time he brought into bloom the hidden talents of present-day well-known opera stars of Europe. Fate brought him to Los Angeles recently and in that brief period he has established himself as a vocal instructor who brings to his work the rare combination of poetic soul, musicianship and vocal experience gained by many years in artistic endeavors. His solos last night was of silken texture, a phantasmagoria of color and of undying warmth. His other contribution to the evening was "Out on the Desert," by Lawrence Kellie.

Miss Victoria Johnson, the other important half of the duet, is a well-known member of Los Angeles musical circles and a coloratura soprano who is equally at home in both art songs and the vocal literature which calls for brilliant florid passages. Accompanied by Ione Gilbert, she also sang "A Million Stars," by Theodore Frain, and "The Crying of Rain," by Campbell Tipton.

GAYLORD TRIO CHORUS

The notables who gathered to assist the remainder of the evening's program are rarely assembled in the same recital, making it indeed a noteworthy musical event. It presented the Gaylord Trio and Ellen Beach Yaw. The trio, appearing through the courtesy of the Gaylord Apartments and under the management of Selma Wade, is composed of Lucien Cantant, pianoforte; Winifred Hamilton, violin, and Marion Mathews, 'cello. Opening their program with selections from "Madame Butterfly," this trio disclosed itself as a living symbol of the artistry which breathes from the structure they represented. Every trio number rendered with a body of tone that was as closely woven as the finest tapestry and scintillating with a myriad of colors, while the technique was striking but delicately restrained. Their well-balanced program was formed of "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," by Seitz, and arranged by Mona Content; "My Spanish Rose," by Jose Rodriguez; "By the Waters of the Minnetonka," by Lieurance; "Roses of Picardy," "Mighty Lak a Rose" and the waltz from "Ballet Suite" by Tschaikowsky. In addition to this delightful trio numbers each member of the Gaylord Trio rendered one solo.

Another vivid personality, a singer who stirred vast and discriminating audiences in the past and who still retains the virility of the artist, was the noted soprano, Ellen Beach Yaw, affectionately known as "Lark Ellen." Ellen Beach Yaw will be more easily remembered for the sensation she created in her earlier years at the Metropolitan Operahouse in New York City. Her reaching the heights of A above high C provoked a torrent of commendation and still is a topic of conversation in musical circles. An echo of that triumph was heard in her interpretation last night of a program which revealed the artistic sense of proportions and an intimate knowledge of program construction. It was her last appearance in this section of the country until her return from Europe, for which point she leaves on Saturday. Georgiella Lay, who rendered a properly subdued accompaniment, contributed several solos which proved excellent additions to the concert.

EVENING PROGRAM

The evening was brought to a close by Dr. Mars Baumgardt, who delivered another instructive and interesting dissertation on the eyes, devoting this evening to "Defective Eyes."

The Children's Hour had as its overture a romantic tale of American history unfolded by Prof. Walter Sylvester Hertzog. He was followed by Dickie Winslow, who departed from his usual reportorial role and displayed his versatility by entertaining with a pianologue appropriate to Independence Day.

The heritage of talented parents was revealed in the excellent performance given by John Knox, violinist, and Edith, Knox, pianist, son and daughter of Harry Knox, whose flute has been heard many times at KHJ, and Mrs. Harry Knox, whose accompaniments are also known to radio listeners. Young John was accompanied by his mother and rendered a well-selected group of numbers in a fashion to satisfy the most sensitive ears. His sister, Edith, was a surprise to those who had heard her last recital at KHJ. The amazing improvement in her musicianship was more than gratifying. These two gifted young musicians will undoubtedly command the attention of the public on a day not far distant.

The noon program introduced Eleanor J. Warner, mezzo-soprano, who, accompanied by Helene Peabody, sang "Carmela," and "Old Maids Song," by Gertude Ross, and "Contentment," by Pearl G. Curran. Dick Kennedy with his piano-accordian was also among those present and played his numbers in his customary and entertaining style.

Dismisses Case Because Nose of Dry Agent Only Reason for Warrant

Something more than the odor of fermenting mash is necessary as evidence on which to issue a search warrant for a private residence under the Volstead Act, Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan held yesterday when he dismissed a bootlegging charge against Phillip Rubino, 1312 East Sixty-third street. The court ordered a verdict of not guilty when Louis Remegie, former dry agent, testified he obtained a warrant for the search of Rubino's premises when the scent of new brew was wafted to his nose as he was passing the place.

Following dismissal of the case, Judge Kerrigan issued a bench warrant for Rubino's arrest on a charge of contempt of court because Rubino had failed to appear for the trial. Also the court cited the defendant's lawyer, Louis M. Powell, for contempt of court for the same reason. Hearings on the contempt charges will be held later. Rubino's bond also was ordered forfeited.

Rubino was arrested by Agent Remegie in October, 1923, on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. Remegie reported finding nineteen five-gallon bottles of moonshine and twenty-two fifty-gallon barrels of wine on the premises. When the case came up for trial Tuesday, it was continued a day when Attorney Powell announced that Wallace W. Davis, attorney of record for Rubino was out of the city but that he would be in court Wednesday.

Neither Rubino nor his counsel was in court Wednesday when the case was called. Being a misdemeanor case in which the presence of defendant or counsel was not necessary for trial, the court ordered that a jury be impanelled and evidence taken. When it developed that a search warrant had been issued without evidence of an illegal sale of liquor, the court ordered the verdict of not guilty.

Castigation for Absent Mate of Wife in Divorce

The full wrath of Judge Hollzer of the Superior Court was turned upon Rudolph Roth yesterday. But Roth wasn't there to hear what Judge Hollzer said of him after Mrs. Jessie Roth had completed her testimony and obtained a divorce decree. He was back in Illinois, where he owns considerable property.

Judge Hollzer was so aroused, however, he advised Mrs. Roth to bring her husband to California. Then, he promised, he would legally "sting" the absent husband to such good effect that he would not soon forget it.

Youth in Fire Case Is Given Psycho-Parole

A petition accusing Courtney Collins, 16 years of age, with setting fire to a score of houses and business places in the southwestern section of the city was dismissed yesterday by Judge Archbald of Juvenile Court, following a hearing at the psychopathic ward at the General Hospital and a resulting recommendation that the boy was not a fit subject for the Juvenile Court.

The charges against the boy have not been dropped, it was stated, but the dismissal means the case will not be given further consideration by the Juvenile authorities. Collins was placed in the custody of Psychopathic Police Officer Brown, who said the youth would be held at the General Hospital until he could be removed to a State institution, or returned to the courts of Ohio, from which State the boy is asserted to have come to California.

Man's Attempt to End Life Is Foiled by Wife

Prompt action by his wife prevented Walton White, 38 years of age, of 2102 Holly Drive from ending his life with gas yesterday, according to the police.

When White told his wife of his intention to commit suicide, she told the police, she went to the telephone to summon help. White tore the telephone from the wall, she said, and went into the bathroom, locked the door and turned on the gas.

Mrs. White ran out of the house and stopped a passing motorist, E. F. Henderson. Both tried to locate the gas cut-off under the house but were unsuccessful, she said. They called neighbors and the Hollywood police, and broke into the bathroom. White was unconscious from the effects of the gas when he was taken to a hospital, but will recover.

White, who is a plumber, had been in ill health for some time, his wife told the police.

FRANK JACOBS IS IN JAIL ON THEFT CHARGE

Frank "Toughy" Jacobs, a well-known figure to police, was arrested yesterday by Detective Lieutenants Katzenberger and Finn and placed in the City Jail on charges of grand larceny. At the time of his arrest the suspect is accused of having in his possession an automobile stolen from C. F. Davis of 427 Hope street, last May. Jacobs, according to the officers, has a plumbing shop at 3019 North Main street. He is said by police to be the head of an automobile theft ring.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

The marriage of Miss Irene Gertrude Blakeley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thornton Blakeley, to Howard Harvey Witte, was solemnized last evening, the Calvary Presbyterian Church being the scene of the ceremony, Rev. S. G. Livingston officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of white flowers, potted plants and palms, with great bows of wide, white satin ribbons topping the pew posts defining the aisle. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a becoming gown of white satin and lace, her veil of tulle and lace being held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried an arm shower of orchids, roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ellen Elledge assisted as maid of honor, wearing blue georgette and silver lace. A large picture hat completed the costume and she carried long-stemmed pink rosebuds. The bridesmaids, Miss Alice Mae Murphy, Miss Madeline Egan and Miss Elizabeth Oswald, wore old-fashioned gowns of taffeta, with full hoop skirts, lace pantalettes and quaint poke bonnets. They carried old-fashioned bouquets of garden flowers. George L. Coutts served Mr. Witte as best man and the ushers were Leon Knigley, William Egan and George Moore. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Oak street, South Pasadena, where the decorations were carried out with white wedding bells, lilies of the valley and white satin ribbons. Mr. and Mrs. Witte left for an automobile wedding trip through Northern California, which will include Lake Tahoe and the Yosemite Valley and after their return in August they will make their home in Pasadena.

New Home

Mrs. S. M. Goddard, formerly of 618 South Coronado street, has moved into her new home at 879½ South Norton avenue, where she is at home to her many friends.

For Voyageurs

Among the delightful affairs of the week was the bridge tea with which Mrs. A. V. Hayden entertained yesterday afternoon at her home in Browning Boulevard, honoring Mrs. Karl C. Gunness, who, with her son, Glenn, is leaving Sunday for a three months' trip through the East. They will go by way of Seattle, and Victoria, B. C., stopping for visits at Lake Louise and Banff, then on to Chicago and New York. Sixteen guests enjoyed the afternoon and wished the honor guest bon voyage.

Alaskan Trip

Home from Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Flemmish Albertson (Corrine Kengle) have returned from their wedding trip, which they passed motoring through Northern California. They passed some time at Carmel-by-the-Sea, later motoring to San Francisco, Lake Tahoe and returning home through the Yosemite. During the absence of Mrs. Albertson's mother, Mrs. Joseph Kengle, who is passing the summer in Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Albertson will be at home at 602 South St. Andrews Place.

Wedding Announced

Formal announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gane of 982 Hyperion avenue, Hollywood, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Vivian Gane, to Judge Dailey Shearer Stafford of Covina, the ceremony taking place at the family residence, Wednesday, June 25, at high noon. The house was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers, the marriage vows being plighted before an altar of greenery with great jars of hydrangeas at either side. The bride wore a gown of apricot beaded georgette, with a silver wreath in her hair, and she carried an arm shower of roses, orchids and lilies of the valley. Judge and Mrs. Stafford are motoring through the North, their trip taking them to Vancouver and the Canadian Rockies. They will return by boat and after August 15 will make their home in Covina.

To Summer Home

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hamlin of 445 Kingsley Drive, and their attractive young daughter, Miss Marjorie Hamlin, are moving down tomorrow to their summer cottage at the Uplifters Rancho, where they will remain for several months. Miss Hamlin, who just returned with her parents from an extended trip abroad, is planning to leave September 1 for the East, where she will enter the Ecole Francaise. Many week-end parties are being planned by the Hamlins for the friends during the summer season at their canyon home, which is one of the most charming of the group of homes at the Uplifters' Rancho.

Baier-Korsen

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ines Baier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Baier, to Joseph Korsen, the ceremony taking place Sunday at the Elite. The rooms were decorated with a color scheme of pink and white. The bride wore a white satin gown, with trimmings of crystal and pearls, orange blossoms catching her veil, and she carried an arm shower of orchids, bride's roses and lilies of the valley. After a wedding trip in the north, Mr. and Mrs. Korsen will make their home in Los Angeles.

Vogt-Provost

Of much interest to local society was the marriage in San Diego of Miss Constance Gertrude Vogt, daughter of Mrs. Katherine S. Vogt, of the seaside city, to Robert Delphin Provost of Los Angeles, the ceremony taking place in St. Paul's Church, Rev. Charles S. Barnes officiating. The bride was assisted by Mrs. William Wooters, Jr., as matron of honor, while Misses Dorothy Ferguson and Katherine Griffith Vogt were bridesmaids. Edward Selover of Los Angeles was best man. The bride was graduated from Bishops' School in La Jolla, and is quite prominent in social circles of the southern cities. Mr. Provost, who was formerly of Abbeville, La., is in the paymaster's department of the U.S.S. Procyon. He served as French interpreter throughout the World War. After an extended wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Provost will make their home here.

Theater Parties

Among the many society folk who entertained with theater parties at the Criterion last evening, to witness the premiere of "The Sea Hawk," were Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mr. and Mrs. William Wrigley, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan St. John, Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Urquhart, Miss Lenore H. King, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Maule, Maj. and Mrs. J. Clark Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

Up-to-Dateness

The skirt of velvet, seemingly inappropriate for summer wear, takes on new and interesting life when developed according to the latest mode. Very short, very scant and topped by a blouse of filmy crepe, related by means of a handsome girdle, which covers the line of contreat between skirt and waist, this latest dress is refreshing, despite its out-of-season seeming.

Summer Blanketry

Just why summer is chosen blanket sales is a matter of conjecture, but such is usually the case. Possibly it is that we thus learn foresight, in household providing, or it may be to encourage the habit of summer outaging, which is a sure relief for the home-keeper, wearied of monotony.

There is something more unusual, however, in that sale now in progress at that old reliable store. Reliability, by the way, is one of the abilities most to be prized when selecting blankets. For here, as in many other fabric goods, quality is more or less concealed, becoming a matter of confidence which the name of a reliable, long-established firm only can maintain. The colors and patterns in blankets this season are more than ever fascinating, shades and tints, plaids and stripes being obtainable not heretofore. Prices, also, are lowered.

Unsleeved

As the season advances, sleeveless garments gain favor. Dresses, blouses and even dresses of the sports-street variety come out frankly for bare arms; gloves joining the conspiracy by that length which is the soul of their very present. Flaring gauntlets seem to arm their wearers for the fray as the army of the bare-armed.

Wrapt up in Fashion

What a whimsical sprite Fashion is, to be sure! Not even unless testing her power upon her victims, she never fails to set a difficult problem. When she follows to one part of the season comfort, even laxity, she exacts from some other many a full toll in misery, or what will be unhappiness save for her magic sway. Does she permit short skirts and filmy hosiery for summer wear; then she elects to wrap the neck and throat to the ears in scarves or furs. If skirts are long and stockings protective from wintry blasts, necks and throats must be exposed. At present, as the thermometer mounts the ladder toward fame or infamy, so do scarves and chin-wraps mount also. But not though one smart in so small cause!

SCOUT TROOP 90 WINS IN PATRIOTIC DRIVE

Coincident with the American Legion campaign to "put up your flag or pull down the pole" in observance of the Fourth of July, it is announced that Troop 90, Boy Scouts of Los Angeles, sponsored by the Hollywood Post of the American Legion, is winner of the recent campaign of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce to put "a flag in every home."

Three prizes were offered in the movement and the first prize, a huge, silk American flag with a staff, was won by the Scouts. Members of the troop lined up in front of the Hollywood Athletic Club and the board of directors of the chamber praised them for their work, and made the official presentation. Film cameras clicked off the "story" of the award.

While a thousand of the Boy Scouts are now in Council camp in the San Bernardino Mountains, the other thousands still in the city will have many patriotic exercises tonight and tomorrow at their various troop headquarters. Troop 49 has announced an open visitors' meeting for this evening at Fifty-second and Hooper streets.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

TOMORROW WILL BE THE FOURTH!

It seems to me that when I was a child, the Fourth of July used to be a bigger holiday to look forward to than Christmas. We used to begin to save our nickels long in advance to invest in firecrackers and other wonderful noise-producing things—fireworks and more fireworks. I remember we always wanted to stay up all night the night before, so that we would be up early enough in the morning. When our parents insisted upon our going to bed, we would plan that the one who got up the earliest was to call the rest of the bunch.

What a thrilling day it was, so distinctive from all other holidays! It was the one day in the whole year when we were allowed to make all the noise we wanted—and were even aided by our parents in the progress.

How well I remember the day when one of my firecrackers didn't go off and I took it up to investigate the cause. As I was looking at it, it exploded right in my face, blinding me for the time but not leaving any permanent results. That put a damper on that Fourth for me.

I was fortunate. "Lucky Lulie," they called me—a name that has come to me for good reasons. Now while it happened that I was fortunate, there were too many others over the country who were not so fortunate—children who were blinded for life, others who had fingers and thumbs blown off, some who were killed outright, and still others who died later from the agonizing disease. Today we used to have a glorious, noisy celebration of the nation's birthday, but the aftermath of thousands of families was one of anguish and sorrow.

Do you know to what agency credit must be given for arousing the public to the crime of this useless maiming and killing method of celebrating the Fourth? It was the American Medical Association.

For years they have been gathering and publishing statistics of the injuries and deaths resulting from firearms and fireworks used on the Fourth of July. They obtained their data from regular hospitals, private physicians, emergency hospitals and health departments. Their statistics showed in one year that 6433 people were killed and injured. That year the association published the deaths and the injuries in a different form. They tabulated the reports from physicians of the largest cities and showed that lawlessness and disorder were permitted in those cities and that the city governments were responsible. Public sentiment was finally aroused to the horror of this inhuman method of celebration and laws were passed prohibiting the sale of certain types of fireworks.

But while the children perhaps did not enjoy the Fourth so much as we used to, because of its harmlessness, still we feel that we can have them get along with a little less excitement in order to keep them from being maimed or killed.

However, even with the simpler and safer forms of celebration, there are some accidents, so I think I had better give a few first instructions. I discussed burns in yesterday's paper, so I will omit that phase.

BLANK-CARTRIDGE WOUND

Remove all portions of the wad. Leave the wound open and, if necessary have it opened further by a physician so the oxygen of the air (in which the lockjaw bacillus will not grow) will reach it. Pour in full strength peroxide of hydrogen. This liberates oxygen. The antitetanic (lockjaw) serum should be given at once. When this serum is given, there need be no fear of death from lockjaw.

CUTS AND WOUNDS

First, remove all particles of dirt that can be removed. Cleanse with boiled water or pour in full-strength peroxide of hydrogen. This liberates oxygen. Paint over with half iodine and alcohol and put a sterile piece of gauze over the wound until a physician can be seen, if the cut or wound is of any size.

A happy national birthday to you!

HIGH COURT TO RULE ON ZONING LAW

Supreme Tribunal of State to Consider Twenty Cases in Local Session

The State Supreme Court, when it convenes in Los Angeles on the 22nd inst., for a two-day session, will be be called on to render final decisions in more than a score of cases involving many subjects and ranging from the problem of whether Los Angeles' zoning ordinance is unconstitutional to the granting of several convicted murderers the right to a new trial. The peculiar array of cases was made known yesterday when the court's calendar was officially given out by Clerk Hugh P. Coultis.

The court is to consider the appeals of Isaac Wolfgang, who was twice sentenced to hang for shooting a policeman after he was alleged to have stolen a bottle of milk, and the 17-year-old William A. Hard, who has begun his life sentence to atone for the death of Fred Skeen, Siskiyou county rancher.

Wolfgang lost his appeal to the Supreme Court recently, after being convicted of the murder of Officer Oliver V. Densmore on November 4, 1922. Superior Court reimposed the death sentence, but because Wolfgang was not present when this sentence was read, his attorney, Ernest B. D. Spagnoli, has again appealed. This appeal stayed his execution, which had been set for April 16, last.

Beware of Red Ants

Now is the time to watch out for small red ants, as they are very apt to get in the refrigerator, in no one knows what manner. Boiling water and then a liberal application of red pepper and borax will prove their Waterloo.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Strong Perfume

Flowers having a very heavy scent should not be used for table decoration. The strong perfume in a hot room will take away the appetites of some people and cause others to feel quite ill.

Doesn't Cost Much

If your gas stove is an old-timer and, though a bit shabby, is still perfectly satisfactory, purchase a white enameled stove tray and substitute it for the dark gray one that came with the stove. You will be surprised what a difference it will make and how much easier it will be to keep clean.

New Methods

The absorbent paper toweling bought by the roll is used by the modern housewife in her kitchen, replacing the old-fashioned roller. Besides being sanitary, it is much neater in appearance than the crumpled roller variety.

To Clean Isinglass

The windows in motorcar curtains soon become clouded unless care is taken. Rub them with slightly warm cylinder oil. Then wipe off oil with a piece of clean cloth. A clean cloth dampened with gasoline removes the remaining traces of oil and leaves the isinglass like new.

Investigation of Asserted Bucket Shop Requested

A request is to be made by the State Corporation Commission to the District Attorney to investigate the asserted bucket-shop operations of the firm of Regan, Rice & Lowery, Deputy Corporation Commissioners Woich and Praul declared yesterday following Tuesday's hearing before the commission when the firm's brokerage license was ordered revoked.

Transcript of the hearings before the department are now being prepared, the commissioners said, and will be turned over to the District Attorney.

According to the department several complaints have been received since the commission suspended the firm's business and these will also be submitted to the District Attorney for further investigation.

The commission returned its findings against the firm at the conclusion of the hearing Tuesday. At that time Commissioner Woich ruled that evidence showed that the firm had been operating a bucket shop and had also violated the Corporate Securities Act by not properly licensing its agents.

New Plan to be Tried to Handle Criminal Cases

A plan to reorganize the District Attorney's office in the interest of greater efficiency was approved yesterday at a conference attended by Superior Court judges handling criminal cases. It will be put into effect immediately, it was said.

The plan contemplates dividing the deputy district attorneys into six departments, corresponding to the six criminal departments of court, with a deputy in charge of each, who will be responsible for a case from start to finish.

The issuance of the complaint, the preliminary hearings, the gathering of evidence and the trial of the case all will be under his control. He will have charge of the investigators who inquire into the case and will be held responsible for its success by the District Attorney.

The judges who attended the conference were Judges Reeves, Keetch, Hardy, Hahn and Avery. The plan was presented by Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Chief Deputy Fitts. Judge Keetch declared the plan was the best he had seen for the organization of the District Attorney's work.

This Week's Beauty Hints

Love stories all tell of the heroine's beautiful hair because it is one of the features which most attracts men. No woman attains her full beauty until she has learned the proper care of her hair. This is chiefly a matter finding once for all the best shampoo. In washing the hair it is not advisable to use a makeshift, but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with a uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.—[Advertisement

Daily Fashion Hints from VOGUE

An Adaptable Costume for Town and Country

Here we see sketched one of those adaptable dresses that may be worn as its coat for the street—with a small hat, patent leather shoes and rose-beige stockings or for the country afternoon—coatless, a sun hat, white shoes, and stockings of sunburned color.

The dress from Lanlef, is made in a white crepe that shows a delicate design in black. Its sole trimming consists of three white buttons, but its cut is quite original, giving the appearance of a tunic. In the left-hand sketch, the big hat is black, with white trim.

The coat, from Renee, is in black satin, unlined, with quite a different arrangement and rows of bone buttons. It is light enough for the hottest days, dark enough for town, and very much in fashion's eye in a season when satin is so good. The little hat is in white straw with a touch of white.

How to Give a Linen Finish To Household Cotton Goods

FOR the starching of all household cotton goods use Linit, the remarkable starch discovery.

Linit is distinctly different from ordinary starches. After Linit is thoroughly dissolved and is ready for use, you will notice it is THIN and FREE-RUNNING like water—with a "milky" appearance.

USE but a little amount of Linit, according to directions, and unlike other starches, you will not find Linit stiff or jelly-like.

That is why Linit goes much farther than the old-fashioned kinds of starch, and is much easier to iron with.

AIRMAN AVOIDS HEAT IN FLIGHT

West Point Officer Makes Cross-Country Trip

Long Island to Coast in Four Days

Tourists coming to Los Angeles at this time of the year should travel at an altitude of 12,00 feet above the surface of the earth to avoid the sweltering temperatures that prevail at this season in the desert regions east of here, advises Capt. Paul H. Brown, instructor at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Capt. Brown knows whereof he speaks, his knowledge being based on his observations on his way here from New York in a De Haviland plane. He arrived in Los Angeles yesterday and is now a guest at the Rosslyn.

"It was my first flight from coast to coast and it was a wonderful trip," said Capt. Brown. "We did not attempt to break any speed records and did not fly more than about six hours a day. Our course was rather zigzag, starting at Mitchell Field, Long Island, and including Washington, Dayton, Detroit, St. Louis, Muskogee, Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso and Yuma. We made a stop at each place and the journey took about four days.

"Much of the time after leaving Oklahoma we flew at an elevation of 12,000 feet, a part of the time above the clouds. Flying high is the best thing I know to get away from the heat. The temperature is not cold enough to chill you and it has a peculiarly bracing quality."

Capt. Brown did not fly in the same machine the entire distance, changing planes and pilots at the successive aviation fields visited. At Yuma he was met by Lieut. C. C. Moseley, in charge of Clover Field aviation station near Los Angeles, in whose machine the concluding portion of the journey was made.

Capt. Brown stated that he had been granted a leave of absence from his duties at West Point to take a vacation. He will remain in Los Angeles several days.

WARNS OF FIRES ON FOURTH

Chief Scott Tells of Many Dangers Even From Safe and Sane Brand of Fireworks

Careful celebration of Independence Day this year is doubly necessary because of the dryness and shortage of water, according to Fire Chief Scott.

Despite the growth of the "safe and sane" Fourth idea and the prohibition by the authorities of certain types of fireworks, the Fourth of July, Chief Scott pointed out, is still a source of anxiety for the fire department. Even approved forms of fireworks, he said, if carelessly used may cause fires. Vast property damage, he stated, is recorded every year from fires caused by fireworks falling on inflammable roofs, under porches, in rubbish piles and on dry grass.

Chief Scott had drawn up a set of suggestions to avoid fire hazards in celebration of the Fourth as follows:

(1.) Obey the law by using only such fireworks as are permitted by ordinance. True citizens will do this without being told.

(2.) Don't shoot fireworks in the house, or into dry grass. A penny article of fireworks may destroy thousands of dollars, worth of your own and your neighbor's property. Don't forget that the largest fire started from a spark.

(3.) Don't forget that most pieces throw off sparks that will travel quite a distance before dying out. Set them on a cement sidewalk, in green grass, or on the bare dirt.

(5.) Don't forget that a safe and sane Fourth is for your benefit. This should make compliance with the regulations an easier matter.

(6.) Don't overlook the fact that the city has planned celebrations for the day. Take your lunch and your youngsters to one of the parks and enjoy the attractions.

(7.) In general; remember the fire department number (MAin 3375) and call if you have a fire. Don't wait until the fire is beyond your control before doing this. Learn where your nearest fire-alarm box is, if you live in a district covered by the present alarm system. Remember that the Fourth of July is a poor day to choose, for the burning of weeds and rubbish."

INVESTIGATE SUSPICIOUS TAXI REPORT

Sheriff's Men Get Story Hinting at Kidnaping and Robbery of Driver

Believing, from information furnished, that a driver of a Black and White taxicab was kidnaped and robbed early yesterday morning deputy sheriffs operating under direction of Capt. Bell, head of the robbery squad of the Sheriff's office, started an investigation. It was reported to the Sheriff's office by F. G. Gradler, foreman of the Masonic Home at Covina, that a Black and White taxicab was being driven about in Covina in an aimless fashion, with a Mexican driving and an American in the car.

The manager of the taxicab company reported that the car, the number of which was obtained, had disappeared at 3:30 a.m. The name of the driver was not given, though it was stated that he was a responsible man of good habits.

CITY CLUB APPLAUDS DON TYLER

Champion Delivers Oration to Members and Sons at Luncheon Program

Don Tyler, winner of the national oratorical contest, repeated his oration on the Constitution yesterday at the City Club luncheon. The attendance was unusually large and equally enthusiastic over the young Los Angeles high-school orator who made the same oration before the United States Supreme Court.

The program was a part of the Fourth of July celebration at the club, and many of the club members brought their sons to hear Mr. Tyler. These young men with their fathers crowded around the young orator to shake his hand after he had finished the address.

Justice Frank G. Forbes, who is an old friend of Mr. Tyler's family, gave a history of the contest, which was originated in Los Angeles last year as a local affair and later became a hotly contested national competition among high-school students.

West Prospect Sets Record in Round-Trip Run

Capt. H. A. Wilhelmsen, commanding the Shipping Board liner West Prospect, brought his 12,000-ton craft into her home port yesterday after having successfully loaded 3000 tons of copra at the isolated Philippine port of Legaspi—a dangerous feat made more hazardous by the fact that it was accomplished during the height of the monsoon and typhoon season.

The huge steamer was anchored in the open bay of Legaspi so that her stern swung up to within a few feet of the shore line and a rickety bamboo wharf, over which 120,000 bags of copra were carried on the ship by several hundred Filipinos.

Legaspi, isolated by the mountains and swamps of Southern Luzon, is cut off from outside civilization save for the Los Angeles-Orient liners of the Struthers & Barry fleet. The town lies under the shadow of the volcanic cone of Mount Ilang-Ilang, from whose lava slopes grow the flowers from which is manufactured the world's rarest perfume—ilang-ilang.

The West Prospect, a Los Angeles built ship, is home after a record-breaking trip of 122 days in which she covered 23,000 miles and visited eighteen ports throughout the Orient, the Straits Settlements and the Philippines.

She will depart for Hongkong on the 5th inst., after loading 20,000 cases of gasoline and kerosene and 1000 tons of general cargo for oriental delivery.

HAWAIIAN JURIST ON VISIT HERE

Bearing a message of friendship from the Hawaiian Islands to the people of Los Angeles, Judge S. Hookano, veteran jurist of Pearl City, Oahu, T. H., arrived here yesterday to view the wonders of Southern California. He was officially welcomed to Los Angeles by Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Pauline Steele, Los Angeles representative of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, with headquarters in the offices of the Los Angeles Chamber.

With a Los Angeles lei of pansies draped about his hat and with several strands of genuine Hawaiian lei encircling his neck, the island jurist, who is on his first trip outside the Hawaiian territory, began a tour of inspection of the Southland as a guest of the Chamber of Commerce.

A native of Oahu, educated in American schools in the islands and admitted to the bar in the Hawaiian territory, he has risen to the position of foremost jurist of the islands.

He arrived in Los Angeles from San Francisco and after a two weeks' visit here will return to the islands aboard the Los Angeles Steamship Company's City of Los Angeles, on her return trip to the islands after bringing the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce trade excursionists home.

While here a part of his time will be spent in visiting the courts of Los Angeles city and county. A trip through the studios in Hollywood, another through the industrial district of Los Angeles and another through surrounding cities and the rich agricultural country in Los Angeles county will be his itinerary while here.

BOWL MADE READY FOR MUSIC FETE

In preparation for the first summer concert next Tuesday evening, final touches are now being put on the Hollywood Bowl. F. W. Blanchard, managing director, is supervising the work of getting the bowl in readiness for the crowd of 20,000 people that is expected to attend the opening night's program to hear the music of Tschaikowski, Wagner, Liszt and Saint-Saens played by the orchestra of 100 musicians under the direction of Alfred Herts, conductor.

The new stage setting, costing $5000, is being designed by F. Harbaczek, Russian artist. Harbaczek is doing all his work free hand, using no stencils.

New ornamental lights, costing $1000, are now being installed, while workmen are lining up the benches to give every patron a good view of the stage. The orchestra is rehearsing each morning, while Bowl managers are speeding up the sale of season books.

There will be thirty-two evening concerts, in addition to three free afternoon concerts for school children. The evening concerts will be held each Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock from the 8th inst. to August 30. Season books, containing forty transferable tickets, good at any of these concerts, cost $10. Admissions at the gate will be 50 cents.

Tschaikowsky's beautiful Symphony No. 4 in F Minor from Opus 36 is announced by Conductor Hertz as his opening number Tuesday night. The soloist for the evening is Sylvain Noack, one of the orchestra's first violinists. He will play the prelude to "Le Deluge" by Saint-Saens. Liszt's "Libestraum" and Wagner's overture, "Rienzi," complete the program.

SUIT FILED TO RECOVER BOND LOAN

Altadena Women Assert "Doctor" Allbrexstondare Defrauded Them

Coming as a sequel to litigation involving the affairs of R. H. W. Albrexstondare, who was tried recently in Orange county on a charge of practicing medicine without a license, Jennie E. McFadden and her daughter, Jennie McFadden, wealthy Altadena residents, yesterday filed suit against Albrexstondare to recover $17,000 worth of Liberty Bonds they declared the defendant had obtained from them by fraud.

The suit was based on charges similar to those made by the plaintiffs in an action filed several months ago, but which went off calendar to pave the way for the present suit. Ruth Shaw and Sam Jernigan also were named defendants in the complaint, it being asserted they were in possession of some of the bonds.

The plaintiffs stated they loaned the bonds to Albrexstondare on his representations that he owned valuable property in the East and precious gems which were mortgaged and pledged and that unless he raised the money to pay off his obligation he would suffer great loss.

Among other allegations set forth in the complaint was one which stated Albrexstondare had represented to the plaintiffs that he had discovered a medicinal herb which would rejuvenate human beings. He also was declared to have told the plaintiffs that he owned land in Mexico and South America which was worth millions of dollars and that he had spent millions of dollars in medical research work. All the alleged representations were false, according to the complaint, which was prepared by Attorneys Hahn, Hahn and Landreth.

WEDDING SET

BETTY COMPSON WILL WED CRUZE IN FALL

By Grace Kingsley

The marriage of Betty Compson and James Cruze will take place in the fall, according to announcement made by Miss Compson yesterday.

And the beautiful young actress will not give up her career. She has a long-term contract with Paramount, and she and Cruze will therefore take only a brief honeymoon, to be spent on a ranch in Arizona. Later they want to go to Europe together.

The wedding will take place in the little Arizona town where Miss Compson was born. The place is called Frisco, and is now a completely deserted village.

The romance of Miss Compson and Mr. Cruze began just before Miss Compson went to Europe, about a year and a half ago. When she returned, six months later, it was renewed.

I remember once asking Miss Compson if she intended to be married soon, following the rumor that she was to wed young Walter Morosco. She said no, then she added laughingly, with a prophetic idea, maybe that when she married she wanted to marry a director—"a well-known director," she said, "a man who will be completely in sympathy with all my aims and ambitions and life interests."

Miss Compson's work in "The Enemy Sex," now playing the Metropolitan, and in other pictures, made recently, has placed her high among the famous actresses, and her popularity is immense.

PAULINE FREDERICK IS WITH UNIVERSAL

Pauline Frederick, star of stage and screen, has been signed by the Universal Pictures Corporation.

The star, who is now appearing in "Spring Cleaning" at the Playhouse, will complete her engagement there this week, and will start work within a fortnight in a special production to be made by Clarence L. Brown for Universal.

The name of the story has not yet been announced, but President Carl Laemmle promises it will be one of the big productions of the year.

Brown recently completed "Butterfly," an elaborately staged version of the Kathleen Norris novel, with Laura La Plante, Kenneth Harlan, Norman Kerry, Ruth Clifford and others in the cast. He will be busy for two weeks preparing the new story.

Jane Novak Writes In

Without telling us a thing about it, Jane Novak slipped away to New York. Not for fun did Miss Novak make this trip, however, but strictly in the interests of her art.

The actress is playing the feminine lead opposite Kenneth Harlan in the film version of Ruby M. Ayres's novel, "The Man Without a Heart," which Banner Productions is putting on in the East. And according to a letter just received from her, she has just finished a picture for Whitman Bennett.

"Here I have been in New York for the past month," said Miss Novak, "doing a picture for Whitman Bennett, and I won't be home for another month or so, as I am going to do a picture for Banner Productions.

"It is Democratic convention week here, and you never saw such awful crowds. They simply take your breath away. The city is all decorated and is very inspiring, with the national colors flying everywhere. But you should be glad not to be here. The heat and storms are terrible. I am becoming so thin you won't know me, and I am slowly smothering."

Billie Dove Indignantly Denies

If you have been thinking of Billie Dove as dancing around in the Follies, you are greatly mistaken. Miss Dove herself writes me from New York, with as much indignation as can be conveyed in a telegram, that it is nothing of the kind!

"Please deny any rumors," telegraphs Miss Dove, "of my return to stage. They are untrue as am leaving New York Thursday to visit Florida and Texas, then back to pictures in Hollywood. Have had just enough of pictures in the East these last few months to know that I would a thousand times rather make them in California."

Ernest Torrence Abroad

Not alone will Lois Wilson brave the dangers and terrors of the deep. She will be well chaperoned, even though, coming from Hollywood, one might reasonably suppose that the young lady would be able to take care of herself.

Ernest Torrence and his wife, and Mrs. Ruth Nagel, wife of Conrad Nagel, will sail with Miss Wilson when she leaves New York for Europe, to show to the British Empire Exposition in London just what fine specimens of young womanhood our picture actresses are.

Hoffman Picture is Released

Renaud Hoffman's production of the dramatic story, "The Legend of Hollywood," which Hoffman personally directed, and in which Zasu Pitts played the leading role, has been taken over for release by John C. Flinn, Hodkinson manager.

Schulberg at F.B.O. Studios

B. P. Shulberg has transferred his producing forces, it was announced yesterday, from the Mayer-Schulberg studios to the F.B.O. studios, where production will shortly begin. The name of the new organization will be B. P. Schulberg Productions, Incorporated. However the name Preferred Pictures, under which Schulberg has been producing, will continue to be employed on the screen in connection with the new name.

Louis J. Gasnier, who has directed most of the important Preferred Pictures, will continue with the new corporate nas director-general. Hhe will personally direct "The Breath of Scandal," an adaptation of Edwin Balmer's novel of that name.

The second picture will be an adaptation of David Belasco's "The Boomerang," the continuity for which is now being prepared, to be followed by "Paint Perfume," by Zona Gale; "When a Woman Reaches Forty," by Royal A. Baker; "White Man," by George Agnew Chamberlain; "The Triflers" by Frederick Orrin Bartlett; "My Lady's Lips" by Eve Unsell, "The Aristocrat" by Larry Evans and "The Mansion of Aching Hearts" based upon the ballad of that name.

Roberts's Return is Postponed

Admirers of Theodore Roberts are due for a disappointment. Mr. Roberts's return to the screen has been postponed, according to an announcement made today by Cecil B. De Mille.

Mr. De Mille planned to use Roberts in an important role in "Feet of Clay," which Paramount's director-general is now producing at the Lasky studio. Since his recovery from his serious illness, the veteran character actor has anxiously been awaiting Mr. De Mille's call to report for work. The producer visited Mr. Roberts yesterday, however, and both decided it would be better for him to rest another month before returning to the screen.

Victor Varconi, who made his first American screen appearance in Cecil B. De Mille's production, "Triumph," has been engaged to play the role originally planned for Theodore Roberts.

Varconi also was a featured player in "Changing Husbands," which was directed by Frank Urson and Paul Iribe, both of whom now are assisting Mr. De Mille in the production of "Feet of Clay."

Sol Lesser Announces Cast

The cast of "The Mine With the Iron Door" has been completed with the exception of one important role, according to the announcement of Sol Lesser.

An all-star cast is to portray the characters drawn in the Harold Bell Wright story from which the picture is to be made. In it are Dorothy Mackaill, Pat O'Malley, Robert Fraser, Charles Murray, Raymond Hatton, Mitchell Lewis, Bert Woodruff and Creighton Hale. Sam Wood is directing.

The picture is to be made in the same locale as the story was laid, near Tucson, Ariz., in the Canada del Oro, where Indian legends tell of hidden mines never discovered by white man, and of the mine with the iron door where fabulous wealth is said to be buried.

Rosemary Theby Signs

Rosemary Theby has been signed for an important role in Mary Philbin's new starring vehicle, "The Best Thing in Life," which Svend Gade will direct for Universal.

Laurette Taylor Tells It

The proudest moment in the life of Laurette Taylor, who is now busy at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio starring in "One Night in Rome," occurred when the completed film of her first motion-picture venture, "Peg O' My Heart," was first shown on a screen. It took the stage star a long time to get used to seeing herself in shadow form. Although she had played the role of "Peg" on the stage 1120 times, she was thrilled anew every time she saw the picture.

A portable projection machine was installed in her New York home, and every time the guests came she and her author-husband, J. Hartley Manners, showed "Peg O' My Heart."

"I brought the practice to a sudden end, however," Miss Taylor explained with a laugh. "I guess the picture didn't seem as wonderful to everyone as a steady diet as it did to me, because one evening when I was talking to one of my dearest friends on the phone, I asked that she and her husband come to dinner the next night.

"'We'll be glad to come if we don't have to look at "Peg" again,' she said. 'We haven't run the picture since.'"

Betty Blythe Is Smiling

Betty Blythe, of course, always wears those vampish smiles, practicing on everybody right and left, but yesterday there was almost a grin on the fair Betty's face.

Miss Blythe, who is playing the lead in Samuel Goldwyn's picture, "In Hollywood with Potash and Perlmutter," yesterday received a wire from Al Woods, New York theatrical magnate, that he has purchased the American rights to the foreign-made film version of "Chu Chin Chow," in which Miss Blythe starred, and which was made abroad, and that he plans an early release of the film.

Pat for the Radio

Pat O'Malley has three little blue-eyed, red-haired girls, as you know. The two oldest, Eileen and Sheila, went through their childhood at an age when the radio was still in its infancy. Today it is part of the equipment of every household.

One night when Pat was trying to see what he could pick up on it, Mary, the youngest, was doing her crying scenes just as he got San Francisco. A woman was singing who completely drowned out Mary's stuff. You couldn't hear her at all. And she probably couldn't hear herself. So, the competition being too much for Mary, not knowing whether she was crying or not, she stopped and listened. Then Pat got the idea.

He figured out that with a strong enough set he could make it work all day and all night until about 1 o'clock. So he rigged one up at the end of the baby carriage and put a loud speaker over the hood. It works like a charm. Whenever Mary starts to cry, the radio will play.

SOCIETY PICTURE IN DIFFERENT LOCALE

A story of American society in a rather different locale—China, is the prospect in "Unguarded Women," which features Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix and opens Saturday at Grauman's Metropolitan. The picture is based on the Saturday Evening Post story, "Face," by Lucy Stone Terrill, and was produced by Alan Crosland. It tells of the adventures of the widow of a soldier, who loses her social standing in Peking and plays high revel. Along comes the soldier's friend, morally obligated to the former for saving his life. He realizes that he is duty bound to rescue the widow from herself and re-establish her in society. He does this even though it means breaking his engagement with the girl he loves.

Vincent Lopez's Junior Orchestra also arrives Saturday to duplicate its success in other cities on the tour.

James Cruze's production, "The Enemy Sex," featuring Betty Compson, and Irene Franklin in her last week, continue to entertain Metropolitan audiences for the rest of this week.

NEW "REVELATION" TO BE SEEN SOON

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first super feature since the formation of this organization will be revealed at the California Theater beginning Friday evening, the 11th inst. It is the modern picturization of the story and stage play, "Revelation."

This is a new version of the story Nazimova came to the screen in seven years ago. Now it has been filmed again with all the modern improvements.

George D. Baker, who directed the original picture, was again chosen to handle the megaphone. He cast such favorites as Viola Dana, Monte Blue, Lew Cody, Marjorie Daw, Frank Currier and Edward Connelly in leading roles.

There will be but one performance Friday evening, but starting on Saturday performances will be continuous.

THREE NEW PLAYERS IN LEVEE PICTURE

They are Marc MacDermott, one of the pioneers of the screen, whose part in "While New York Sleeps" is still remembered; George Fawcett, veteran character actor of the stage and screen, and Lloyd Hughes.

The title of the new production has been definitely set as "In Every Woman's Life," the foreword inferring that in every woman's life there are three men, the man she might have married, the man she did marry and the man she should have married.

The continuity by Albert Shelby LeVino has just been completed. The production will be started within a few days under the direction of Irving Cummings.

Three Feminine Screen Charmers

At Local Theaters

Alma Rubens will be seen in "The Rejected Woman" at the California next week; Blanche Sweet is featured in "Those Who Dance" at Loew's, and Dorothy Dalton appears in "The Lone Wolf," which will play another week at the Mission.

"SEA HAWK" ENTHRALLS

Frank Lloyd Achieves His Biggest Success

Premiere at Criterion is Brilliant Event

Milton Sills Shines Out as Star of Feature

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

The grand old swashbuckling days are with us once again. "The Sea Hawk" visions them with a rip-roaring spirit of adventure. The picture is one of the ablest achievements in the history of the screen and in the current season shines forth as a magnificent flare among a host of flickers.

The premiere was the first big gala event that has emblazoned itself upon the scroll of happenings seemingly this season. It took place last night at the Criterion Theater, and an unusual assemblage of stars and producers and directors lent dazzle to the occasion, albeit it had the informal atmosphere of midsummer.

The reception accorded "The Sea Hawk" was in all respects justified by the nature of the entertainment. The production comes as a relief after the drab monotony of cheap sex pictures that seem to dominate the fare. It is with genuine approval that one looks on gorgeousness that fills the silver sheet with brilliance. It is with even greater approval that one gazes at this superficial glitter as something belonging truly and naturally to a big vibrant sort of story, filled with that suggestion of romance that inevitably is linked with the sea.

Sabatini, who wrote "The Sea Hawk," stands out from the majority of novelists in that his work seems admirably adapted to screen treatment. "Scaramouche" was also based on a story by him, and though "The Sea Hawk" embodies an entirely different idea and setting it has that true element of picturesqueness.

DIRECTOR AT BEST

Frank Lloyd has done his biggest work in this picture. In fact, it rivals some of the very finest spectacles that have ever been made. The touch is almost that of Griffith of the big battle scenes in "Intolerance," "Hearts of the World" and other pictures of that stage.

The main test of such scenes has been the avoidance of confusion, and except for a very few scattered moments the fights between the galleys of the Moors and Spaniards, and the Spaniards and the English, which occur during the unfolding of "The Sea Hawk" are carried out with terrific force and astonishing clarity.

The climax of the escape of the hero, Sir Oliver Tressilian, and Yusuf the Moorish leader, during the battle between the Algerian vessel and the Spanish, is one of the finest bits of action that has been screened in many a season.

Somehow the least interesting and most mechanical side of the feature is the intimate plot. The love between Sir Oliver and Rosamund does not mean a great deal nor does the feud between their respective families. The beginning of the film is a little slow as a consequence and the ending just a trifle inconsequential, but while the kettle drum booms in the orchestra to indicate the firing of attacking cannon, everything seems to take on the aspect of a good old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration.

Too, I must dwell on the fact that in building ships for this picture, duplicating ancient frigates, galleons and galleys, and using the number of people that he did in the bigger scenes, Mr. Lloyd has done something in the costume line that has an amazing reality. There is apparent, though not obvious, a remarkable discipline in the handling of the large mobs of people in an unusual environment.

PRAISE FOR SILLS

I can't mention in detail all the performances but I must give the majority of credit to Milton Sills for his very sterling interpretation of the hero, the Englishman who masquerades as a Moorish warrior.

It is a colorful character for any player to assume, but Sills has made it a triumph for himself. The best scenes that he does are those as the galley slave, and they are absolutely unforgettable.

To Wallace Beery will, as usual, go a huge share of the acting honors. He has done a character that comprises whatever there is of humor in the story. I believe that it is one of his very best achievements, and is more consistent and stronger even than Richard the Lion-hearted. Beery is always great mental relief, any way.

Lloyd Hughes, to my mind, is one of the most surprising personalities. He sustains the difficult role of the weak brother with a superior skill throughout. It is the more astonishing in his case because, as far as my recollection goes, he has had no experience in this costume feature, heretofore.

Enid Bennett is exceedingly effective in the slave market episode, and elsewhere her performance is pleasing and poised. Unfortunately the character is rather negative during the earlier episodes, but the sum of her portrayal is exceedingly good.

Wallace MacDonald is excellent while he lasts as the fiery brother of the heroine. His career is nipped very early during a fight with Lionel Tressilian. His place is important as his death is what sets the real plot going, and he puts over the role with real dash.

Albert Priscos, as the boorish galley prisoner, will also be remarked for his very vivid work.

I could give many mentions up and down the line, but I think that the most creditable performances are those of Frank Currier, Mme. Medea Radzina, William Collier, Jr., Lionel Belmore, Christine Montt, Kathleen Key, Bert Woodruff, Robert Bolder, George E. Romaine, Fred De Silva and Hector V. Sarno. Mention should also be made of J. G. Hawks, who wrote the scenario, and Norbert Brodin, who photographed the picture.

"The Sea Hawk" is a picture that really reflects tremendous credit not only on the director and leading players, but on the whole production staff, and it is such a rollicking tale of adventure, even if lengthy, that its popularity can hardly be aught but unusual.

CHEATS JAIL OF FAIR INMATE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SANTA ANA, July 2.—Pretty Mrs. H. W. Burland, young actress of San Diego, thanked her "lucky stars" here today that Judge J. B. Cox, speeders' nemesis, is on his vacation.

She was haled into the court as a 53-mile-an-hour speeder. Such tactics in Cox's court constitute an unpardonable traffic sin and are punishable by five days' incarceration—Fourth of July holidays not excepted.

Justice Jack Landell, substituting for Judge Cox, fined her $40.

Mrs. Burland, who appeared alone, was unprepared. She admitted she was prepared to go to jail, but that her spare cash, while sufficient to buy jail delicacies, was far short of $40.

Landell gave her credit.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 2.—Additions to the United States naval hospital in Balboa Park, to cost approximately $750,000, have been approved by the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the Navy Department, according to word received by the public works office of the Eleventh Naval District.

To date more than $2,000,000 has been expended on the hospital, which is the principal base hospital of the Pacific Fleet. The new buildings for which the larger appropriation has been made will include quarters for nurses, the hospital corps, officers, and the isolation unit.

Yesterday the police were informed that a man resembling Regan had been seen in Altadena walking with a cane and apparently blind. A search of that territory failed to disclose his whereabouts.

Police, private detectives and deputy sheriffs have been searching for the man continually for the past week. They are now working on the theory that he was abducted and is being held prisoner.

SHOWS GROWTH

Official Reports at Redlands Indicate Progress

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

REDLANDS, July 2.—The fiscal year for the Redlands postoffice and the government of the city of Redlands closed yesterday and the reports made indicate a healthy and substantial growth in the city during that time. The postal receipts showed a gain of about 10 per cent over the year before and every department of the city did more business than the preceding year.

Postmaster James F. Wheat says that the postoffice business was the best in history. The receipts for this past year were over $60,000 and for the year preceding that were about $55,000, showing a gain of almost 10 per cent. Mr. Wheat also says that the postoffice is handling a great many more pieces of mail and he attributes the gain to the growth of Redlands.

Business with the city has been so good that practically every department has been forced to exceed the budget, although rigid economy was practiced. All departments will have to have more money next year and city expenses will jump from $175,000 to $250,000.

FIRECRACKER VICTIM

South Pasadena Child Burned to Death as Result of Premature Celebration

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SOUTH PASADENA, July 2.—Just two weeks after the City Council here rescinded an ordinance prohibiting the sale and shooting of fireworks the charred body of 4-year-old Marjorie Bell lies in the Turner, Stevens & Berry mortuary today, the victim of a premature Fourth of July celebration.

And now grief hangs heavy in the hearts of three small neighbor boys whom the little girl accused of "trying to scare" her with cannon crackers. The children were playing in front of their home, the Palm Crest Apartments, on El Centro street, when the tragic explosion occurred. According to the police the boys threw a lighted firecracker at the girl's feet "just pretending to shoot her." Sparks ignited the tot's dress and before horrified spectators could interfere fatal burns were inflicted.

A few hours after emergency treatment had been given by Dr. John Robert Reid, the little lass died in the Los Angeles General Hospital.

Previous to the City Council's action two weeks ago an ordinance was in force prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks in the city limits.

Klan Women in Opposition to Fatty Arbuckle

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 2.—Women of the Ku Klux Klan, an auxiliary organization, today demanded of the Council that Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, be prohibited from appearing at a local theater. The demand was the second of its kind made of the Council this week, the first having been made by the Long Beach Ministerial Association. Both demands were refused by the Council.

The Klan women's demand was in writing and was presented to the Council by Mrs. R. May Holcomb "Excellent Commander" of the local organization.

"Could not the hooded order make Arbuckle afraid to appear?" Councilman Alexander Beck asked Mrs. Holcomb.

"I do not think that the Ku Klux Klan wants to handle the case in that manner," was Mrs. Holcomb's rejoinder.

Councilman Filmore Condit, who was hissed Monday night by spectators in the Council chamber for his sarcastic attack on Arbuckle, declared that Arbuckle's past record and former associations should be reason enough to justify the stopping of his public appearances here. Other members of the Council could not agree with his point of view, however, and refused to interfere with the comedian's appearances here.

SERVICE MAN HELD AT LINE

Fought With American Army Across Seas

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, July 2.—Federal immigration officials at Calexico are faced with a problem in the case of Isadoro E. Gamba, an Italian, carrying an honorable discharge from the United States Army, who was captured after making his way across the international line at Calexico.

He is held for deportation because the quota from Italy is full at the present time and, according to strict interpretation of the Immigration Act he must not be admitted to the United States.

According to a statement made by him he came to the United States from Italy in 1913. He enlisted in the American Army early in 1917 and was hurried overseas, where he served actively nearly two years in the front lines.

He has a wife and family in Italy and several months ago went to visit them. When he returned to New York he was refused admittance to the United States because he had no passport or papers identifying him as an ex-service man.

He was told that the quota was filled. From New York Gamba made his way to Mexicali. He was safely across the line before he was detected by the inspectors. Gamba said he had no opportunity to make declaration of citizenship at the time he enlisted in the Army. Appeal may be taken by the local post of the American Legion to Washington in the hope of obtaining a special ruling in Gamba's case.

Electric Shock Cause of Death, Inquest Verdict

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, July 2.—Delbert B. Kearney met death through "coming in contact with a live electric wire carrying 2300 volts, accidental" was the verdict today of a coroner's jury. The inquest was over the body of an Ontario Power Company lineman, who died yesterday afternoon after receiving a shock which caused him to fall from a thirty-five-foot pole at Sixth street and Grove avenue. The inquest was held at Draper's mortuary before Coroner J. B. Hanna.

It was at first supposed that Kearney had not received sufficient shock to cause death, but that internal injuries sustained in the fall had proven fatal. A post-mortem examination indicated that death was due to electrocution. Fellow-linemen and doctors failed to attend the man were the principal witnesses at the inquest.

Kearney is survived by a widow and several children, residing in Upland. Funeral services are to be held from Draper's Upland chapel tomorrow at 2:30 p.m.

LOVERS PAY FINES

One-Hand Auto Drivers Under Ban of Police

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SOUTH PASADENA, July 2.—Although there is no specific ordinance in South Pasadena prohibiting the sheik from driving with one hand on the steering wheel of his automobile and the other arm about his sweetheart, Officer L. H. Blaine today started war against the "consistent lover" who refuses to remove his arm from the girl's waist long enough to make a signal before rounding a street corner.

An almost continuous procession of violators of this class was sent to the police court throughout the evening. Older men, perhaps past the age of "consistency," gave rheumatism and absent-mindedness as an excuse for being in court. A few others had ignored the "boulevard stop" signs at the busy street intersections. Officer Blaine told the judge.

BRING OUT OLD LAW

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ORANGE, July 2.—A law, affecting renters, that has remained hidden for years, never enforced, was dragged out by the City Council at its regular meeting yesterday afternoon, repolished and put back into service, effective at once.

The statute, one of the many clauses contained in the city water ordinance, provides that all renters shall pay a $3 deposit for water service.

Though this clause has been on the water statute books for many years, it had never been enforced, many of the city officials not knowing it was there.

Its sole purpose is to protect the property owner who rents his premises to tenants. It was pointed out that a tenant may move from the city at any time, leaving his water bill unpaid. The city, however, is not the loser as the property owner is held liable for payment of the bill.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

REDLANDS, July 2.—"Gassed or strangled," said the report of the Coroner's jury on the death of two immense palms on West Olive avenue, said to be close to near half a century old.

At the roots of the palms were found myriads of tiny insects, their larvae and nests. Also there was a gas pipe near by. It is said that either the insects strangled the giant trees to death, by shutting off the feed lines, or that gas leaking from the pipe asphyxiated them.

An effort will be made to learn from the State university experts just what did happen.

PLEADS FOR DEATH OF PRISONERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, July 2.—The death penalty was asked today by the prosecuting attorney in his closing arguments in the case of Charles Nolan and John Carlton, accused of the murder of Charles Love, a hotel man here.

The beginning of the closing arguments by the prosecuting attorney marks the longest trial ever held in the Superior Court of Santa Barbara county. From the opening day crowds of men and women have filled the courtroom to hear the sensational story of the party in which Nolan is said to have arranged for his wife to entertain a group of sailors from the battleship Idaho in a room of the hotel in which the shooting occurred. Many were fascinated by testimony of phychologists who argued for three days over the possibility of suggestion upon the subconscious mind when Nolan's attorney attempted to prove that Carlton, his pal, had really committed the murder by suggesting it to the man who actually fired the shot. It is expected the case will go to the jury tomorrow morning and an early verdict is expected.

DIVING LESSON ENDS BOY'S LIFE

Sailor Dies While Engaged in Practice Work

Death from Strangulation Inquest Verdict

Case to be Reviewed by Naval Board

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN DIEGO, July 2.—Clifford Smith, a bluejacket taking a course in diving at the North Island Torpedo School, who met death late yesterday under unusual circumstances while operating under twenty-five feet of water, was a victim of strangulation, it was announced today at a naval inquest held on board the destroyer McDermutt.

Smith had nearly completed his course in diving, having been a member of a class of ten enlisted men receiving the instructions.

With complete diving apparatus he was exploring the bay bottom. A member of the surface crew gave him the "safety" signal and repeated. Smith failed to respond. The diver was then hauled up, and as he reached the surface his helmet struck the ladder or the diving vessel and fell off.

Witnesses said Smith was dead when brought to the surface. Friends of the dead man said he had often stated he believed he could release himself from his diving suit and come to the surface unaided. Whether he was attempting to try out his plan and drowned in so doing has not been ascertained.

The case will go before a naval inquiry board for final conclusions.

SURPRISE STORY IN BANDIT TRIAL

Woman Tells of Dot Holst's Hold-up Proposal

Refused to Aid in Robbery of Venice Matron

Says Suspect Declared She Would Ask Another

Testimony to the effect that Dot Holst, dubbed the "fashionable bandit," had approached her with a proposal to waylay and rob Mrs. Lucy Stevens, wealthy Venice matron, the day before Mrs. Stevens was actually held up and robbed of $7000 in diamonds and considerable cash, was given in Judge Reeve's department of the Superior Court yesterday by Mrs. Pearl Owings, a surprise witness for the State.

Mrs. Holst and Marshall G. Oakes, her partner in the asserted crime, are on trial on this charge in Judge Reeve's department.

Mrs. Stevens was held up and robbed while returning to her Venice home by way of Inglewood in Mrs. Holst's machine after a poker party in Los Angeles. The robbery occurred on March 7, last.

Mrs. Owings, the surprise witness, took the stand in the afternoon. She stated that the day preceding the robbery Mrs. Holst came to her home and asked if she had noticed the "beautiful diamonds" Mrs. Stevens wore.

PLAN PROPOSED

Mrs. Owings said she replied in the affirmative and was then asked if she would like to own the diamond ring Mrs. Stevens had. She replied she said, that she would buy a diamond ring if she had sufficient money.

"If you do as I tell you, you can have Mrs. Stevens's ring," the witness said her friend told her. "I am going to hold up Mrs. Stevens and get her diamonds. If you put on your husband's clothes and go to a spot I tell you and ask us for a ride and then hold us up you can get the jewelry and have the diamond ring."

Mrs. Owings testified that she told her friend she would not participate in anything of such a nature and that Mrs. Holst thereupon informed her that the robbery "would be no trouble" as she intended to get Mrs. Stevens drunk.

When she again refused, Mrs. Owings said, Mrs. Holst informed her that she would have some one else do the "job."

AT POKER PARTY

Mrs. Stevens testified earlier in the day. She said that Mrs. Holst had called for her at home on the night of the robbery and had taken her to Los Angeles. Here, she said, they took part in a poker party during which she was given "a stiff" drink of liquor. The liquor, however, did not affect her, she said. On the way home a man jumped on the running board of the machine, she testified, and robbed her of her diamonds and $168 in cash.

The other witnesses yesterday were Detectives Thomas F. Hyland and Fred G. Bohr of San Francisco. They arrested Mrs. Holst and Oakes in that city. Oakes, they said, led them to a pawnshop where he had pawned three of the diamonds taken from Mrs. Stevens.

The case is being prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Van Cott and Attorneys S. S. Hahn and Mart Coles are acting for the defense.

New Budget Given to Cryer for Signature

Mayor Cryer has for consideration today the new budget for the fiscal year 1924-25, as passed yesterday by the City Council, virtually without debate. The only alteration in the final form from the synopsis previously published is a cut of $6000 in the secret service appropriation, from $30,000 to $24,000, making the grand total for all department $18,342,952, and for interest and sinking-fund charges, to carry the bonded indebtedness, $7,196,750.29.

Within the ten days beginning today the Mayor may delete individual items from the budget, but he cannot reapportion the sums appropriated or dimish any one of them, nor can be disapprove the budget as a whole. Should he refuse to sign, it goes into effect automatically as adopted by the Council.

On recommendation of City Clerk Dominguez, the salaries of certain members of his office staff were increased by the Budget Committee of the Council. Mr. Dominguez said he desired that the spirit of harmony and efficiency in the personnel of his department should continue and that every case which he recommended for a raise was meritorious.

Chairman Mushet said: "Mr. Dominguez, city clerk, has worked in entire harmony and co-operation with the City Council and the administration at all times and his studied, just and conscientious recommendations, coupled with his efficient and courteous methods in the conduct of his office, have met with the unqualified approval of the City Council."

ARROYO FIRE BURNS OVER BRUSH LAND

More Than Six Hundred Acres in La Brea Canyon Swept by Flames

More than 600 acres of brush land were burned over in a fire that swept through portions of La Brea Canyon yesterday morning, according to reports to County Fire Warden Flintham. The fire was brought under control late yesterday afternoon, the fire warden said. A number of small brush fires in other parts of the county were also reported to Flintham's office yesterday but none of them was said to have reached serious proportions.

The fire warden reiterated his warning to the public that county fire ordinances regulating the sale of fireworks would be rigidly enforced over the Fourth of July and the week-end. Parties planning trips into the mountain districts are requested not to take any fireworks of any kind with them on account of the dry condition of the underbrush and the grave fire menace.

Prize Painting Exhibit on Way to Los Angeles

Definite word has been received from the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg that the sixty-one paintings from the foreign section of the Twenty-third International are on the way to Los Angeles. The exhibition will open at the Los Angeles Museum, Exposition Park, the 23rd inst., continuing to September 14. Dr. Bryan, the director of the museum, attended a committee meeting of museum directors and representatives at Pittsburg in May. This jury made a selection of paintings to go on circuit. The first showing is in Los Angeles.

Art and Archaeology says this exhibition "is probably the most eclectic show of American and foreign paintings ever assembled in this country. It does not present one line of art but a polygon, showing many sides of contemporary painting."

Nearly all the prize-winners and pictures receiving honorable mention are included in the group coming. Augustus John's portrait of Madonna Buggia that was awarded the gold medal with $15,000 prize, also Giovanni Romagnoli's "After the Bath," that received the silver medal with $1000 money prize.

PROTECTION FOR TIMID HUSBAND

He Fears Rampagin' Wife So Court Orders Her Not to Hurt Him

A mere man can't hope to protect himself from a woman when she is on a rampage, John Henry Radke told Judge Guerin of Superior Court yesterday. Therefore, he asked that the court issue a restraining order against his wife, Katherine Margaret Radke, whom he is suing for divorce, to prevent her from molesting him pending trial of the case. Judge Guerin issued the restraining order. Radke was represented in court by Attorney Willed Andrews.

Speech-Defects Expert to Give Interviews Here

Mrs. May Kirk Scripture, one of the outstanding figures today in the re-education work for people with serious speech defects, has come from New York to hold classes at the summer session of the University of California, Southern Branch. Mrs. Scripture will lecture on the new theories with regard to the correction of stuttering and stammering, and members of her classes will have opportunity to test these theories in the demonstration school, which is one of the most interesting phases of the summer session work in education. A class of children with serious speech defects will serve as laboratory for this course.

Mrs. Scripture is anxious to help as many people here in Los Angeles as possible. Those who have some serious impediment in speech may arrange with Mrs. Scripture's secretary for an appointment to talk over their problems with Mrs. Scripture personally.

Mrs. Scripture has an office on the campus in 122 Training School Building, but those who are not members of her class may communicate with her at 1118 North Berendo regarding appointments in the afternoon.

JAIL DOPE SALE HALTED

Man and Twelve-Year-Old Daughter Charged With Peddling Narcotics to Prisoners

The source of much of the drug which has found its way to prisoners in the County Jail has been stopped, police announced yesterday, as a result of the arrest of Joe Brune and his 12-year-old daughter Josie.

The suspect used his child as a blind to cover his operations and to aid him in smuggling the narcotics to the prisoners, according to the officers. She has been turned over to the juvenile authorities and he is held on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and violation of the State poison law.

The arrest of Brune and his daughter, who make their home at 231 O'Farrel street, San Pedro, came as the result of a tip given Los Angeles Harbor police by an anonymous informant. The police informer stated that Brune and his daughter would leave Los Angeles Harbor on a Pacific Electric train to deliver the drugs to his clientele in the jail.

Patrolmen Myer and Starr waited at the Pacific Electric station at the harbor until the suspect and the child appeared. As they approached them Brune flung a large package under the wheels of a passing train. The package, however, rolled between the rails.

He and his daughter was arrested and the package recovered. In it was found gum opium valued at approximately $1000. The girl's vanity case, because of its size, attracted the attention of the officers and they opened it. In it they found another quantity of gum opium.

Brune, the officers said, admitted that he had been smuggling "dope" to prisoners for some time. He confessed, they said, that he was on the way to the jail at the time of his arrest. He is declared to be a drug addict himself and is said to have served several terms in various jails in this State for violation of the poison law.

Hevle Sends in Check to Cover Fund Shortage

No complaint against Hevle has been sworn out, and his case is not before the grand jury. City Electrician Manahan notified the Public Works Board that the check had been deposited with the City Treasurer and the board in turn notified Hevle's bondsmen.

Lucille Ryder, a sightless guitar player, appeared in Police Judge Pope's court and also pleaded not guilty. She was released under $25 bail. It is the fifth time that she has been arrested on this charge.
